

Ford Assures Farmers 'A Good Deal'

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Omaha — Cloaked by a security blanket, President Ford came to Nebraska Wednesday and assured farmers they are about to gain long-term access to a huge Soviet market.

"If you're a little more patient, we'll get you a good deal," the President told agricultural spokesmen at a White House Conference on Domestic and Economic Affairs.

Ford said he would have liked to be able to announce an end to the temporary embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union, but negotiations are not yet completed.

However, he told newsmen at a televised interview session, negotiators are "very close" to agreement.

"I believe it will be at least a five-year program . . . with five million tons of sales or more per year at free market prices."

That, he said, would "stabilize a huge market" for American farmers.

It would also, he noted to the conference participants, redeem a pledge he made in Lincoln one year ago in an airport appearance.

Then, he said, he had urged "full production" from farmers with the promise of access to world markets.

Ford's visit to Omaha on a brilliant autumn day was also highlighted by a forceful defense of both the American farmer and his own secretary of agriculture, Earl Butz.

The farmer, he said, is "too often the scapegoat for economic problems . . . but the farmer is not to blame for high prices today."

Victory over inflation, he promised, "will not be won at the expense of the American farmer."

During the press interview, Ford said Butz "has done an excellent job of defending the interests of agriculture . . . I fully back him."

The President said he has asked Butz to remain as secretary until the end of his current term, and Butz has agreed to do so.

While agriculture dominated the talk during Ford's visit to this corn and cattle state, it was an army of uniformed policemen and plainclothes security agents with earphones which dominated the scenery.

Ford's appearances were tightly controlled, and his departure from the Hilton Hotel was as swift as an end run. He was on his way to Air Force One in a fast-moving motorcade only minutes after he completed answering questions from conference participants.

During the interview session with local newsmen, Ford said he may know "in the next week or so" whether he can recommend continued tax reductions for Americans next year.

If he does, he said, they would be accompanied by "a rigid restriction on (federal) expenditures." It would be nice, the President said, to be able to "give taxpayers a greater opportunity to spend their own money."

On an issue close to home in Omaha, Ford promised to do his best to keep development of the new B-1 bomber "going to the maximum capability . . . we're going to keep after it."

The President landed at Offutt Air Force Base south of Omaha, the home of the Strategic Air Command.

In his address to the White House Conference, Ford kept the pressure on the Congress in his continuing battle over energy legislation.

Congress, he suggested, is "where the blame lies" for the lack of a comprehensive and coordinated energy policy.

"We must chart our own energy program," he declared. "There has been too much delay already."

Last week's 10% oil price hike by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), which had "absolutely no economic justification," makes the need for U.S. energy independence even more obvious, he said.

On other matters, the President said:

—specific administrative and legislative recommendations will be forthcoming from the White House in an effort to "improve the workings" of the Central Intelligence Agency.

—more vetoes are on their way if Congress approves "more excessive spending measures."

—there will be "no federal bail-out" for New York City.

Energy

Cost and safety problems in the "evolving technology" should not slow development of nuclear power plants, according to Energy Administrator Frank Zarb.

Agriculture

Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz couldn't make the announcement he'd like to have made about grain shipments to Russia and Poland.

Health, Education, Welfare

The federal government is "still operating a lot of programs for which the original purpose was met," according to Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare David Mathews.

Police Won't Get Pitch On Exercise

By GORDON WINTERS

Plans for demonstration of a $40 exercise device at police lineups have been canceled, according to Capt. John Miller.

The device earlier had been sold to firemen at fire stations and to deputy sheriffs in the County-City Bldg.

According to the Nebraska Constitution, public buildings can not be used for private benefit, according to City Atty. Charles Humble.

Quite Successful

The sales pitch for physical fitness and the $40 Apollo Exercisers to firemen and deputies by representatives of the Physical Fitness Institute was quite successful.

Twenty-nine deputies and about 90% of the city's 220 firemen purchased the exercise devices, according to Chief Deputy Del Ziemann and Fire Chief Dallas Johnson.

Proceeds from sales of the devices go to pay salaries of regional representatives of the institute, according to Dr. Dean Miller, director of the institute.

One To Two Hours

The presentation by representatives of the institute lasted between one and two hours.

Firemen were ordered to attend and fire trucks were used to transport them to stations at which the devices were presented.

Because on-duty firemen were away from their regular stations, Johnson said it was "conceivable" it might have taken them longer to respond to an emergency.

Attendance Mandatory

Attendance was also mandatory at the regular sheriff's departmental meeting at which the devices were sold to deputies. Ziemann claimed later, however, that deputies could have left during the presentation if they wanted.

The institute, in addition to selling the devices, said it would conduct checkups over a 90-day period to measure improvements in fitness in firemen and deputies.

Humble suggested legal procedures to the police department under which the devices could have been demonstrated.

Could Have Been Tested

He said a control group of different levels of police personnel could have watched the presentation, then tested the devices for a time to insure they met the institute's claims.

Police Chief George Hansen, however, elected not to schedule the presentation and said officers could purchase the devices on their own if they wished, according to Miller.

Elton John Being Sued By Landlady

Los Angeles (UPI) — Rock star Elton John was sued for $70,000 by his landlady for alleged damages to the home he rented for $42,000 a year.

The suit filed in superior court by Mrs. Iris Schirmer said the home was "uninhabitable" after John moved last May 31. She asked $20,000 for damages to the home and an additional $50,000 for lost rentals.

Her suit charged John with burning cigarette holes in a custom-made Aztec sun rug, chipping furniture, bending silver candlesticks, cutting holes in walls and marring floors. The suit said he also took crystal glassware when he moved.

Musician Shot Dead At Home

Memphis, Tenn. (UPI) — Al Jackson Jr., a producer for Stax Records and drummer on the 1961 million-selling single "Green Onions," was shot to death at his home. His wife, her hands tied behind her back, was found screaming on the sidewalk outside.

Senate Refuses To Lift Natural Gas Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate refused Wednesday to end price controls on natural gas immediately amid indications a more gradual approach probably will be approved.

By a 57-31 vote, the Senate killed an amendment by Sen. Paul Fannin, R-Ariz., that would have ended controls on all "new" natural gas, retroactive to July 1.

The next order of business, on which a vote will occur on Thursday, is a proposal by Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., and James B. Pearson, R-Kan., that would gradually remove most controls over a five-year period.

Wednesday's vote and statements by various senators indicated there is a good chance the Bentsen-Pearson proposal will be passed, meaning higher prices for home-heating gas and, sponsors say, greater incentives for increased gas production.

The Ford administration has urged repeal of controls on grounds they have held prices so low that industry's attempts to find new oil and gas are being thwarted by a lack of money.

Under a 1954 Supreme Court decision, the Federal Power Commission regulates the price of natural gas that is sold outside the state where it is produced. The current FPC ceiling price is 52 cents per 1,000 cubic feet (mcf), although the nationwide average price of this interstate gas is about 30 cents.

The proposal rejected by the Senate on Wednesday would have removed price controls, retroactive to July 1, on "new" gas, which is gas, most of it still in the fields, that has never been sold to a pipeline.

But all "old" gas, that already under contract, would have been freed of price controls as the current contracts expire. Most contracts are for 10 to 20 years.

Within a few years, virtually all U.S.-produced natural gas would be free of controls and the price could rise to the level of unregulated gas, which is sold in the same state where it is produced.

This unregulated intrastate gas now sells for an average of $1.30 per mcf — or 2½ times the regulated price.

But under any proposal for removal of federal price controls, there would be two cushions to protect gas consumers from skyrocketing prices overnight.

—First, since about 92% of the gas used in most states was sold to pipelines under a long-term contract, it could be several years before the higher field prices were felt by homeowners and industries.

—Second, less than one-fifth of the monthly gas bill paid by U.S. homeowners represents the cost of gas. Most of the bill is for such items as transportation and distribution.

Patty, Pals May Face New Counts

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Federal prosecutors said Wednesday that Patricia Hearst and her radical traveling companions face the possibility of new, more serious charges.

"I can't be specific, but there is a very definite possibility of federal and state charges," U.S. Atty. James L. Browning told newsmen after a summit meeting of prosecutors to discuss the case. He refused to specify which figures in the case might be named in the charges under consideration.

Miss Hearst currently faces federal bank robbery charges in San Francisco. She and Symbionese Liberation Army members William and Emily Harris also are charged on numerous state felony counts in Los Angeles.

In addition, SLA members have been linked to numerous terrorist bombings and to a Sacramento savings and loan holdup and a bank robbery in nearby Carmichael, in which a woman was killed.

Duane Keyes, U.S. attorney from Sacramento, told reporters the FBI was investigating the robberies, which occurred earlier this year, and said evidence shows Patty and the Harrises were in the area at the time.

Asked whether authorities might file murder charges against Miss Hearst or the Harrises for the bank robbery, Keyes said:

"If we found sufficient evidence, yes. If not, no."

Browning said the San Francisco district attorney's office "might present more evidence to the grand jury and that might result in charges."

Asked whether those charges might be more serious than ones now pending against Patty and the Harrises, Browning replied, "Yes."

Browning was asked if prosecutors still were investigating reported SLA links to the execution-style slaying here last spring of prison reformer Popeye Jackson. "That would be correct," he said.

He said he expects a Los Angeles grand jury to indict Miss Hearst and the Harrises on the state charges already filed, but would not predict how soon that might occur.

Browning also said he wants a speedy trial and might oppose defense moves for a continuance. Chief defense attorney F. Lee Bailey said Tuesday he didn't think the case could come to trial until 1976.

"I would want to know the reason before deciding whether to oppose the continuance or not," Browning said.

He said if tests now under way show Miss Hearst is mentally incompetent to be cross-examined, she would be sent to a federal institution for treatment and could be returned for trial upon recovery.

U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter, meanwhile, said that as soon as he receives the psychiatrists' report on Miss Hearst's mental condition, he will make copies for attorneys and then order it sealed indefinitely.

Carter also approved an agreement by Browning exempting Miss Hearst's attorneys from having their jail conversations with her taped. The exemption was to have extended to Miss Hearst's family, but Browning said officials at the San Mateo County Jail raised objections.

Legislators, Ford Plan Energy Talk

Washington (UPI) — Congressional negotiators agreed Wednesday to meet with President Ford in an effort to reach a compromise on energy policy and urged him to "end the name calling" as a first step.

Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., of the House Commerce Committee and Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., of the Senate Interior Committee wrote a joint letter accepting Ford's proposal for the meeting.

Although no date has been scheduled, the meeting is expected to be held at the White House and include all Senate and House conferees on a legislative package which includes a variety of conservation measures and oil pricing formulas.

Staggers and Jackson announced that the conferees would begin negotiations on separate Senate and House bills Oct. 7 and that the meeting with Ford would have to come before that date.

They said, "Let us assure you that we will devote our full capacities to the task of concluding the development of a comprehensive national energy program in the context of this upcoming conference."

"We are, of course, aware that our views of the public interest in the area of energy policy are in several respects sharply divergent," they said. "We are hopeful that reconciliation of these strongly held perspectives can and will be achieved."

"Your commitment to that end, free from rigid and contentious rhetoric, will be most welcome," they added.

In a separate statement, Jackson said, "The first agreement we ought to try to reach is to end the name calling."

"If the President continues to publicly blame Congress even before we sit down with him, he's going to have a hard time convincing us or the American people of his sincerity."

Staggers and Jackson said they agreed to the meeting "to assure that members have the fullest opportunity to consider your views and maintain a constructive dialogue on policy matters of this magnitude."

Capture Said Due To FBI Mail Check

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The break that led to the capture of Patty Hearst came because the FBI checked the mail addressed to the father of Stephen and Kathy Soliah, the Philadelphia Inquirer reported in its Thursday editions.

Miss Hearst, the daughter of newspaper executive Randolph Hearst, was captured two weeks ago in San Francisco along with two of her Symbionese Liberation Army companions and another radical.

Miss Hearst, who said after the kidnaping that she had joined her SLA captors, is being held on a variety of state and federal charges, including kidnaping and various weapons offenses.

The Inquirer said in a copyrighted story the chain of events that ended with the capture of Miss Hearst and her companions began last April with the robbery of a bank in Carmichael, Calif., in which a customer was killed. California officials are investigating possible links between Miss Hearst and that robbery.

A getaway car found two miles away from the bank produced the fingerprints of Stephen Soliah who rented the San Francisco apartment where Miss Hearst was captured. He has been charged with harboring a fugitive.

Because of the fingerprints, the FBI began watching the mail at Martin Soliah's home in Palmdale, Calif., the story said.

The mail was checked for postmarks and return addresses by a postal clerk in the Palmdale Post Office before it was delivered, the story said. It suggested sources said the mail was not opened or read.

In early September, the Inquirer reported, one piece of mail showed up with a return address of 288 Precita Ave. in San Francisco. It was not known who wrote the letter.

FBI agents went to the address expecting to find Stephen Soliah, the Inquirer said, but instead found William and Emily Harris who, with Miss Hearst, were the only known survivors of the SLA.

During surveillance at the Precita Avenue address, the Inquirer reported, the FBI had noticed "messengers" between the house and another apartment at 635 Morse St.

That address was also checked — and it produced Miss Hearst and Wendy Yoshimura, who was also a radical fugitive.

Terrorists Kill More Policemen

... Masses Salute Franco

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Arms outstretched in the Fascist salute, hundreds of thousands of Spaniards massed in tribute Wednesday to Gen. Francisco Franco. But terrorists killed three more policemen in bloody defiance of his authoritarian regime.

Franco, celebrating the 30th anniversary of the start of the civil war that brought him to power, accused the rest of Europe of mounting a "leftist ... conspiracy" against his government in the wake of the firing squad executions of five men convicted of killing police.

Hours before the crowd was declaring that "a united Spain will never be vanquished," gunmen struck in three areas of Madrid. The separate attacks came within five minutes of each other, police said, four days to the hour after the Saturday executions.

A 22-year-old policeman died instantly, two died in hospitals of their wounds, and a fourth was seriously wounded. The new attacks raised to 22 the number of policemen killed in political violence since January 1974. Fourteen civilians died in the same period.

Security forces launched a massive hunt for the killers, throwing roadblocks around the city and checking all traffic.

From the balcony of the National Palace, Franco thanked the crowd thronging the Plaza de Oriente for "serene and virile demonstration of support," which he said made "amends for the attacks abroad" on Spain and Spanish property.

Visibly moved by the show of support, the 82-year-old generalissimo spoke for five minutes, but his words were drowned in the crowd singing the Falange anthem, "Face to the Sun."

According to the official text, Franco told the crowd the international outcry over the executions "shows, once more, just what we can expect from certain corrupt countries now giving perfect proof of their constant politicking against us." His wife stood on his left and Prince Juan Carlos, the heir-designate, on the right.

Women in the plaza embraced policemen, some of whom wept as the demonstration also became a show of support for them.

The government claimed one million persons massed in the plaza, but newsmen and photographers estimated the crowd at about 300,000. The Madrid labor organization had issued orders for members to appear, and the mayor had also put out the word. Madrid has a population 3.6 million.

As Franco spoke, gangs roamed downtown Madrid threatening foreigners.

Two photographers working for The Associated Press were pistol-whipped by militants of the right-wing organization "Guerrillas of Christ the King." One was told: "We lost four this morning," an apparent reference to the killing of the police, "and the foreign press is to blame."

Franco supporters chased two youths up a side street after spotting a German flag on their backpack. An AP reporter who saw the incident said the Spaniards surrounded and beat the two boys until police intervened.

2 Arrested While Ford In Chicago

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — Two persons were arrested during President Ford's two-day visit to the Chicago area as glove-tight security was employed to thwart any serious threat to his safety.

Thomas Weber, 23, of Skokie was charged Wednesday with aggravated assault after he grappled with police outside the hotel where President Ford was staying.

Weber became the second person arrested during Ford's Midwest trip, but authorities said neither one intended to harm the President.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said that Weber was arrested after he struck Skokie Police Sgt. Philip O'Keefe.

Carmen Pulido, 37, of Chicago was arrested Tuesday night for carrying a loaded, .25-caliber pistol outside of the Conrad Hilton in Chicago shortly before Ford arrived at a Republican fund-raising dinner.

More than 1,000 policemen and Secret Service agents surrounded the hotels during Ford's first visit outside of Washington since an apparent assassination attempt Sept. 22 in San Francisco. Seventeen days earlier a woman was arrested in Sacramento, Calif., for trying to kill the President.

Weber was picked up as he approached the North Shore Hilton in Skokie, a northern Chicago suburb. Nessen said the young man struck O'Keefe after the policeman told him to take his hands out of his pockets. The young man was thrown out of the hotel Tuesday night for loitering, Nessen told a news conference.

Police and Secret Service men then wrestled Weber to the ground and took him to the Skokie police station where he was charged. Weber's face was bloody after the incident.

Weber wasn't carrying a gun, Nessen said, and the Secret Service was not interested in the incident. Officials said another man was taken into custody when he was acting strangely, but was later released. No further details were given on that incident.

Nessen said Mrs. Pulido's arrest on Tuesday night "is of no interest to the Secret Service and the episode has been judged to have nothing to do with the President's visit."

Chicago Police Officer Jesse Jacobs arrested the woman when he discovered a gun in her purse.

Mutinous Troops Leave Red Station

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Infantrymen ordered by Premier Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo to end their occupation of a Communist-line radio station staged a day-long mutiny Wednesday in solidarity with the station's workers, then agreed to leave the station.

Soldiers of the Queluz Infantry Regiment ended their occupation of Radio Clube Portugues when they were promised civilian police would not take their place.

A bearded private said the troops felt the civilian police, often identified with the former rightist dictatorship, would turn Radio Clube over to "reactionaries."

The soldiers' brief rebellion — their second this week — was seen as another indication that Portugal was dividing into two armed camps as Azevedo's moderate-line government sought to impose its authority against increasing left-wing resistance.

The Socialist party, which backs Azevedo, warned that "minority groups" of the "adventurist and pseudorevolutionary left" were planning to attack the premier and assault information media.

While Azevedo wrestled with the Communists at home, Soviet officials, concerned with recent setbacks to the Soviet-backed Portuguese Communists, rolled out the red carpet in Moscow for Portuguese President Francisco da Costa Gomes.

Police On Strike; Jail Has Breakout

Kansas City, Kan. (AP) — Authorities searched on Wednesday for four men, one a convicted murderer, who escaped from the understaffed Wyandotte County jail while deputies helped patrol the city of 175,000 during a police strike.

A fifth escapee, Mark Anthony Harris, 18, surrendered at the courthouse Wednesday, the sheriff's office reported.

"This wouldn't have happened if they had not been on strike," said Sheriff Bert Cantwell.

More than 75% of the 323-member police force has been on strike since Monday.

Cantwell said he had some leads to the whereabouts of the escapees but none had been captured Wednesday.

Cantwell said more than half his deputies, including two of the four men normally on duty at night at the jail, were on loan to city police when the prisoners broke out of their cell Tuesday night.

The prisoners apparently pounded a hole in their cell wall with a piece of pipe and used a makeshift rope to descend from a third-floor skylight to the main floor of the courthouse. The county jail occupies the fourth and fifth floors of the courthouse.

Cantwell said the prisoners grabbed a gun from a courthouse security guard on the main floor, fired several shots to break a lock on a courthouse door and finally broke down the door.

One of the escapees was identified as Willie Adams, 37, who was in the county jail awaiting transfer to the federal prison at Marion, Ill. Adams was sentenced in state court here a week ago on five charges connected with an attempted escape from the county jail in May, when a guard was wounded and three deputies taken hostage.

He also has been sentenced to 15 years for a kidnapping conviction in Kentucky and life in prison for the 1974 stabbing death of a guard at the U.S. penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan.,

The other escapees were identified as Larry Miller, 28, an escapee from Oklahoma who was arrested here on a robbery charge; James King, 32, another federal prisoner, and Michael Jackson, 23, held on a robbery charge.

Terrorists Kill More Policemen Masses Salute Franco

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Arms outstretched in the Fascist salute, hundreds of thousands of Spaniards massed in tribute Wednesday to Gen. Francisco Franco. But terrorists killed three more policemen in bloody defiance of his authoritarian regime.

Francisco, celebrating the 39th anniversary of the start of the civil war that brought him to power, accused the rest of Europe of mounting a "leftist ... conspiracy" against his government in the wake of the firing squad executions of five men convicted of killing police.

Hours before the crowd was declaring that "a united Spain will never be vanquished," gunmen struck in three areas of Madrid. The separate attacks came within five minutes of each other, police said, four days to the hour after the Saturday executions.

A 22-year-old policeman died instantly, two died in hospitals of their wounds, and a fourth was seriously wounded. The new attacks raised to 22 the number of policemen killed in political violence since January 1974. Fourteen civilians died in the same period.

Security forces launched a massive hunt for the killers, throwing roadblocks around the city and checking all traffic.

From the balcony of the National Palace, Franco thanked the crowd thronging the Plaza de Oriente for "serene and virile demonstration of support," which he said made "amends for the attacks abroad" on Spain and Spanish property.

Visibly moved by the show of support, the 82-year-old generalissimo spoke for five minutes, but his words were drowned in the crowd singing the Falange anthem, "Face to the Sun."

Strike Stops Presses Of Washington Paper

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pressmen walked off the job Wednesday at the Washington Post, leaving behind them a battery of disabled presses, and the newspaper did not publish Thursday editions.

Wednesday night, a Post classified advertising worker was allegedly assaulted by a man who identified himself as a Post pressman, authorities reported.

An official of the pressmen's union said meaningful bargaining over controversial work practices had broken down, forcing the strike.

The Post said it was bargaining for new pressroom procedures because some employees were using work practices to obtain extra work at high pay, adding to production costs.

Kathy Sawyer, a worker in the Post classified advertising department, was hit by a brick near the Soviet Embassy, according to the Executive Protective Service, a Secret Service division which patrols near the embassies.

Authorities said she was treated and released at a local hospital.

Agents arrested Edward Nowacki on a charge of assault. Nowacki told officers he was a Post pressman but a Post spokesman said he could not verify Nowacki's employment.

The Post termed damage done early Wednesday to its pressroom equipment "malicious mischief."

Scuffling led to about 25 arrests by late Wednesday night. The first incident occurred when picketing pressmen tried to prevent men they said were strikebreakers from entering the newspaper's building.

Several of the arrests came Wednesday night, when observers said there was a tense confrontation between picketers and police.

The Newspaper Guild, representing most editorial employees at the newspaper, voted Wednesday "by a large majority" to continue to work, a spokesman for the guild said.

No Thursday editions were to be published, a Post spokesman said.

A statement issued by the newspaper said none of its presses could be operated because of damages such as cut operating reels, broken and stripped conveyor wires and damaged drive mechanisms where tools, rags, beverage cans or other objects had been inserted.

Mark Meagher, executive vice president and general manager of the Post, called the damage sabotage and said "We will seek financial damages. Appropriate legal action is under active consideration."

James Hover, an assistant pressroom foreman, received an injury one-quarter inch over his eye during the fight. He was treated and released from a hospital, the Post said.

Although the Post contract with members of Local No. 6 of the International Printing and Graphic Communications Union expired at midnight Wednesday, the strike had not been expected, Meagher said, because the union had agreed to continue working "as long as meaningful negotiations continue."

James Dugan, president of the pressmen's union, said that "meaningful negotiations did not continue. We are not trying to break new ground (in the contract), the Post is," he said.

The Post statement said the newspaper is trying to regain control of work practices it claims employees use to obtain extra work at premium pay. The newspaper said the work practices add to publishing costs.

The Post said starting pressmen earn $14,500 a year, the average is $22,568 and the maximum is $34,649. Neither the Post nor the union would say how much of an increase the pressmen are seeking.

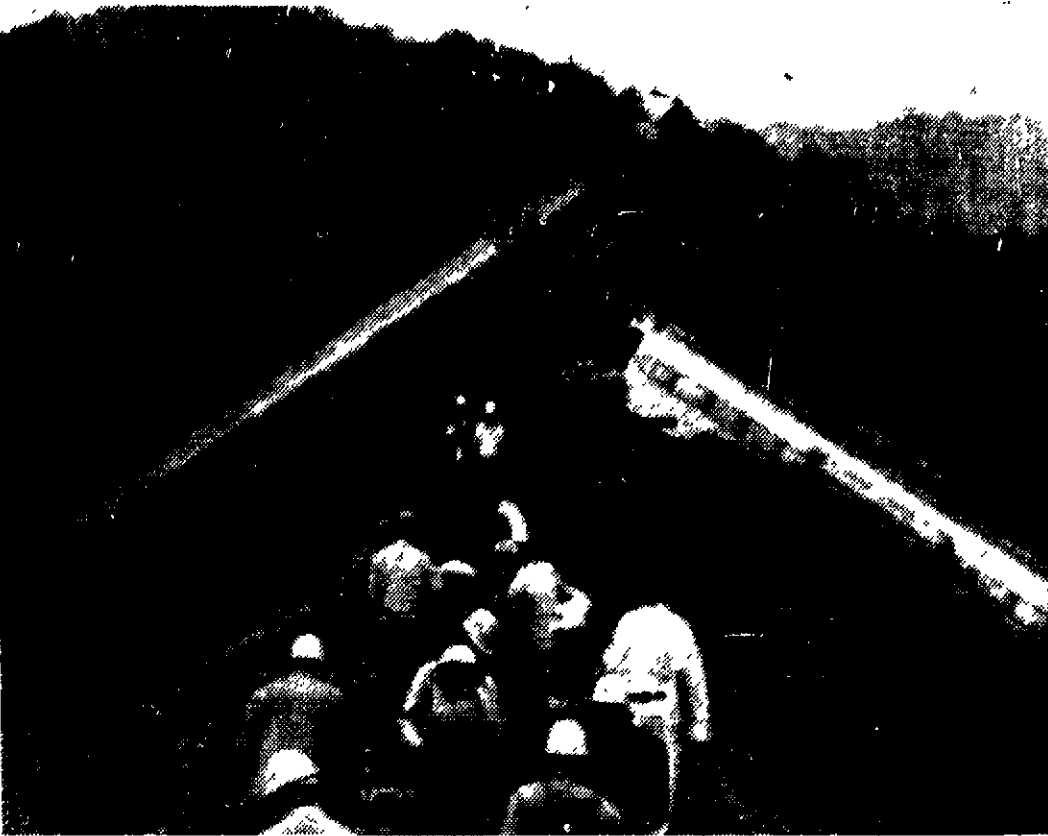

The strikers had manned picket lines at entrances to the Post building all day. Fighting broke out when men, who said they were West Virginians hired as security guards, arrived.

Dugan said one of the men dropped his suitcase as he was leaving a hotel next to the newspaper building. He said the strikers were aroused when a policeman found a gun in the suitcase.

"As far as we're concerned they are professional strikebreakers," Dugan said.

The striking union has about 210 members, but their walkout has idled about 2,100 parttime and fulltime employees, the Post said. Many of the newspaper's production employees have been notified not to return to work for the present.

Post circulation is about 560,000 daily.

32 Passengers Hospitalized Following Amtrak Derailment

PULASKI, Tenn. (AP) — At least 32 persons were hospitalized Wednesday when 11 cars of Amtrak's southbound, 12-car "Floridian" passenger train derailed north of the Tennessee-Alabama line.

None was believed seriously hurt.

The train, bound from Chicago to Florida, derailed during the lunch hour and C.W. Ashby, district superintendent for the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, said the worst injuries occurred in the dining car.

The 12:53 p.m. derailment sent the diner to the bottom of a 60-foot embankment on the east side of the L&N tracks in a rugged, wooded area about a mile south of Frankewing, a crossroads community northeast of Pulaski and about 12 miles north of the Alabama line.

The Lincoln County Sheriff's office said the injured had to be carried or walked half a mile up the track to get to the ambulances.

Jim Bryant, Amtrak spokesman in Washington, said he was told eight of the injured "were stretcher cases."

The conditions, injuries and home towns of many of the 32 persons treated at six different hospitals could not be determined.

House Keeps Lid On CIA Funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House killed an attempt to reveal the secret Central Intelligence Agency budget Wednesday as it brought a $112-billion defense appropriation bill to the verge of approval.

Final action on the bill was deferred until Thursday.

The CIA secrecy issue was settled, however, by the defeat of an amendment offered by Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., a member of the defense appropriations subcommittee.

Giaimo has been critical of the CIA, which is under investigation by congressional committees. He previously disclosed CIA funds are hidden in the overall defense budget bill within a $2 billion item marked "other procurement, Air Force."

His amendment would have prohibited use of any of this money for the CIA. If it had succeeded he said, he would have followed up with another amendment inserting a precise CIA appropriation.

However, the House defeated the amendment, 257 to 147, after hours of debate.

Calling the move "an exercise in legislative brinkmanship," Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., argued that making public a total figure for the CIA would lead to debates about the funding that would disclose details of the supersecret agency's operations.

"Any five year old knows that the more people know a secret the less chance there is to keep it ..." Stratton said. "We can't put the figure in without publishing our secrets to the world, to the KGB (Soviet intelligence agency)."

Giaimo said the general amount available to CIA is already widely known. In a book published last year, two former U.S. intelligence officers estimated the agency's budget at about $750 million.

Pilgrims Die As Boat Sinks

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — A Brazilian riverboat sank on a tributary of the Amazon River, killing more than 60 religious pilgrims, mostly women and children, the Jornal do Brasil news agency reported Wednesday.

The communique said 10 bodies were pulled from the waters of the remote Solimoes River where the riverboat Freire II sank shortly after dawn Tuesday.

Port officials in Manaus were investigating reports that the riverboat, which did not receive permission to embark, was overloaded when the accident occurred, Jornal do Brasil said.

Attracted By Reward, Amateurs Seek Body

DETROIT (AP) — Several dozen amateur diggers are wielding shovels in hopes they will find the body of ex-Teamsters President James R. Hoffa and collect $200,000 in reward money.

"Look, there's loose dirt here," said Chester Urbanek, a mortgage broker from Bloomfield Hills, as he stripped off his suit jacket and started digging. He didn't find anything.

The amateur diggers went to work after state police, acting on information from a tipster, spent the weekend unsuccessfully turning dirt for Hoffa's body. The tipster said the ex-Teamsters boss was buried six feet under on the edge of some woods near the Machus Red Fox Restaurant where he was last seen July 30.

Kitt Knisley, 27, a laid-off auto worker, was digging in a field in Waterford Township, where state police dug unsuccessfully last weekend.

Knisley and a girl who accompanied him went to the local police department when they found a spot they thought might be Hoffa's grave. Lt. Merle Finkle of the Waterford Township police department showed up with a shovel at the spot Knisley pointed out and started digging. He found no body.

Meanwhile, the Detroit News said Wednesday it has learned that Mafia figures from Detroit, Chicago and New York have been involved in the effort to pinpoint the site of the would-be grave.

The report said a meeting was held 12 days ago between members of the Detroit and Chicago Mafias to plan how to advise authorities where Hoffa's body was buried.

The meeting was supposed to have been insisted upon by Carlo Gambino, reputed head of a New York Mafia family, and regarded as the most powerful mob figure in the United States, the newspaper said.

It was at that meeting the mob decided to find one of Hoffa's killers and relay information extracted from him to the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations.

Arson Charge Brought Against Franklin Foulks

Franklin H. Foulks, 26, was charged with third degree arson, a felony, in County Court Wednesday in connection with a fire Tuesday night at the David Hibler residence, one-quarter mile south of SW 1st and Pioneers Blvd.

Foulks, who lists the Hibler residence as his address, was released from jail on $1,000 bond about 4 p.m. Wednesday, police said.

Seven fires at the Hibler residence since Sept. 26, including two Wednesday, are under investigation, according to Don Rixstein, deputy state fire marshal.

According to the Lancaster County sheriff's office, Foulks was arrested about 9:30 p.m. Tuesday after he reported a fire which destroyed approximately $200 worth of clothing in Hibler's basement.

Considerable damage was done to clothing and miscellaneous articles in the basement about 10 a.m. Wednesday when someone apparently set them afire, according to sheriff's reports. Police said Foulks was in jail at the time.

Minor damage was done by a fire in the pantry about 5 p.m. Wednesday, fire officials said.

Volunteer firemen from the Southeast Rural Fire Protection District were going to a fire in Hibler's basement Sept. 26 when one of their trucks collided with a car at 27th and Hwy. 2, killing Mrs. Isabelle W. Craig, 82, of 2801 Eastgate.

Common Cause Head To Boost Reform Drive

John Gardner, Common Cause's national director, will be in Lincoln Nov. 6 for a speech and press conference promoting a petition drive to get the "Sunshine Initiative" on the 1976 ballot, Common Cause coordinator Larry Doerr said Wednesday night.

Doerr said Gardner will also go to Omaha for a public appearance and fund-raising meeting.

The "Sunshine Initiative" is part of a statewide campaign for governmental reforms sponsored by a coalition of groups, including Common Cause.

Common Cause's First District steering committee Wednesday night chose Marge Schlitt to coordinate the petition drive in Lincoln and Lancaster County, Doerr said. The drive will begin about Oct. 20, he said.

Woman, 81, Hit By Car, Injured

Mrs. Agnes Meek, 81, of 1812 B St., was listed in fair condition at Lincoln General Hospital Wednesday night after being struck by a car being backed out of a driveway at 1215 Harrison by Mrs. Neta Hufnagle, 61, of that address, police said.

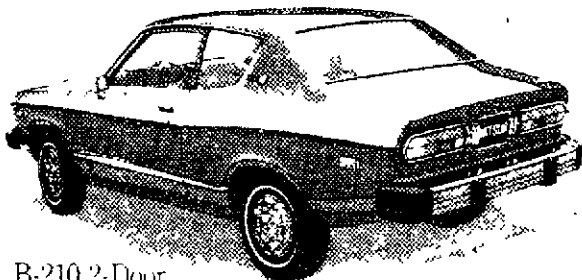

Mrs. Meek suffered a broken left hip and left elbow, police said.

The Newspaper Guild, representing most editorial employees at the newspaper, voted Wednesday "by a large majority" to continue to work, a spokesman for the guild said.

No Thursday editions were to be published, a Post spokesman said.

A statement issued by the newspaper said none of its presses could be operated because of damages such as cut operating reels, broken and stripped conveyor wires and damaged drive mechanisms where tools, rags, beverage cans or other objects had been inserted.

Mark Meagher, executive vice president and general manager of the Post, called the damage sabotage and said "We will seek financial damages. Appropriate legal action is under active consideration."

James Hover, an assistant pressroom foreman, received an injury one-quarter inch over his eye during the fight. He was treated and released from a hospital, the Post said.

Although the Post contract with members of Local No. 6 of the International Printing and Graphic Communications Union expired at midnight Wednesday, the strike had not been expected, Meagher said, because the union had agreed to continue working "as long as meaningful negotiations continue."

James Dugan, president of the pressmen's union, said that "meaningful negotiations did not continue. We are not trying to break new ground (in the contract), the Post is," he said.

The Post statement said the newspapers is trying to regain control of work practices it claims employees use to obtain extra work at premium pay. The newspaper said the work practices add to publishing costs.

The Post said starting pressmen earn $14,589 a year, the average is $22,568 and the maximum is $34,649. Neither the Post nor the union would say how much of an increase the pressmen are seeking.

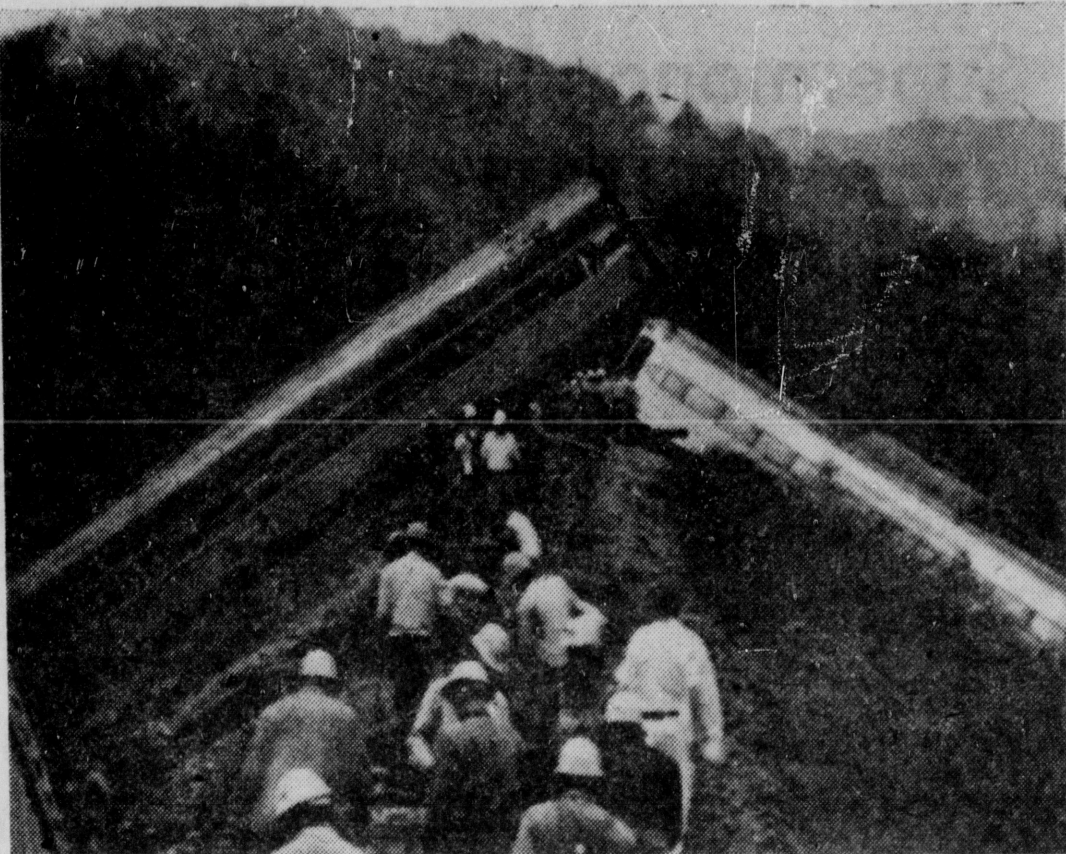

The strikers had manned picket lines at entrances to the Post building all day. Fighting broke out when men, who said they were West Virginians hired as security guards, arrived.

Dugan said one of the men dropped his suitcase as he was leaving a hotel next to the newspaper building. He said the strikers were aroused when a policeman found a gun in the suitcase.

"As far as we're concerned they are professional strikebreakers," Dugan said.

The striking union has about 210 members, but their walkout has idled about 2,100 parttime and fulltime employees, the Post said. Many of the newspaper's production employees have been notified not to return to work for the present.

Post circulation is about 560,000 daily.

32 Passengers Hospitalized Following Amtrak Derailment

PULASKI, Tenn. (AP) — At least 32 persons were hospitalized Wednesday when 11 cars of Amtrak's southbound, 12-car "Floridian" passenger train derailed north of the Tennessee-Alabama line.

None was believed seriously hurt.

The train, bound from Chicago to Florida, derailed during the lunch hour and C.W. Ashby, district superintendent for the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, said the worst injuries occurred in the dining car.

The 12:53 p.m. derailment sent the diner to the bottom of a 60-foot embankment on the east side of the L&N tracks in a rugged, wooded area about a mile south of Frankewing, a crossroads community northeast of Pulaski and about 12 miles north of the Alabama line.

The Lincoln County Sheriff's office said the injured had to be carried or walked half a mile up the track to get to the ambulances.

Jim Bryant, Amtrak spokesman in Washington, said he was told eight of the injured "were stretcher cases."

The conditions, injuries and home towns of many of the 32 persons treated at six different hospitals could not be determined.

House Keeps Lid On CIA Funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House killed an attempt to reveal the secret Central Intelligence Agency budget Wednesday as it brought a $112-billion defense appropriation bill to the verge of approval.

Final action on the bill was deferred until Thursday.

The CIA secrecy issue was settled, however, by the defeat of an amendment offered by Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., a member of the defense appropriations subcommittee.

Giaimo has been critical of the CIA, which is under investigation by congressional committees. He previously disclosed CIA funds are hidden in the overall defense budget bill within a $2 billion item marked "other procurement, Air Force."

His amendment would have prohibited use of any of this money for the CIA. If it had succeeded, he said, he would have followed up with another amendment inserting a precise CIA appropriation.

However, the House defeated the amendment, 257 to 147, after hours of debate.

Calling the move "an exercise in legislative brinkmanship," Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., argued that making public a total figure for the CIA would lead to debates about the funding that would disclose details of the supersecret agency's operations.

"Any five year old knows that the more people know a secret the less chance there is to keep it..." Stratton said. "We can't put the figure in without publishing our secrets to the world, to the KGB (Soviet intelligence agency)."

Giaimo said the general amount available to CIA is already widely known. In a book published last year, two former U.S. intelligence officers estimated the agency's budget at about $750 million.

Pilgrims Die As Boat Sinks

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — A Brazilian riverboat sank on a tributary of the Amazon River, killing more than 60 religious pilgrims, mostly women and children, the Jornal do Brasil news agency reported Wednesday.

The communique said 10 bodies were pulled from the waters of the remote Solimoes River where the riverboat Freire II sank shortly after dawn Tuesday.

Port officials in Manaus were investigating reports that the riverboat, which did not receive permission to embark, was overloaded when the accident occurred, Jornal do Brasil said.

Attracted By Reward, Amateurs Seek Body

DETROIT (AP) — Several dozen amateur diggers are wielding shovels in hopes they will find the body of ex-Teamsters President James R. Hoffa and collect $200,000 in reward money.

"Look, there's loose dirt here," said Chester Urbanek, a mortgage broker from Bloomfield Hills, as he stripped off his suit jacket and started digging. He didn't find anything.

The amateur diggers went to work after state police, acting on information from a tipster, spent the weekend unsuccessfully turning dirt for Hoffa's body. The tipster said the ex-Teamsters boss was buried six feet under on the edge of some woods near the Machus Red Fox Restaurant where he was last seen July 30.

Kitt Knisley, 27, a laid-off auto worker, was digging in a field in Waterford Township, where state police dug unsuccessfully last weekend.

Knisley and a girl who accompanied him went to the local police department when they found a spot they thought might be Hoffa's grave. Lt. Merle Finkle of the Waterford Township police department showed up with a shovel at the spot Knisley pointed out and started digging. He found no body.

Meanwhile, the Detroit News said Wednesday it has learned that Mafia figures from Detroit, Chicago and New York have been involved in the effort to pinpoint the site of the would-be grave.

The report said a meeting was held 12 days ago between members of the Detroit and Chicago Mafias to plan how to advise authorities where Hoffa's body was buried.

The meeting was supposed to have been insisted upon by Carlo Gambino, reputed head of a New York Mafia family, and regarded as the most powerful mob figure in the United States, the newspaper said.

It was at that meeting the mob decided to find one of Hoffa's killers and relay information extracted from him to the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations.

Arson Charge Brought Against Franklin Foulks

Franklin H. Foulks, 26, was charged with third degree arson, a felony, in County Court Wednesday in connection with a fire Tuesday night at the David Hibler residence, one-quarter mile south of SW 1st and Pioneers Blvd.

Foulks, who lists the Hibler residence as his address, was released from jail on $1,000 bond about 4 p.m. Wednesday, police said.

Seven fires at the Hibler residence since Sept. 26, including two Wednesday, are under investigation, according to Don Rixstein, deputy state fire marshal.

According to the Lancaster County sheriff's office, Foulks was arrested about 9:30 p.m. Tuesday after he reported a fire which destroyed approximately $200 worth of clothing in Hibler's basement.

Considerable damage was done to clothing and miscellaneous articles in the basement about 10 a.m. Wednesday when someone apparently set them afire, according to sheriff's reports. Police said Foulks was in jail at the time.

Minor damage was done by a fire in the pantry about 5 p.m. Wednesday, fire officials said.

Volunteer firemen from the Southeast Rural Fire Protection District were going to a fire in Hibler's basement Sept. 26 when one of their trucks collided with a car at 27th and Hwy. 2, killing Mrs. Isabelle W. Craig, 82, of 2801 Eastgate.

Common Cause Head To Boost Reform Drive

John Gardner, Common Cause's national director, will be in Lincoln Nov. 6 for a speech and press conference promoting a petition drive to get the "Sunshine Initiative" on the 1976 ballot, Common Cause coordinator Larry Doerr said Wednesday night.

Doerr said Gardner will also go to Omaha for a public appearance and fund-raising meeting.

The "Sunshine Initiative" is part of a statewide campaign for governmental reforms sponsored by a coalition of groups, including Common Cause.

Common Cause's First District steering committee Wednesday night chose Marge Schlitt to coordinate the petition drive in Lincoln and Lancaster County, Doerr said. The drive will begin about Oct. 20, he said.

Woman, 81, Hit By Car, Injured

Mrs. Agnes Meek, 81, of 1612 B St., was listed in fair condition at Lincoln General Hospital Wednesday night after being struck by a car being backed out of a driveway at 1215 Harrison by Mrs. Neta Hufnagle, 81, of that address, police said.

Mrs. Meek suffered a broken left hip and left elbow, police said.

Datsun's done it again! In the Environmental Protection Agency gas mileage figures released Sept. 22, Datsun B-210 with manual transmission got 41 MPG on the highway, 29 MPG in the city. B-210 got better highway mileage than any other '76 car tested, and we did it without making you buy a more expensive optional engine like some economy cars do. It's no surprise that Datsun came out on top... we've been mileage leader or been tied for first place for 3 of the 4 years the EPA has been testing gas mileage! Of course, these figures are estimates and actual MPG may be more or less depending on the condition of your car and how you drive. Datsun B-210, the mileage leader. See all the gas-saving Datsuns... the '75s are going fast and the '76s will be here soon.

TEHRAN — In no major country of the contemporary world can Louis XIV's famous aphorism "L'etat, c'est moi" be applied with more accuracy than in Iran. As he gravely acknowledges, His Imperial Majesty the Shahanshah Mohammed Riza Pahlavi is indeed the personification of the state.

Short in stature, conservative in dress, reserved in demeanor, the Shah of Iran, receiving a foreign guest in the French-style drawing room of his relatively modest palace on the edge of Teheran, insists that his style of autocratic kingship authentically reflects "the Persian mind" as it has existed for 2,500 years — and that it perfectly suits today his 35 million subjects as they hurtle forward on a flood of oil into the economic, social and political maelstrom of the modern age.

He speaks with emotion only when talking of the terrorists, communists and extreme Moslem fanatics who, he alleges, under Moscow's guidance are the only serious dissidents in his broad realm — but whom his super-efficient secret police have thus far been unable to destroy despite such tactics as house-to-house searches in the style of Northern Ireland.

Any question about the unknown numbers of political prisoners — estimated by outsiders as several thousand — and about disaffected students, the Shah dismisses with the comment that "they're all Marxists." When asked if there is not also considerable resentment toward him at the other end of the economic spectrum because of his anti-corruption campaign and the "socialist"-style programs he boasts of having introduced, ranging from land distribution to profit-sharing, he nods but replies, "I don't need the upper classes — I have the people with me."

Perhaps he does. It is difficult to tell in a country where freedom of debate is so rigidly circumscribed by the shah's own definition of freedom, which excludes as impermissible any criticism of the monarchy, the constitution and the 14 basic points of his own program. What this means is that both intellectual freedom and conventional political opposition are effectively inhibited by the authoritarian nature of the regime and there is every indication that this will continue to be so as long as the shah remains on the throne.

The question remains: how much of the social, political and economic reforms of his self-styled "Shah and People Revolution" are either genuine or effective, and whether they have not taken second or third place in the frenetic drive for industrial and military power on which the shah has spectacularly concentrated his country's new-found wealth and resources, and its thin veneer of driving and ambitious technocrats. The latter, a remarkable galaxy of young economists and planners, many of whom were educated in England or America, seem largely driven by the same philosophy as their sovereign: a single-minded determination to set rapid economic development of Iran as the first priority, overriding any other consideration except perhaps the military.

The shah appears to be oblivious to the very deep (if rarely expressed) concern of even some of his most loyal subjects that they are living under an essentially unpredictable one-man rule and that what 'his burgeoning country most deeply needs is a government under law as distinct from government by decree.

Some of the shah's most prized institutional reforms — such as creation of only one legal party by abolishing the two former rival parties, or the projected decentralization of government down to the village level — are privately criticized by some of his own supporters as mere "hollow shams." Every Iranian knows that the army is the most pampered segment of society: the Shah sees it as his "best investment for the future of the country" and as a genuine deterrent to the Russians.

However, the huge arms build-up inevitably raises the possibility (always existent under one-man rule) of military adventures under the guise of protecting Iran's eastern borders, or the Persian Gulf, or the Arabian Peninsula, or the Indian Ocean. To the suggestion that his armament program is frightening his Arab neighbors, the shah replies to an American that if Mexico were worried about American arms, would that deter the United States from a program it thought was necessary?

The shah's unswerving confidence in the irresistible upward sweep of Iran's oil-based economy remains unshaken in the face of warnings that he may be trying to do too much too quickly. If in its present overheated state, Iran should be faced with the financial stresses that could cause sudden retrenchment and retraction of commitments, could the consequent disappointments of Iran's inarticulate masses (and perhaps its upper classes) be contained? Could the internal social and economic strains already evident in unfulfilled plans, in widespread corruption, in the growing gap between rich and poor, in declining reserves and a disappearing balance of trade, then be kept within bounds?

No one knows the answer, but the real problem is that such questions are hardly discussed. The shah sees no difficulties ahead; he is convinced that 20 per cent inflation will somehow be reduced to zero by the end of this year; he is sure that by the time Iran's oil supply runs out a few years hence, his country will have become the principal manufacturing and exporting center for the entire Middle East — "another Germany" as he describes it; nor does he apparently see any reason to doubt the continued forward thrust of Iran's economy no matter what happens in the rest of the world. "It won't be the first time," he says, "when we in this country have made the impossible possible."

Perhaps he is right. But if he is not, who is there to doubt him — in Iran? And who is there to remind him that after Louis XIV came Louis XV; and after Louis XV, as the cynics foresaw, came le deluge.

Acting On Instinct?

A City Council majority of four Monday night made a courageous decision involving hundreds of millions — if not billions — of dollars and Lincoln's future supply of electric power.

The four took Lincoln out of an agreement with the Omaha Public Power District and Nebraska Public Power District in which this city's electric utility would be a minority owner, at an estimated cost of $129 million, of a new nuclear power generating plant at Ft. Calhoun. The council nonetheless authorized bonds to finance a ten-year, $425 million electric power acquisition program.

In taking action to void the Ft. Calhoun agreement, the council majority indicated that it was not impressed with the claimed economies of nuclear power generation and plant ownership, that it believed it is possible for Lincoln to make cheaper future power supply arrangements elsewhere. The council majority also indicated that it was not impressed by power demand growth projections given it by the staff and administrative board of the Lincoln Electric System. The demand might not surge as much as anticipated by LES, the majority felt.

The decision was courageous in the sense that it bucked a thoroughly planned power supply program worked out by the LES board, which put the hard sell on the council in the days immediately before Monday's meeting (the problem for the LES board was that its proposed program was not thoroughly nor adequately presented. It appeared to be tossed to the council as an afterthought). The council majority appeared to be acting on a gut feeling, more than anything else, that the Ft. Calhoun plant would cost Lincoln more than is estimated and that power can be had at lower overall cost from other sources. Those sources, save for a go-ahead for Lincoln to participate in a coal-fired generating plant to be built in Wyoming, were not identified, however. So the decision, while it was courageous, may also turn out to be foolhardy if power supply becomes a stickier and more expensive problem from here on out.

Only time will tell, of course. The council majority of Sue Bailey, Max Denney, Bob Jeanbey and John Robinson has perched itself precariously out on a limb. For the sake of the councilmen who made the decision, but especially for Lincoln's electric consumer, we hope their instincts are true.

Zumberge Gives Warning

Perhaps he would call it more of an assessment or critique, but the parting words of UNL Chancellor James Zumberge might better be considered as a warning by the people of Nebraska. Now the new president of Southern Methodist University, Zumberge spoke at the time of his departure about such things as tangled administration of the Lincoln campus and state tax support for the entire University of Nebraska operation.

In the area of the latter, he mentioned specifically the matter of faculty salaries, which he obviously considers to be below proper competitive levels. From both the administrative and financial point of view, he said, there is a danger of "slippage" on the part of the university.

That would be slippage below the level of excellence to which the institution has always aspired. Excellence may be somewhat of an abstract term but it can be measured, in terms of accreditation, breadth of curriculum and quality of faculty.

It is no secret that Zumberge, in the past couple of years, has felt that the Omaha campus has grown and improved at the expense of the Lincoln campus. There is no doubt in our mind that such is true.

While one could hardly argue for anything other than excellence at Omaha, only a fool would want it at the expense of the Lincoln campus. The problem seems to be that there is an insufficient commitment of financial resources for both, for whatever the reason.

At this time, we are not attempting to suggest any answers but we do believe that the people of Nebraska should take seriously Zumberge's assessment of the Lincoln situation. Should the time ever come when the university has lost its good standing, the road back to respectability will be awfully hard to travel.

One hears so much about status symbols or "keeping up with the Joneses" today, making it difficult for an individual to be an individual without having a guilt complex.

A few moments ago I used a can-opener, the humble manual can-opener turned swiftly by the power from my own fingers and wrist movements. It took only a few seconds, the cleaning and wiping was very minimal, it is very portable and in seconds it was popped into a drawer in the cupboard where it takes very little storage space.

The electric can-openers have not improved upon the original mechanical achievement, they take far more materials to make, and use electricity. They have more moving parts and are bulky to store unless they are left on the counter top for visitors to the kitchen see and exclaim: "Oh, you have an electric can-opener, too!"

The cost of the electric can-opener is much more expensive to begin with and adds virtually nothing to the ease or speed of opening cans. This is not to blame the manufacturers of the product but perhaps it says something of our society. "It seems as if we continue to 'improve" on a tool when no real improvement is made. Perhaps that is where our society has introduced the status symbol. The lowly hand-operated can-opener is at the foot of the "status symbol" ladder, it does not come in avocado, gold or bronze to match the decor of a modern kitchen and does not include a book of instructions to operate.

Maybe we need to channel our mechanical technology in other directions. When the ultimate has been reached, do we only continue to "glow-coat" the original?

This morning was as crisp as an autumn apple. The Farmer went to the field to grease the combine and fill it with fuel. The milo harvest has begun in a field of thirty-five acres but another variety of grain has not fully ripened. It will take several days of continued sunny, warm days to mature this milo.

However, if the clouds should form and we have a drizzly wet rain the Farmer would be more than happy. The wheat fields are so dry. Some of the fields are green with color now but need moisture to keep them growing. Here and there the fields are spotty, indicating the drought conditions of the soil.

What brilliant colors the roses have now that the weather has cooled. I have been watering mine all summer and now they are making one last attempt at beauty in blossom before the frost terminates their blooming.

It is time the pears are picked in the orchard. The Bartlett pear variety never ripens on the tree. We must pick them green when they have matured and ripen them in a warm but darkened room. They are like picking green rocks from a tree. More than once I have thought they would never turn into anything edible but somehow I am mistaken. Bananas also are picked green and ripen in the holds of the ships when being transported from the banana plantations.

The wild plums were nice this year although I left ours for the birds. I had so many apples from which to make jellies and jams that I did not thrill at the thought of standing in the hot sun and picking plums.

Likewise the chokecherries were numerous in our windbreak north of the farmyard but I had other things to do at that time and so the birds salvaged those.

"Of course, we might have to raise our prices some more to protect ourselves from your inflation"

Ford's Man For Interior

WASHINGTON — Likeable, loquacious Thomas Kleppe, who is waiting in the wings to take over the Interior Department, has demonstrated how to succeed in Washington without really trying.

He looks like the successful businessman he once was, with thinning grey hair and the soul of a bookkeeper. He was a Republican pillar in Bismarck, N.D., active in the American Legion, Lions and Elks.

In 1967, his fellow citizens sent him to Congress where he represented North Dakota's second district without distinction for four years. He was best known, colleagues recall, for his fine paddleball play in the House gym.

Twice, he ran for the Senate. Twice, he was defeated. But as a consolation prize, President Nixon in 1971 appointed him to head the Small Business Administration.

Kleppe has directed the nation's small business affairs with even less luster than he displayed in the House. For instance, he placed cronies of pro-segregationist Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., in charge of minority programs.

This was about the time that Nixon's hatchet man, Fred Malek, was trying to Nixonize the federal bureaucracy. His notorious "Malek Plan" was intended to replace career officials with Nixon loyalists.

The plan, of course, ran afoul of the Civil Service Commission. It, therefore, has been aborted — that is, everywhere except Kleppe's Small Business Administration.

Malek's aide who helped draft the infamous plan, Dan Kingsley, wound up as Kleppe's associate administrator. Kleppe put him in charge of operations, the most powerful administrative post in the agency.

Another SBA employee who participated in the Malek scheme, Loren Rivard, was scolded by the Civil Service Commission, which recommended that he be fired. Instead, Kleppe promoted him. Last week, Rivard received an award for his "outstanding performance."

The Civil Service Commission also recommended that regional director Gilbert Montano be placed on leave without pay for his alleged role in the Malek manipulations. He not only was kept on the payroll but was honored as the best regional director in the SBA system.

In contrast, the regional director in Philadelphia, Russ Hamilton, blew the whistle on the use of loans for political purpose. His information fueled a House hearing and an FBI investigation. For this contribution to good government Kleppe fired him.

Yet President Ford has now raised Kleppe to an even higher level of incompetency by naming him the new interior secretary. And the Senate Interior Committee doesn't seem disposed to challenge him. Senators are notoriously charitable to former Members of Congress, particularly those who were good paddleball partners.

Footnote. An SBA spokesman told our associate Jack Cloberty that Kleppe didn't carry out the Civil Service Commission's recommendations because of pending litigation. The firing of Hamilton, said the spokesman, was for "administrative reasons."

Monopoly in Moscow: The State Department has been accused of serving as an overseas agent for U.S. corporations. But the diplomats have stiffly refused to promote Monopoly, the classic game of capitalism, behind the Iron Curtain.

Parker Brothers, Inc., the Monopoly makers, have asked Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to present the 80 millionth copy of their game to a prominent communist leader.

Any top communist — Russia's Leonid Brezhnev, China's Chou En-Lai or even Cuba's Fidel Castro — would do just fine, the company has pleaded.

But Kissinger is too busy maintaining the détente with communist leaders, say our State Department sources, to push Monopoly upon them. "No way," will be his answer to Parker Brothers.

Monopoly is already sold in 15 foreign languages. There is a Hebrew edition, for example, but no Arabic one. The Arabs, it seems, have it on their boycott list.

Introducing the game behind the communist curtain would be a coup for Parker Brothers. For the game has been banned as a "capitalist tool," in Marxist country.

It may be assumed, however, that half-a-dozen bootleg copies are floating around Moscow somewhere. For six Monopoly games mysteriously disappeared from the 1959 Moscow Trade Fair.

Should Kissinger turn down Parker Brothers' request, as we have been told will happen, the company has contingency plans. Their landmark copy will be offered to the Smithsonian Institution.

Should the prestigious Smithsonian reject the historic, if commercial offer, then the 80 millionth game will be presented to the metropolis of Atlantic City, the town whose street names are used in the game.

Footnote: A Parker Brothers spokesman declared that Monopoly is "typically American" and its presentation to a communist nation would be an "ideal gesture."

Big Week For Gays

WASHINGTON — How do you thank an alleged homosexual for saving the life of a president just after a military panel decides that homosexuals are unfit to protect the nation by serving in the armed forces?

"You acted quickly and without fear for your own safety," President Ford wrote to Oliver Sipple a few days ago, after the alert 32-year old former Marine had spoiled the aim of a would-be assassin. "By doing so, you helped to avert danger to me and to others in the crowd. You have my heartfelt appreciation."

But by doing his duty as a citizen, Sipple stepped into the white circle of pitiless publicity that surrounds the President and his party. It was soon reported that he is supported by a disability award for the aftereffects of combat experience in Vietnam, and hangs around with the "gay community" in the homosexual bars of San Francisco.

"What's he trying to hide?" demanded one gay militant, sensing a propaganda coup if a genuine hero could be presented as a man proud to be homosexual. Another leader, with more sympathy, said: "If, in fact, he is homosexual, it would be beneficial to the community if he would come forth and state such, but I cannot condemn him for not doing so."

Under obvious strain, Sipple appeared at a press conference. Evidently the news not only of his bravery but of his reputed homosexual associations had reached his mother in Detroit, and he had suffered through a difficult family telephone call.

His prepared statement contained a sentence of considerable dignity: "My sexuality is a part of my private life and has no bearing on my response to the act of a person seeking to take the life of another."

Sipple is guilty of committing heroism in public, and is trying to hold on to the last shreds of privacy that were stripped from him as a consequence of his selfless act. He is probably under family pressure to go one way, and under peer-group pressure to go the other, with publicity stakes fairly high. He will think twice before he does any good deed again.

The saving of the President by someone who might be a gay took place three days after the decision of a military panel in the case of T. Sgt. Leonard Matlovich. The benedicted Air Force sergeant was testing the armed forces regulations against homosexuality, and argued that he could be both a good airman and a gay. He lost; the military judges recommended that he be given a general discharge, neither honorable nor dishonorable.

Most Americans would agree that the Air Force acted wisely, and a practical argument can be made that morale in the armed forces would suffer if homosexuality were to be publicly tolerated. Moreover, such official toleration might lead to its unwelcome increase.

However, I think the decision is wrong. Homosexuality is a sin and not a crime. To practice it is to break all moral codes but no constitutional laws. The prattle of gay leaders that homosexuality is a beneficial "alternative lifestyle" strikes me as foolish, and the unsupported assertion of a psychologist that bisexual switch-hitting is the wave of the future is intellectually dishonest.

But the gay life is by no means the criminal life. All laws — or Air Force regulations — that presume to tell consensually adults what to do in private ought to be struck down by the courts. Get out of the people's lives, Big Brother; when morality has to be legislated, morality loses its moral fervor.

The essential point that perhaps Sipple catches, and Matlovich does not, is that homosexuality is an abnormality that will never really lose its stigma, because that stigma — and not the law — protects society and family life. Let the gays go their way; the straights do not have to be narrow.

As Mort Sahl used to say, is there anyone who I have not offended? This moralistic libertarian view of homosexuality infuriates the gays, who like to think they are merely different and by no means abnormal, and puzzles the straights, who do not want to encourage or legitimize the "queers."

But in time, homosexuals will gain their individual rights in law. Then the battle of sexuality will be fought fair and square, and the straight heterosexual line, traversing the shortest distance, will make its point.

ADMINISTRATION'S GUN CONTROL PLAN

Supermonarch Certain Of A Super Future

cond or third place in the frenetic drive for industrial and military power on which the Shah has spectacularly concentrated his country's new-found wealth and resources, and its thin veneer of driving and ambitious technocrats. The latter, a remarkable galaxy of young economists and planners, many of whom were educated in England or America, seem largely driven by the same philosophy as their sovereign: a single-minded determination to set rapid economic development of Iran as the first priority, overriding any other consideration except perhaps the military.

The Shah appears to be oblivious to the very deep (if rarely expressed) concern of even some of his most loyal subjects that they are living under an essentially unpredictable one-man rule and that what this burgeoning country most deeply needs is a government under law as distinct from government by decree.

Some of the Shah's most prized institutional reforms — such as creation of only one legal party by abolishing the two former rival parties, or the projected decentralization of government down to the village level — are privately criticized by some of his own supporters as mere "hollow shams." Every Iranian knows that the army is the most pampered segment of society: the Shah sees it as his "best investment for the future of the country" and as a genuine deterrent to the Russians.

However, the huge arms build-up inevitably raises the possibility (always existent under one-man rule) of military adventures under the guise of protecting Iran's eastern borders, or the Persian Gulf, or the Arabian Peninsula, or the Indian Ocean. To the suggestion that his armament program is frightening his Arab neighbors, the Shah replies to an American that if Mexico were worried about American arms, would that deter the United States from a program it thought was necessary?

The Shah's unswerving confidence in the irresistible upward sweep of Iran's oil-based economy remains unshaken in the face of warnings that he may be trying to do too much too quickly. If in its present overheated state, Iran should be faced with the financial stresses that could cause sudden retrenchment and retraction of commitments, could the consequent disappointments of Iran's inarticulate masses (and perhaps its upper classes) be contained? Could the internal social and economic strains already evident in unfulfilled plans, in widespread corruption, in the growing gap between rich and poor, in declining reserves and a disappearing balance of trade, then be kept within bounds?

No one knows the answer, but the real problem is that such questions are hardly discussed. The Shah sees no difficulties ahead; he is convinced that 20 per cent inflation will somehow be reduced to zero by the end of this year; he is sure that by the time Iran's oil supply runs out a few years hence, his country will have become the principal manufacturing and exporting center for the entire Middle East — "another Germany" as he describes it; nor does he apparently see any reason to doubt the continued forward thrust of Iran's economy no matter what happens in the rest of the world. "It won't be the first time," he says, "when we in this country have made the impossible possible."

Perhaps he is right. But if he is not, who is there to doubt him — in Iran? And who is there to remind him that after Louis XIV came Louis XV; and after Louis XV, as the cynics foresaw, came le deluge.

Acting On Instinct?

A City Council majority of four Monday night made a courageous decision involving hundreds of millions — if not billions — of dollars and Lincoln's future, supply of electric power.

The four took Lincoln out of an agreement with the Omaha Public Power District and Nebraska Public Power District in which this city's electric utility would be a minority owner, at an estimated cost of $129 million, of a new nuclear power generating plant at Ft. Calhoun. The council nonetheless authorized bonds to finance a ten-year, $425 million electric power acquisition program.

In taking action to void the Ft. Calhoun agreement, the council majority indicated that it was not impressed with the claimed economies of nuclear power generation and plant ownership, that it believed it is possible for Lincoln to make cheaper future power supply arrangements elsewhere. The council majority also indicated that it was not impressed by power demand growth projections given it by the staff and administrative board of the Lincoln Electric System. The demand might not surge as much as anticipated by LES, the majority felt.

The decision was courageous in the

Zumberge Gives Warning

Perhaps he would call it more of an assessment or critique, but the parting words of UNL Chancellor James Zumberge might better be considered as a warning by the people of Nebraska. Now the new president of Southern Methodist University, Zumberge spoke at the time of his departure about such things as tangled administration of the Lincoln campus and state tax support for the entire University of Nebraska operation.

In the area of the latter, he mentioned specifically the matter of faculty salaries, which he obviously considers to be below proper competitive levels. From both the administrative and financial point of view, he said, there is a danger of "slippage" on the part of the university.

That would be slippage below the level of excellence to which the institution has always aspired. Excellence may be somewhat of an abstract term but it can be

Patchwork Prairie Country

One hears so much about status symbols or "keeping up with the Joneses" today, making it difficult for an individual to be an individual without having a guilt complex.

A few moments ago I used a can-opener, the humble manual can-opener turned swiftly by the power from my own fingers and wrist movements. It took only a few seconds, the cleaning and wiping was very minimal, it is very portable and in seconds it was popped into a drawer in the cupboard where it takes very little storage space.

The electric can-openers have not improved upon the original mechanical achievement, they take far more materials to make, and use electricity. They have more moving parts and are bulky to store unless they are left on the counter top for visitors to the kitchen see and exclaim: "Oh, you have an electric can-opener, too!"

The cost of the electric can-opener is much more expensive to begin with and adds virtually nothing to the ease or speed of opening cans. This is not to blame the manufacturers of the product but perhaps it says something of our society. It seems as if we continue to "improve" on a tool when no real improvement is made. Perhaps that is where our society has introduced the status symbol. The lowly hand-operated can-opener is at the foot of the "status symbol" ladder, it does not come in avocado, gold or bronze to match the decor of a modern kitchen and does not include a book of instructions to operate. Maybe we need to channel our mechanical technology in other directions. When the ultimate has been reached, do we only continue to "glow-coat" the original?

This morning was as crisp as an autumn apple. The Farmer went to the field to grease the combine and fill it with fuel. The milo harvest has begun in a field of thirty-five acres but another variety of grain has not fully ripened. It will take several days of continued sunny, warm days to mature this milo.

However, if the clouds should form and we have a drippy wet rain The Farmer would be more than happy. The wheat fields are so dry. Some of the fields are green with color now but need moisture to keep them growing. Here and there the fields are spotty, indicating the drought measured, in terms of accreditation, breadth of curriculum and quality of faculty.

It is no secret that Zumberge, in the past couple of years, has felt that the Omaha campus has grown and improved at the expense of the Lincoln campus. There is no doubt in our mind that such is true.

While one could hardly argue for anything other than excellence at Omaha, only a fool would want it at the expense of the Lincoln campus. The problem seems to be that there is an insufficient commitment of financial resources for both, for whatever the reason.

At this time, we are not attempting to suggest any answers but we do believe that the people of Nebraska should take seriously Zumberge's assessment of the Lincoln situation. Should the time ever come when the university has lost its good standing, the road back to respectability will be awfully hard to travel.

What brilliant colors the roses have now that the weather has cooled. I have been watering mine all summer and now they are making one last attempt at beauty in blossom before the frost terminates their blooming.

It is time the pears are picked in the orchard. The Bartlett pear variety never ripens on the tree. We must pick them green when they have matured and ripen them in a warm but darkened room. They are like picking green rocks from a tree. More than once I have thought they would never turn into anything edible but somehow I am mistaken. Bananas also are picked green and ripen in the holds of the ships when being transported from the banana plantations.

The wild plums were nice this year although I left ours for the birds. I had so many apples from which to make jellies and jams that I did not thrill at the thought of standing in the hot sun and picking plums.

Likewise the chokecherries were numerous in our windbreak north of the farmyard but I had other things to do at that time and so the birds salvaged those.

"Of course, we might have to raise our prices some more to protect ourselves from your inflation"

Ford's Man For Interior

WASHINGTON — Likeable, loquacious Thomas Kleppe, who is waiting in the wings to take over the Interior Department, has demonstrated how to succeed in Washington without really trying.

He looks like the successful businessman he once was, with thinning grey hair and the soul of a bookkeeper. He was a Republican pillar in Bismarck, N.D., active in the American Legion, Lions and Elks.

In 1967, his fellow citizens sent him to Congress where he represented North Dakota's second district without distinction for four years. He was best known, colleagues recall, for his fine paddleball play in the House gym.

Twice, he ran for the Senate. Twice, he was defeated. But as a consolation prize, President Nixon in 1971 appointed him to head the Small Business Administration.

Kleppe has directed the nation's small business affairs with even less luster than he displayed in the House. For instance, he placed cronies of pro-segregationist Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., in charge of minority programs.

This was about the time that Nixon's hatchet man, Fred Malek, was trying to Nixonize the federal bureaucracy. His notorious "Malek Plan" was intended to replace career officials with Nixon loyalists.

The plan, of course, ran afoul of the Civil Service Commission. It, therefore, has been aborted — that is, everywhere except Kleppe's Small Business Administration.

Malek's aide who helped draft the infamous plan, Dan Kingsley, wound up as Kleppe's associate administrator. Kleppe put him in charge of operations, the most powerful administrative post in the agency.

Another SBA employee who participated in the Malek scheme, Loren Rivard, was scolded by the Civil Service Commission, which recommended that he be fired. Instead, Kleppe promoted him. Last week, Rivard received an award for his "outstanding performance."

The Civil Service Commission also recommended that regional director Gilbert Montano be placed on leave without pay for his alleged role in the Malek manipulations. He not only was kept on the payroll but was honored as the best regional director in the SBA system.

In contrast, the regional director in Philadelphia, Russ Hamilton, blew the whistle on the use of loans for political purpose. His information fueled a House hearing and an FBI investigation. For this contribution to good government Kleppe fired him.

Yet President Ford has now raised Kleppe to an even higher level of incompetency by naming him the new interior secretary. And the Senate Interior Committee doesn't seem disposed to challenge him. Senators are notoriously charitable to former Members of Congress, particularly those who were good paddleball partners.

Footnote: An SBA spokesman told our associate Jack Cloberty that Kleppe didn't carry out the Civil Service Commission's recommendations because of pending litigation. The firing of Hamilton, said the spokesman, was for "administrative reasons."

Monopoly in Moscow: The State Department has been accused of serving as an overseas agent for U.S. corporations. But the diplomats have stiffly refused to promote Monopoly, the classic game of capitalism, behind the Iron Curtain.

Parker Brothers, Inc., the Monopoly makers, have asked Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to present the 80 millionth copy of their game to a prominent communist leader.

Any top communist — Russia's Leonid Brezhnev, China's Chou En-Lai or even Cuba's Fidel Castro — would do just fine, the company has pleaded.

But Kissinger is too busy maintaining the detente with communist leaders, say our State Department sources, to push Monopoly upon them. "No way," will be his answer to Parker Brothers.

Monopoly is already sold in 15 foreign languages. There is a Hebrew edition, for example, but no Arabic one. The Arabs, it seems, have it on their boycott list.

Introducing the game behind the communist curtain would be a coup for Parker Brothers. For the game has been banned as a "capitalist tool," in Marxist country.

It may be assumed, however, that half-a-dozen bootleg copies are floating around Moscow somewhere. For six Monopoly games mysteriously disappeared from the 1959 Moscow Trade Fair.

Should Kissinger turn down Parker Brothers' request, as we have been told will happen, the company has contingency plans. Their landmark copy will be offered to the Smithsonian Institution.

Should the prestigious Smithsonian reject the historic, if commercial offer, then the 80 millionth game will be presented to the metropolis of Atlantic City, the town whose street names are used in the game.

Footnote: A Parker Brothers spokesman declared that Monopoly is "typically American" and its presentation to a communist nation would be an "ideal gesture."

Big Week For Gays

WASHINGTON — How do you thank an alleged homosexual for saving the life of a president just after a military panel decides that homosexuals are unfit to protect the nation by serving in the armed forces?

"You acted quickly and without fear for your own safety," President Ford wrote to Oliver Sipple a few days ago, after the alert 32-year old former Marine had spoiled the aim of a would-be assassin. "By doing so, you helped to avert danger to me and to others in the crowd. You have my heartfelt appreciation."

But by doing his duty as a citizen, Sipple stepped into the white circle of pitiless publicity that surrounds the President and his party. It was soon reported that he is supported by a disability award for the aftereffects of combat experience in Vietnam, and hangs around with the "gay community" in the homosexual bars of San Francisco.

"What's he trying to hide?" demanded one gay militant, sending a propaganda coup if a genuine hero could be presented as a man proud to be homosexual. Another leader, with more sympathy, said: "If, in fact, he is homosexual, it would be beneficial to the community if he would come forth and state such, but I cannot condemn him for not doing so."

Under obvious strain, Sipple appeared at a press conference. Evidently the news not only of his bravery but of his reputed homosexual associations had reached his mother in Detroit, and he had suffered through a difficult family telephone call.

His prepared statement contained a sentence of considerable dignity: "My sexuality is a part of my private life and has no bearing on my response to the act of a person seeking to take the life of another."

Sipple is guilty of committing heroism in public, and is trying to hold on to the last shreds of privacy that were stripped from him as a consequence of his selfless act. He is probably under family pressure to go one way, and under peer-group pressure to go the other, with publicity stakes fairly high. He will think twice before he does any good deed again.

The saving of the President by someone who might be a gay took place three days after the decision of a military panel in the case of T. Sgt. Leonard Mastlovich. The bemused Air Force sergeant was testing the armed forces regulations against homosexuality, and argued that he could be both a good airman and a gay. He lost; the military judges recommended that he be given a general discharge, neither honorable nor dishonorable.

Most Americans would agree that the Air Force acted wisely, and a practical argument can be made that morale in the armed forces would suffer if homosexuality there were to be publicly tolerated. Moreover, such official toleration might lead to its unwelcome increase.

However, I think the decision is wrong. Homosexuality is a sin and not a crime. To practice it is to break all moral codes but no constitutional laws. The prattle of gay leaders that homosexuality is a beneficial "alternative lifestyle" strikes me as foolish, and the unsupported assertion of a psychologist that bisexual switch-hitting is the wave of the future is intellectually dishonest.

But the gay life is by no means the criminal life. All laws — or Air Force regulations — that presume to tell consenting adults what to do in private ought to be struck down by the courts. Get out of the people's lives, Big Brother; when morality has to be legislated, morality loses its moral fervor.

The essential point that perhaps Sipple catches, and Mastlovich does not, is that homosexuality is an abnormality that will never really lose its stigma, because that stigma — and not the law — protects society and family life. Let the gays go their way; the straights do not have to be narrow.

As Mort Sahl used to say, is there anyone who I have not offended? This moralistic libertarian view of homosexuality infuriates the gays, who like to think they are merely different and by no means abnormal, and puzzles the straights, who do not want to encourage or legitimize the "queers."

But in time, homosexuals will gain their individual rights in law. Then the battle of sexuality will be fought fair and square, and the straight heterosexual line, traversing the shortest distance, will make its point.

ADMINISTRATION'S GUN CONTROL PLAN

Demos Say Tax Cuts, Public Jobs Needed

By LEE M. COHN
(c) Washington Star

Washington — New tax cuts, a massive program of public service jobs and other actions are needed to head off the threat of another recession, Democrats on the Congressional Joint Economic Committee said Wednesday.

They also recommended strong government intervention to restrain inflationary price and wage increases, short of mandatory controls. And they called on Congress to push harder to influence monetary policies of the legally independent Federal Reserve Board.

Republican members of the Senate-House committee, in a minority report, said it is too soon to judge whether major new measures will be needed to boost the economy.

Generally supporting the Ford administration's line, the Republicans counseled caution in the face of inflation risks.

The committee has no legislative authority, and it is questionable whether the recommendations reflect the views of most Democrats in Congress.

Nevertheless, the majority report could provide focus for economic policy debates between Congress and the administration. Later, as the 1976 elections approach, it could evolve into a campaign document for liberal Democrats.

HHH Stamp On Report

The report bears the personal imprint of the committee chairman, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn. Humphrey, who longs for another run for the presidency, has invigorated the committee and tries to use it to shape Democratic economic programs.

While acknowledging that the economy is pulling out of the recession and that a strong upturn is likely through the rest of this year, the report called the outlook for sustained recovery "very tenuous."

Unless new policies are adopted, "there is little prospect that this strong recovery path will be sustained in 1976," the report said, warning: "There are ominous signs on the horizon that a new recession could be in the making for late next year or early in 1977."

The Democrats recommended a program they said would increase employment by 1 million to 1.5 million jobs above what the Ford administration's more cautious policies would achieve by the second half of 1976, while lowering the inflation rate by 0.6%.

Current policies would slow growth of the economy's total output to a 2.1% annual rate in the second half of next year and would leave the unemployment rate at 8.4% of the labor force, they said. The Democratic program, they said, would produce a 5.5% rate of output growth and lower unemployment to 7.3%.

They said the broad inflation rate would be 6.5% at that time with the administration's policies, but only 5.9% with the committee's program.

Inflation Effect Debated

The administration contends that stimulative policies like those advocated in the report would revive rapid inflation and so lead to another economic slump. The Democrats responded that a vigorous economic upturn would reduce inflation by boosting productivity, or output per hour of work.

Costs of the recommended program would be small compared to the benefits, partly because higher employment would increase tax revenues and reduce costs of unemployment benefits and welfare programs, the Democrats said.

They estimated that their program would raise federal spending this fiscal year to $370 billion from the interim congressional target of $367 billion and increase revenues from $298.2 billion to $300 billion, leaving a budget deficit of $70 billion, up from the $68.8 billion target.

Further Tax Cut Urged

In addition to extending this year's temporary antirecession tax cuts through 1976, the report recommended further tax reductions totaling $7 billion to $8 billion a year, starting next Jan. 1.

It proposed that the additional cuts take the form of a credit against Social Security taxes. That is, employees and employers would subtract from their income taxes a fraction of the amount paid in Social Security taxes.

Litter Is 'Appalling'

Pellston, Mich. (UPI) — Scientists at the University of Michigan's biological station at Douglas Lake near Pellston are having their doubts people's pride in the environment.

In fact, they said a research project dealing with throw-away bottles and cans has left them "amazed and appalled."

"We don't look forward to our project because each phase thus far has been very disturbing," researcher John E. Gannon said.

Gannon said the researchers began a "rather modest" project in 1973 to help determine whether Michigan needed a bill banning throw-away containers.

In November of 1973, he said, researchers cleaned up a 1.5 mile stretch of country road in rural Cheboygan County.

On the first day, they collected 1,332 containers, then gathered 1,085 containers in finishing the job the next day.

In the spring of 1974, they ventured out the same stretch of the road.

"We figured we would come up with a whopping 100 containers or so, but to our amazement we turned up an additional 800," Gannon said.

"The results already obtained are absolutely appalling," he said. "Discovering the disgusting amount of litter deposited on this short, extremely remote stretch of road has given station personnel an inkling as to what the national situation must be like."

Don't Delay Furnace Check

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

If you haven't had your furnace checked for winter, don't delay! To insure the safety of your family through the winter months, it is very important that the furnace be checked annually by a trained serviceman.

According to Lincoln Chief Fire Inspector Dale Boettcher, thousands of the some 240,000 home fires which will occur this winter will result from furnace, heater and chimney problems.

He said most of those fires wouldn't happen if home-owners followed simple precautions and planned for emergencies.

Listed below are the simple precautions homeowners should follow, according to Boettcher:

—Have the furnace cleaned and inspected every year.

—Have worn parts replaced where necessary and make sure the serviceman cleans out soot, dirt and unburned fuel in the flues and chimney.

—Have flue pipes and chimney checked for weakness or deterioration, such as cracks, loose bricks, improper lining, and have needed repairs made.

—Clean up the furnace room and destroy such combustible materials as cardboard boxes, old clothes, furniture, lumber, paint and cleaning materials located near the furnace.

—Be sure you know how to shut off the oil or gas and the power source in case of furnace trouble and keep the emergency repair service telephone number close at hand.

—If space heaters are used, use only heaters that have a safety inspection label — UL or AGA.

—Space heaters should be cleaned frequently.

—Space heaters should be securely positioned to prevent tipping and should be turned off at night if possible.

—If using an oil heater, always allow the heater to cool before filling the tank, and don't overfill it.

—When using a fireplace, make sure the fireplace screen fits snugly and use sturdy fireplace tools.

—Have the fireplace damper and flue checked each fall to make sure it's clean and unobstructed.

—Don't use gasoline or charcoal lighter fluid for starting the fire — use long fireplace matches or starter candles, wadded-up newspapers and kindling.

—Always douse a fireplace fire with water or dry chemicals.

Any Objections?

DEAR ABBY: An item in your column brought up this question: During a marriage ceremony, when the person who officiates says, "If anyone is present who knows a reason why this couple should not be wed, let him speak now or forever hold his peace," what would happen if someone were to speak up with a reason? Would the wedding take place? Or would it be stopped right then and there?

Has anyone ever attended a wedding when someone voiced an objection?

D.N. AND J.C. AT BSU
DEAR D. AND J.: I've seen it only in "B" movies, but if such an incident has actually occurred, I'm sure that someone out there will write in. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: Thank God I've got you to talk to because I couldn't tell this to anyone else. I am scared half out of my mind I think there must be something terribly wrong with me. I am afraid I am going crazy.

I'm afraid of being around people anymore because when someone says something to me, I wonder why they said it. What I mean is, I have this feeling that people say one thing to me and really mean something else.

Don't Delay Furnace Check

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

If you haven't had your furnace checked for winter, don't delay!

To insure the safety of your family through the winter months, it is very important that the furnace be checked annually by a trained serviceman.

According to Lincoln Chief Fire Inspector Dale Boettcher, thousands of the some 240,000 home fires which will occur this winter will result from furnace, heater and chimney problems.

He said most of those fires wouldn't happen if home-owners followed simple precautions and planned for emergencies.

Listed below are the simple precautions homeowners should follow, according to Boettcher:

—Have the furnace cleaned and inspected every year.

—Have worn parts replaced where necessary and make sure the serviceman cleans out soot, dirt and unburned fuel in the flues and chimney.

—Have flue pipes and chimney checked for weakness or deterioration, such as cracks, loose bricks, improper lining, and have needed repairs made.

—Clean up the furnace room and destroy such combustible materials as cardboard boxes, old clothes, furniture, lumber, paint and cleaning materials located near the furnace.

—Be sure you know how to shut off the oil or gas and the power source in case of furnace trouble and keep the emergency repair service telephone number close at hand.

—If space heaters are used, use only heaters that have a safety inspection label — UL or AGA.

—Space heaters should be cleaned frequently.

—Space heaters should be securely positioned to prevent tipping and should be turned off at night if possible.

—If using an oil heater, always allow the heater to cool before filling the tank, and don't overfill it.

—When using a fireplace, make sure the fireplace screen fits snugly and use sturdy fireplace tools.

—Have the fireplace damper and flue checked each fall to make sure it's clean and unobstructed.

—Don't use gasoline or charcoal lighter fluid for starting the fire — use long fireplace matches or starter candles, wadded-up newspapers and kindling.

—Always douse a fireplace fire with water or dry chemicals.

Litter Is 'Appalling'

Pellston, Mich. (UPI) — Scientists at the University of Michigan's biological station at Douglas Lake near Pellston are having their doubts people's pride in the environment.

In fact, they said a research project dealing with throw-away bottles and cans has left them "amazed and appalled."

"We don't look forward to our project because each phase thus far has been very disturbing," researcher John E. Gannon said.

Gannon said the researchers began a "rather modest" project in 1973 to help determine whether Michigan needed a bill banning throw-away containers.

In November of 1973, he said, researchers cleaned up a 1.5 mile stretch of country road in rural Cheboygan County. On the first day, they collected 1,332 containers, then gathered 1,085 containers in finishing the job the next day.

In the spring of 1974, they ventured out the same stretch of the road.

"We figured we would come up with a whopping 100 containers or so, but to our amazement we turned up an additional 800," Gannon said.

"The results already obtained are absolutely appalling," he said. "Discovering the disgusting amount of litter deposited on this short, extremely remote stretch of road has given station personnel an inkling as to what the national situation must be like."

Any Objections?

DEAR ABBY: An item in your column brought up this question: During a marriage ceremony, when the person who officiates says, "If anyone is present who knows a reason why this couple should not be wed, let him speak now or forever hold his peace," what would happen if someone were to speak up with a reason? Would the wedding take place? Or would it be stopped right then and there?

Has anyone ever attended a wedding when someone voiced an objection?

Power!

Getting, Using It

Is that a Machiavellian glint in Michael Korda's eyes? Unmistakably so.

Right there in the second paragraph of his new book "Power! How To Get It, How To Use It" (Random House), Korda gives himself away.

Life Is Power Game
"All life," he says, "is a game of power. The object of the game is simple enough: to know what you want and get it. The moves of the game, by contrast, are infinite and complex, although they usually involve the manipulation of people and situations to your advantage."

Interesting observation, eh Niccolo? Good for princes in your day. And, as Korda tells us again and again, good for corporate executives (or would-be executives) in ours.

Korda, you see, has no princes for whom he can delineate the art of crafty statecraft. But he has a vast audience comprised of people whose aspirations in the business world are no less ambitious than those of your prince.

Power is what everyone craves. Office power.

Few Admit It

No matter what our station in the office — any office — hierarchy, the "will to power is basic," Korda says, even though "few will admit it."

Ah yes, we'd all like to be one of the top dogs — a member of that charmed circle of management or, better yet, "upper" management. We covet positions that would give us what Korda sees as the ultimate powers — the power to fire, promote, offer (or withhold) raises.

That universal characteristic explained to his satisfaction, Korda then turns to the issues at hand: How to get power, and how to use it.

Power Can't Be Given

The first thing aspiring power-holders should recognize, Korda explains, is that "Power cannot, strictly speaking, be given to another, for then the recipient still owes it to the giver. It must in some sense be assumed, taken, asserted." And what's more, "it is all around us; we have only to seize it."

There is a power game played out in every office, Korda says. The rules and rewards are established by management.

Learn those rules and use them, he advises.

Aside from the specific rules and traditions that vary from business to business, there are certain power behavior patterns that are more or less universal. By recognizing these patterns, Korda implies that the aspiring power holder may learn to use them to his/her advantage.

Learn where the "power areas" in your business office are, he says. Every office has them. They may be on the upper or lower floors of the building. But wherever they may be, "It is precisely where power is valued and symbolized that power can best be sought."

There are ways to make inroads into another's territory (power spot), Korda writes. Symbolic gestures like going into another's office and putting your feet on his desk, asking his secretary to do something for you, may become subtle power plays.

Anyone who aspires to power must also learn to observe. So observe: the psychology of office parties and meetings; the difference between the TOO (Table of Organization, i.e., the way the office is theoretically organized) and the TOP (Table of Power, i.e., the way power is really organized).

Some of what you may observe will be humorous: A group of executives jockeying for position at a door or when entering an elevator. But try not to laugh; everything has its significance.

Learn The Trappings

You must learn what the trappings of power are: an office more dimly-lit than the rest of the building; phones (the more the better, but don't dial them yourself); furniture; clocks; the "right" magazines — "Foreign Affairs," "Fortune," "Forbes."

And you must learn what the trappings of power aren't: framed diplomas, family photographs, Audubon prints, stolen ashtrays.

You must recognize that promotions are usually not based on merit, but on loyalty; and that the best way to get a big raise is to be making a lot of money.

And, as Korda puts it, you must learn that the ultimate goal is "to learn how to delegate without giving up responsibility, until one is finally responsible for everything without having to do anything."

Satisfied Niccolo? Korda may have gone off the deep end once in awhile, just as you did in your discourse on princely power; he may be remiss in stating that we all want to be princes, or... executives. But he has struck more than a few harmonious chords.

Above all else, Korda has shown that what you once said, long ago, is true: "the great majority of mankind are satisfied with appearances, as though they were realities, and are often more influenced by the things that seem than by those that are."

Opening lead — two of spades.

Dear Mr. Becker: It was kind of you to publish the letter I sent recently, but my friends have been ribbing me ever since and they do not agree with my claim that I am the greatest bridge player in the world.

As stated in my letter, my sole weakness is that I make all these wonderful bids and plays only when I am asleep. I can't tell you what makes me such a bad player when I am awake, but I would have no difficulty whatever producing many witnesses — especially my partners — who would happily testify to my alarming inadequacies at the bridge table.

The pity of it is that I cannot prove I am the world's best, because all my triumphs are scored only when I am in the arms of Morpheus and there is no one to substantiate my claim. I suppose you won't believe this story either, but I will nevertheless tell you about a hand I played last night while fast asleep.

I opened a club and partner said a heart. Over East's spade bid I raised to two hearts. North bid four notrump Blackwood. I showed two aces, and over five notrump one king. My partner signed off with six hearts which, technically, closes the bidding — since the player who initiates Blackwood is theoretically captain of the ship.

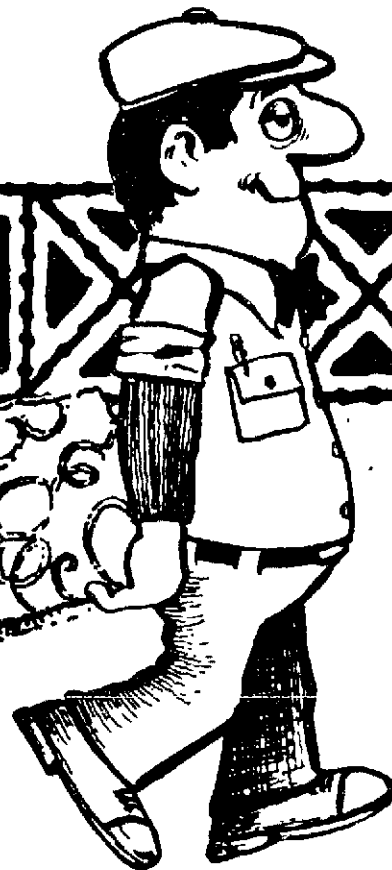

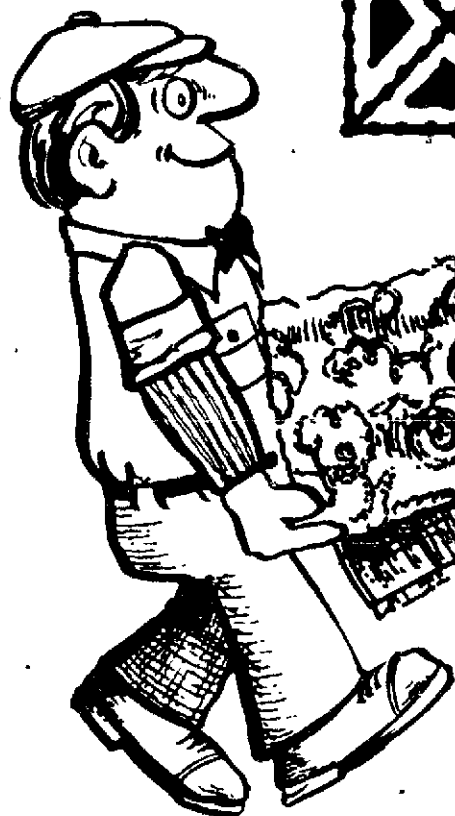

But I am captain in my dreams and decided to bid seven clubs! North was extremely baffled, but he had the good sense to pass. West led a spade and I took the ace, ruffed a spade, cashed the ace of clubs, came to my hand with a heart, drew trumps, and easily made the grand slam.

But note that although I made seven clubs my partner could not have made seven hearts. Cordially yours, John E. Doe.

House Holds Pay Raise To 5%

Washington (AP) — The House on Wednesday killed an 8.66% pay raise for members of Congress, federal employees, and others, thus upholding the 5% increase recommended by President Ford.

The raise, which went into effect immediately, goes to senators and representatives, federal judges, the vice president, cabinet members, top government officials, federal white collar workers and military personnel.

The cost of the 5% raise is estimated at $2.3 billion, compared with the $3.9 billion cost of the larger increase.

Ford had said the higher raise was inflationary.

The House voted 278 to 123 to kill a resolution that would have disapproved Ford's 5% recommendation. If the House had approved that resolution, the 8.66% raise would have gone into effect automatically because it was recommended under a 1970 federal pay law.

There was no debate on the issue. Previously the Senate and the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee had upheld Ford's recommendation.

Members of Congress made $42,500 a year before the raise; federal judges $36,000 to $42,500; associate justices of the Supreme Court and Cabinet members $60,000; the chief justice and the vice president $62,500.

The President's $200,000 salary is not involved in the legislation.

Congress included itself, the federal judges and other officials this year in the pay raise legislation which calls for periodic review and upgrading of salaries. The legislation previously benefited only lower scale federal employees.

Members of Congress, judges and the highest ranks of civil service as well as officials through the Cabinet and the vice president, have not had a raise since 1969.

Lower ranking employees have been receiving annual increases under a law designed to make their pay comparable to that of private industry.

Nebraskans Vote Yes,
Washington (AP) — Nebraska's Republican Reps. Charles Thone, Virginia Smith and John McCollister voted in favor of holding the pay raise to 5%.

Italy, Yugoslavia Settle 30-Year Border Dispute

By The Associated Press
Italy and Yugoslavia announced Wednesday they have settled their 30-year-old border dispute involving the port city of Trieste and areas along the Adriatic coast.

Under the agreement, Italy gives up all claims to Adriatic coastal territory now under Yugoslav administration in exchange for Yugoslav recognition of Trieste as Italian.

The accord, announced in both the Italian and Yugoslav parliaments, makes official a 1954 agreement hammered out in London after bloody anti-Yugoslav demonstrations erupted in Trieste. That agreement had never been officially approved before, and Italy had not given up its claim to territory on the Istrian peninsula.

The border dispute is a legacy of World War II when Yugoslav partisans, fighting on the victorious Allied side, occupied former Italian territory on the Adriatic coast and the city of Trieste.

After the war the Yugoslavs withdrew from Trieste and turned the city over to the British and Americans who later permitted Italy to take over the city's administration.

Ford Vetoes Tobacco Support Bill

Omaha (AP) — President Ford announced on Wednesday his veto of a bill that would have boosted tobacco price supports and eventually could have raised the price of a pack of cigarettes by a penny.

Ford returned the legislation to the House, where it originated, without his signature.

He said the legislation would add to federal spending and make American tobacco less competitive in the world market.

Coffee Maker Takes His Honor To Court

New York (AP) — A coffee vendor has filed a $5 million suit against a judge, contending the jurist hated his coffee so much he had the vendor taken into custody.

Thomas Zarcone said Judge William M. Perry and Deputy Sheriff James Windsor bought coffee from his stand near the Suffolk County Court House on April 30.

Shortly afterwards, according to the suit, Windsor and two other officers came back, placed handcuffs on him, and "advised" him that the judge wanted to see him.

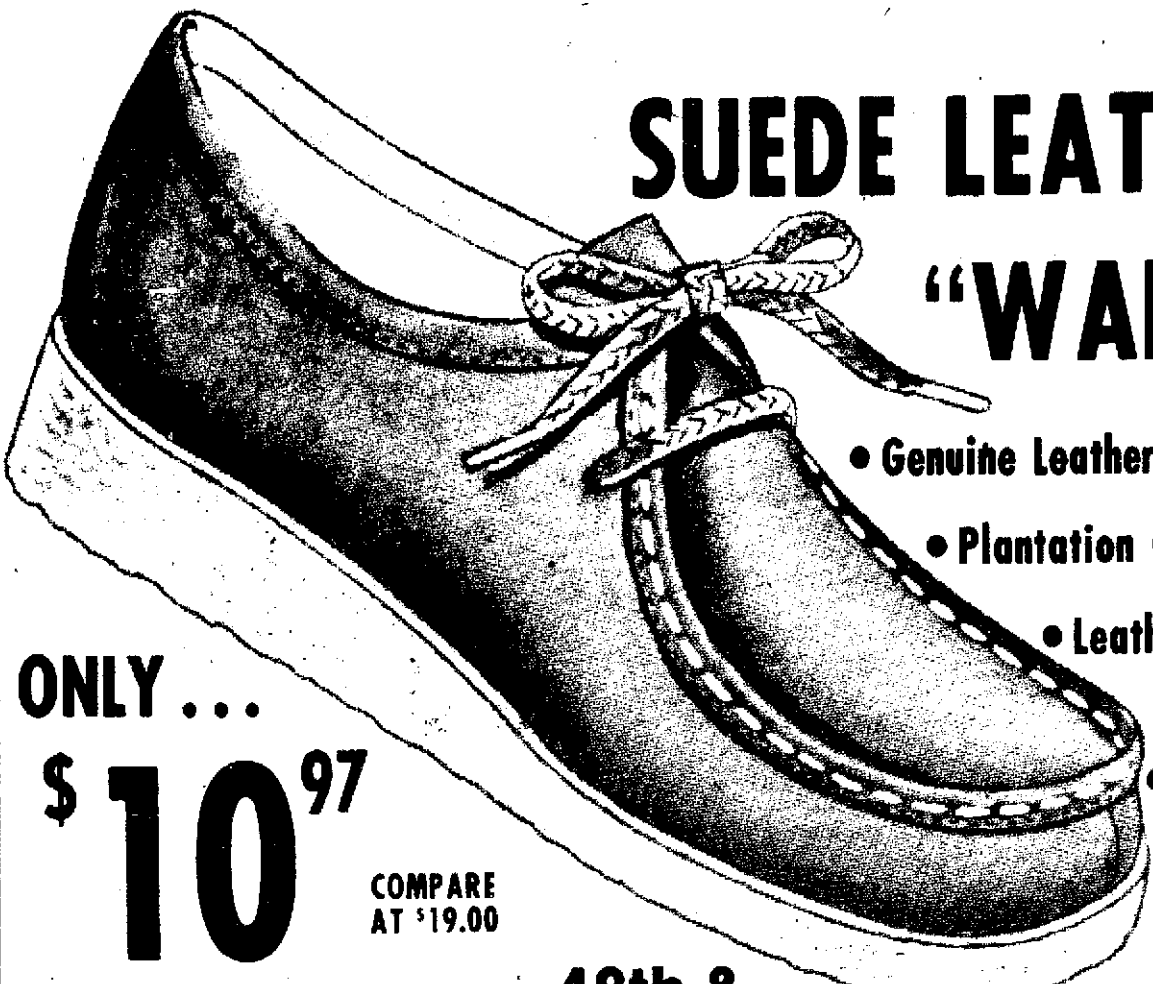

The suit said Zarcone was taken past a number of people and escorted to the judge's chambers where the judge stated he thought the coffee was terrible and watered down and remarked that he would have Zarcone's vendor's license taken away.

Zarcone said he was released and Windsor later returned to his stand and told him that the judge wanted to see him again. This time, however, he was not placed in handcuffs.

The federal court suit said the judge advised Zarcone he would forget the entire matter if he promised to make better coffee in the future.

House Holds Pay Raise To 5%

Washington (AP) — The House on Wednesday killed an 8.66% pay raise for members of Congress, federal employees, and others, thus upholding the 5% increase recommended by President Ford.

The raise, which went into effect immediately, goes to senators and representatives, federal judges, the vice president, cabinet members, top government officials, federal white collar workers and military personnel.

Cass County Resident Knows How To Make History Live

By TOM COOK

Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Plattsmouth — Holding the tools that were used to carve a wilderness into a state is a way of linking hands with the brave people who are Nebraska history.

That is what Alice Perry believes and why she is so excited about the recently dedicated Cass County Historical Society Museum Agricultural Building.

"Adolph Koubek used this hammer for many years before he died to crack black walnuts — he would get the goodies out and sell them in town," Mrs. Perry said.

"You can feel just where his hand went on the handle. It is a contact with the past."

Addition Is Second

This is the second addition to the museum, enlarging it from an original 2,448 sq. ft. in 1960 to a current 6,218 sq. ft.

And Mrs. Perry has been the driving force behind the museum as president of the society since the museum was dedicated.

"We had a meeting this week and the boys think we ought to extend on the east side of the porch on the Agricultural Building to house machinery displays — but I hope that will be it for awhile," she said.

The 73-year-old's eyes sparkle as she talks about the hundreds of items on display, and she steps sprightly over restraining ropes to get an item from an exhibit that fits into the yarn she is telling.

She Adds Personal Touch

"I enjoy it. Sure I'll talk to anybody who comes into the museum if they want to. I have many personal angles. I carry on something awful sometimes, but I enjoy it."

Mrs. Perry insists that displays be within "kid's eye level" and that there is enough room for them to sprawl out on the floor and dream to their heart's content.

"I think kids, as well as adults. That's really why we're here," Mrs. Perry says. "They (kids) love these displays especially the fossils and Indian arrowheads, because they can imagine finding them, and they are fascinated by stories of dinosaurs, so we put in little models for them to see."

The museum has an interesting collection of fossils, minerals and Indian relics in addition to a large display of items representing the county's history.

Children Tour

Mrs. Perry annually conducts tours and lectures for school children from Plattsmouth and surrounding communities.

"They study history and it's dry as dust, but they can come down here and see it. It helps school children to see what the early settlers had to do with — and without," she says.

The museum is open daily except Wednesday from 2-5 p.m. from April 10-Nov. 15, and museum receptionist Hermina Kubicka can even conduct tours in finger talk for deaf persons.

Intern To Stay

Marilyn Rishel, recent graduate of Central Connecticut State College, interned this summer at the museum and will be staying on, Mrs. Perry says.

"She met and married a local boy, and we think it's just fine," she said.

The Plattsmouth native was pleased in 1972 when county voters approved a one-tenth mill levy for the museum. The same proposal was defeated in 1960, and the museum has relied on donations.

She sees it as an indication that people are seeing the importance of maintaining their heritage.

Denney Rejects Dismissal Of Charges In ABP Case

Omaha (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Robert V. Denney Wednesday declined to dismiss 105 charges against the two top officials of American Beef Packers, Inc., Omaha.

Denney's ruling against ABP board chairman and president Frank R. West and ABP group vice president Robert E. Lee came as ABP attorneys were telling Federal Bankruptcy Judge David Crawford they were optimistic the firm's plan to pay creditors some $25 million would be approved by Oct. 20.

Figures supplied by Douglas Reno, an Omaha attorney representing ABP in its bankruptcy proceedings, and ABP showed as of last Wednesday the plan had been approved by more than 60% of the livestock and feed suppliers owed money by ABP.

Creditors Approve
The class III industrial creditors have approved their portion of the plan. Fifty per cent approval was required from the 1,158 creditors owed $9.6 million in class III. As of last Wednesday 58% of the creditors holding 58% of the claims owed had approved the plan.

The class III provisions provide industrial creditors with 50% of their money no later than March 31, 1976 with no further payment.

Reno said, however, "real problems" could develop unless negotiations are successful next week with the federal government on some $4 million the government claims ABP owes it in assessed income taxes from May 31, 1973 to May 31, 1974 when it recorded record sales and earnings.

Deposit Planned

ABP had originally planned to place $4 million on deposit Oct. 11 to pay the priority claims, such as attorney fees, state and other federal taxes, accounting and court fees. The additional $4 million federal claim would just about double that deposit requirement.

Crawford later set Oct. 15 as the hearing, date on the government's tax motion.

Back in criminal court, Denney also ruled that the government didn't have to supply West and Lee's defense attorneys with a witness list, meaning that the government can protect at least two key secret witnesses. The government must, however, supply the defense with the list of ABP agents, employees and officials who testified to the grand jury which handed down the indictments.

Trial Scheduled

The criminal trial is still scheduled for Oct. 14, unless the government decides to appeal an earlier Denney ruling denying the government's request for a jury trial.

West and Lee are charged with conspiracy, mail and wire fraud, and interstate transportation of stolen or otherwise fraudulently obtained property.

Crawford also continued indefinitely a hearing on a request by the states of Iowa and Nebraska and the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission. The three governmental units are requesting that a receiver with unlimited powers be appointed to administer ABP affairs.

In all, the federal government claims ABP owes it $5.8 million, and the Oct. 15 hearing will be held by Crawford to rule on an objection made Wednesday by Assistant U.S. Attorney Rod Anderson. Anderson said the government would object to confirmation of the creditors' arrangement plan until adequate provisions were made by ABP to settle its debts to the government.

Contact Maintained

Robert Guinan, an Omaha attorney representing the official creditors committee in the limited bankruptcy proceedings, said representatives of the committee were maintaining "day to day" contact with creditors who haven't yet voted on the plan.

Sellers of livestock and livestock feeds must approve the plan by at least 50% of both the dollar amount and by number of creditors.

Ninety-five per cent of the sellers of livestock, and their lenders, as per dollar amount, must release General Electric Credit Corp., ABP's largest secured creditor, and ABP from third party actions in the form of reorganizations.

Although the 50% provision has been met, the 95% requirement hasn't.

In the class I creditor category, of the 337 creditors, 277 have accepted the plan. They hold 83% of the 95% dollar amount required. Class II creditors total 554, and of that, 447 acceptances have been received accounting for 70% of the 95% requirement.

Class I sellers have claims of $5,000 and under, while class II sellers of livestock and livestock feeds have claims exceeding $5,000.

Parking Spaces At Ak-Sar-Ben Are Said Filled

Omaha (AP) — All 345 spaces reserved for UNO students and employees at the Ak-Sar-Ben parking lot have been filled.

UNO dropped a remote parking plan in 1972 after so few persons used the lot.

Users pay a $6 fee, or one-half the campus parking permit. UNO pays Ak-Sar-Ben $1 a year to lease the space.

Ak-Sar-Ben has offered UNO several more rows of spaces, according to Michael E. Kallman, an assistant vice chancellor.

He said he thinks the program is more popular this year because of improved bus service between Ak-Sar-Ben and the campus. The shuttle buses are run at 15-minute intervals by the university.

Exon will also discuss other agricultural problems in Nebraska and possible solutions to those problems.

Moving SeTech May Endanger Grants

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau
The possibility that the office of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) might be willing to forgive the indebtedness of a Fairbury dormitory has been ruled out by one of the agency's officials.

Jack Obbink of Omaha, area director of housing management, said his agency "doesn't have the authority to forgive anything." His denial refuted reports circulating in Fairbury that the $543,000 debt might be written off.

The 1969 bond issue was a principal issue in the tentative decision of the Southeast Community College area board to close the Fairbury campus and move to Beatrice's Pershing. Some board members have said it would be impossible to meet the $32,000 annual debt service on the half-full dorm while others have said the obligation could be met by expanding programs and intensifying recruitment.

In a telephone interview, Obbink said he "has not been apprised" of the board's intent regarding the dorm should the campus move to Beatrice. But he suggested that the building should not be abandoned without considerable deliberation.

"I would think the board members would have serious reservations," Obbink said. "At least they should consider that an abandonment might affect any future grants for their schools."

Obbink noted that the "legitimate debt" was one which the 15-county SeTech area assumed when it absorbed the Fairbury College district two years ago. He pointed out that "this is not a grant, but a definite debt owed under a mortgage."

On another issue of the hotly disputed proposal to change campuses, the administrator of Educational Service Unit

No. 5 confirmed that his group is interested in renting one of Pershing's three dormitories. Ivan Stern said the Beatrice-based operation would like to consolidate its three Beatrice sites and one in Harbine.

The latter, provided rent-free by Harbine, is a former public school now used for mentally handicapped children. In Beatrice, the ESU rents offices and a media center for $6,000 annually. A new childhood development program at Martin Luther Home may require $11,000 in rent, though this is still under negotiation.

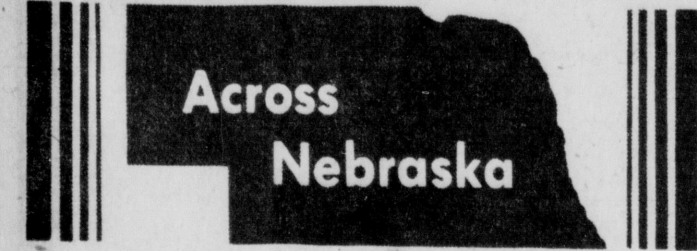

Stern said no rental figure has been mentioned for Pershing in "informal discussions" with SeTech board member Gary Carstens of Beatrice. But $1.50 per square foot plus utilities had been proposed in February by the University of Nebraska Foundation, which has since offered Pershing to SeTech.

On this basis, records show the annual rental would be $46,650 for the 31,000-square foot structure, not including utilities. However, Stern said he had told the foundation that "even $1 per square foot would be high in Beatrice."

"Anyway, we would have to weigh any rent proposal very carefully against other needs of our district," he said.

In a related matter, Gov. J. James Exon said he was neither for nor against the proposed acquisition of Pershing by SeTech. In a letter printed in the Fairbury Journal-News as a follow-up to one he previously had written to the paper, Exon said the decision should be up to the board.

The second letter apparently represents a change in stance. His first, accusing the University Foundation of making a mistake in accepting the college, added that "I'd just as soon let the foundation be stuck with it for awhile."

Margaret Chase Smith Due At Dana
Blair (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine and her associate, Maj. Gen. William Lewis, will be in residence at Dana College as Woodrow Wilson Visiting Fellows the week of Nov. 9. Mrs. Smith, who represented her state for more than 32 years in Washington, will talk to classes and will meet with students and faculty members for informal discussions. She also is scheduled for a public lecture while at Dana.

Miss Austin Will Study In Egypt
Kearney (AP) — Peg Austin, a 1970 graduate of the Kearney State College journalism program, has been awarded a Rotary scholarship for one year's study at Cairo University in Egypt. Miss Austin will spend three months of intensive language study before beginning journalism and Middle Eastern studies at the university. Currently employed in the public relations office at the University of Nebraska-Omaha, Miss Austin is the daughter of Mrs. Jules Austin of Omaha.

Case Referred To Judicial Commission
Grand Island (UPI) — Hall County Attorney Sam Grimminger has referred an incident involving a Grand Island gambling arrest at the Eagles Club to the Commission of Judicial Qualifications in Lincoln. Charges have been filed in District Court against Ben Cornelius, manager of the club. Grimminger said Hall County Judge Edward Dixon got into an argument at the club Friday night about a card game, left the premises and ordered the sheriff's department and State Liquor Commission to investigate gambling at the club. "There are questions about Judge Dixon's motives and involvement relations to the actions that were taken," Grimminger said.

Physicians' Assistants Elect Frary
Omaha (AP) — Tim Frary has been elected 1975 president of the newly-formed Nebraska Academy of Physicians' Assistants. Named president-elect was Mike Grutch. Frary is connected with the PA program at the University of Nebraska Medical Center and Grutch is a graduate of the program. The Nebraska Academy of Physicians' Assistants, which was started primarily through the work of Frary, will act as a service and continuing education organization for the Nebraska physicians' assistants.

Dams Said Not The Answer To Omaha Flood Protection

Omaha (AP) — The mayor of Rapid City, S.D., during that city's 1972 flood recommended Tuesday night that no large dams be built to protect metropolitan Omaha from flooding.

Don Barnett said the money should be spent instead to remove homes and businesses from the Papillion Creek's flood plain.

Barnett spoke at a public hearing on the environmental impact of the revised Papio flood control and recreation project.

Plain Evacuated
He said Rapid City chose flood plain evacuation instead of a dam and is a safer community as a result. He said no one lives in the flood plain and the land is used for a variety of outdoor recreation.

About 320 persons attended the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers hearing at Boys Town. All 17 who spoke opposed the project.

Barnett, now a partner in a shopping center in Rapid City, appeared as a paid consultant to the Papio Valley Preservation Assn., a leading group against the dams.

He said that immediately after the flood which killed 239 persons, with four others still listed as missing, Rapid City residents talked of building a huge dam above the city to harness Rapid Creek.

Dam Rejected
He said there already was a large reservoir 10 miles above Rapid City and above where the flood-producing rain fell, and the answer was to clear out 1,100 homes and 157 businesses rather than build another dam for protection.

Barnett said the federal government has spent about $160 million on the effort so far and the area now is laced with recreational facilities.

By having a dam 10 miles above town, Barnett said, Rapid City residents were "lulled into a false sense of security; we fell asleep and let people move into the flood plain."

He said the same situation likely would occur in Omaha if large dams were built.

Barnett said Omaha appears to have a good flood plain zoning ordinance, but once dams were built city officials would have difficulty keeping developers from moving into flood plains below the dams.

Other speakers criticized proposed Dam 3A, which the corps recommended as a substitute for proposed Dams No. 1 through 9.

Dam Criticized
They said the dam would damage the village of Washington, drive persons off their land, encourage urban sprawl, encourage development in the flood plain and keep rescue squads busy with drownings and other incidents on the lake.

Dick Gorton, chief of the environmental analysis branch of the corps' Omaha District, said the testimony would be forwarded to officials in Washington for use in making final decisions on the project.

Beatrice State Home Has 3 Typhoid Cases

Omaha (AP) — Three cases of typhoid fever have now been found among residents of the Beatrice State Home, but indications are the disease is not widespread there, a Nebraska Health Dept. official said Tuesday.

The first case was reported Sept. 18. The patient, a 30-year-old man, is at the University of Nebraska Medical Center in Omaha in satisfactory condition.

Dr. Paul Stoesz, director of the health department's disease control division, said an investigation at the home has found two other persons who are infected, but who have not developed symptoms.

They are under treatment in the home's hospital unit.

All cases thus far have been among persons living in one building, Dr. Stoesz said. He said testing on some residents of that building has not been completed.

Stoesz said there is no evidence thus far that residents in any other building are affected.

The health investigators also will check employees who have any connection with the building where the cases have occurred.

Stoesz said the source of the disease has not been found. He said the home's water, food and sanitary systems have been inspected and no problem was found.

The families of the three affected residents also will be checked by health officials, Stoesz said.

He said restrictions on home visitations have been lifted except for residents living in the building where the typhoid fever has occurred.

Omaha Mishap Injuries Claim Elkhorn Man

Omaha (AP) — David R. Paasch, 22, Rt. 1, Elkhorn, died Tuesday night in an Omaha hospital of injuries suffered in a two-car crash at 96th and L Sts. in Omaha last Saturday, a hospital spokesman said.

Patrick McQuillan, 20, of Omaha was killed in the accident.

HEW Rejects Plan To Release Welfare Recipient's Information

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Persons applying for food stamps or some other form of public welfare soon may have to do some of the footwork for determining their own eligibility.

State Welfare Director Al Ihms said Wednesday the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) has rejected the state's proposal for complying with the 1974 federal privacy act.

The privacy act, signed last Dec. 31 by President Gerald Ford and effective Sept. 27, forbids federal agencies to release information about an individual without the individual's written consent.

State welfare officials rely on Social Security Administration data to determine income eligibility of potential recipients. However, the privacy act applies the cloak of secrecy to that data.

Ihms said he and Roger Flaskerud, local Social Security manager, had agreed that a slip signed by a welfare applicant authorizing release of income information for eligibility purposes only would comply with the privacy act.

However, in an interview Wednesday, Ihms said HEW has rejected his and Flaskerud's suggestion without suggesting how to comply with the law.

"Unless this is resolved," Ihms said, "We're going to have to ask them (the potential recipients) to go to Social Security and get the information."

"That would be a real nuisance for them," Ihms said, "but it would be hardest on people in nursing homes who are receiving welfare and can't get out."

He said most welfare programs are affected by the ruling, including food stamps, Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) and aid to the aged, blind and disabled.

Conceivably, the privacy act will also affect release of disability information, he added.

Ihms said he and Flaskerud assumed up until Thursday that their suggestion would meet with HEW approval. The agreement, he said, would have allowed the Welfare Department to get the information it needed while protecting individual privacy.

"This is typical of federal bureaucracy," he said. "The federal government continues to set deadlines for state and local agencies to meet, but fails to provide guidelines until after the deadlines have passed."

"Accountability, deadlines and administrative efficiency seem to be game rules for the worker on the firing line but not for the policymakers in Washington."

New Month Starts With Record Dip

Perfect fall weather — fair skies, light winds and cool to mild temperatures — reigned over Nebraska Wednesday.

A frosty night resulted in a record low temperature of 31 degrees in Lincoln Wednesday morning, one degree below the old low mark for Oct. 1, set in 1886.

North Platte and Sidney shared the state's lowest reading of 24 degrees.

By afternoon, the mercury rose into the 60s and low 70s throughout the state.

September was a dry month in Lincoln with only 1.53 inches of rainfall, compared to a normal amount of 2.92 inches. Thus far this year Lincoln has recorded 17.15 inches of moisture, 6.38 inches below normal.

A warming trend is forecast for Nebraska Thursday and Friday with highs Thursday near 70 in the east to mid to upper 70s in the west.

Meetings To Organize Health Systems Set

Kearney (AP). — A 32-person committee has begun a series of meetings to organize a 71-county health systems area (HSA) in outstate Nebraska.

The committee was formed as a result of the Health Planning Act signed by President Ford earlier this year.

The new law consolidates federal health planning and financing programs currently funneled through several different agencies.

Nebraska will have three HSAs, according to a ruling by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Lincoln and 17 southeastern counties comprise one; Omaha with four Nebraska and 11 Iowa counties comprises the second; and the remaining Nebraska counties make up the third.

Currently the state is divided into six areas under comprehensive health planning laws. Under the new law, the boundaries of the Omaha and Lincoln areas will remain the same with the other four outstate areas to be combined into the third HSA.

Clarence Cory, hospital administrator from Columbus, was elected chairman of the committee.

Vice chairman is Les Seiler, a Hastings attorney, and Richard Gamel, hospital administrator from Chadron, was named secretary-treasurer.

The committee adopted a statement of purpose and indicated support for a plan that would organize the new HSA as a non-profit corporation with sub-councils in each of the four current areas.

It also agreed to add representatives of Indians within the area and from the regional advisory group of the Nebraska Regional Medical Program.

The next meeting has been set for North Platte Oct. 13.

The group voted to investigate possible sources of financing as members are now paying for their own travel.

The new HSAs will be responsible for approving local requests for federal health funds before conducting long-range planning and maintaining health care standards in the area, the group was told.

Trash Man Assaulted, Thrown Into Truck's Garbage Crusher

A garbage man told police that a group of men hit him in the stomach and chest and threw him into his garbage truck crusher, according to police reports.

Robert H. Genetti, 23, of 4240 S. 49th, told police he was loading his garbage truck at the rear of King Dollar, 839 N. 27th, shortly after 7 a.m. Tuesday when he was grabbed by his head from behind.

He said several men struck him in the stomach and chest. He told police about six to 10 blacks were involved.

After he was thrown in the garbage truck crusher, the mechanism was set in motion, Genetti told police, but he was able to escape.

HEW Rejects Plan To Release Welfare Recipient's Information

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Persons applying for food stamps or some other form of public welfare soon may have to do some of the footwork for determining their own eligibility.

State Welfare Director Al Ihms said Wednesday the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) has rejected the state's proposal for complying with the 1974 federal privacy act.

The privacy act, signed last Dec. 31 by President Gerald Ford and effective Sept. 27, forbids federal agencies to release information about an individual

State welfare officials rely on Social Security Administration data to determine income eligibility of potential recipients. However, the privacy act applies the cloak of secrecy to that data.

Ihms said he and Roger Flakerud, local Social Security manager, had agreed that a slip signed by a welfare applicant authorizing release of income information for eligibility purposes only would comply with the privacy act.

However, in an interview Wednesday, Ihms said HEW has rejected his and Flakerud's suggestion without suggesting Kearney (AP). — A 32-person committee has begun a series of meetings to organize a 71-county health systems area (HSA) in outstate Nebraska.

The committee was formed as a result of the Health Planning Act signed by President Ford earlier this year.

The new law consolidates federal health planning and financing programs currently funneled through several different agencies.

Colombian Physician Is Denied Return Visa

Osceola (AP) — Dr. Carlos Nossa apparently failed in his bid to return to the United States from Bogota, Colombia.

He had been threatened with deportation for alleged violations with his visa concerning a specified medical post in Mississippi.

Dr. Clarence Davis of Osceola, who sponsored Dr. Nossa, said he had received a telegram last week from Dr. Nossa saying he and his family had been denied visas to return to the United States.

Davis said a State Department spokesman said the visa was denied because Nossa made certain statements in his original application when he came to the U.S.

Davis said Nossa had planned to return to this country in two weeks after the formality of reapplying had been completed. Davis said all of Nossa's possessions are still at Osceola and his car is parked at Eppley Airfield in Omaha.

Dr. Davis said Sen. Carl Curtis' office and Rep. Virginia Smith of Nebraska will try to obtain an investigation through the assistant secretary of state and attorney general's office on what happened.

But, Davis said, "We have lost the ballgame" on getting the doctor back to Osceola.

Lincoln Doctor Elected To Post In Trauma Group

Dr. Robert Gillespie of Lincoln has been elected treasurer of the American Association for the Surgery of Trauma at a meeting in Scottsdale, Ariz.

The 35-year-old organization is concerned with care problems for people who have suffered injuries.

Gillespie has been a Lincoln surgeon since 1957. He has been chairman of the Nebraska Committee on Trauma of the American College of Surgeons, president of the Nebraska College of Surgeons and vice chairman of the house of delegates of the American Trauma Society.

Federal Grant To Assist Poor In Western Nebraska

As many as 80 poor families in western Nebraska will get their homes winterized this fall under a $36,000 federal grant to the State Technical Assistance Agency.

In addition, low-income elderly living in a 15-county area surrounding North Platte will get noon meals through another grant for $100,000.

Gov. J. James Exon announced Wednesday that the state had received the funds.

George Woods, director of the Technical Assistance Agency, said such services presently are limited in the 15 counties, unlike eastern portions of the state.

To qualify for the insulation program, Woods said the person or family in question must meet

Gunman Robs UNO Center

Omaha (AP) — The University of Nebraska at Omaha student center was robbed of about $1,800 Tuesday night.

Sgt. Robert Litsche said a man who had a gun in his belt handed the cashier a note, saying, "This is a robbery. Give me all your money or you're dead."

University officials told police the money was kept on hand for cashing checks.

Film Family Affair

Hollywood (UPI) — Michael Anderson Jr. has a featured role in "Logan's Run" which Anderson Sr. is directing at MGM.

Exon Considering Refugee Pact

Gov. J. James Exon is considering signing an agreement with the federal government that would place responsibility for resettling Vietnamese refugees with the state.

The resettlement effort has been handled primarily by volunteer groups who have placed around 700 refugees in Nebraska.

Even if the proposed agreement received this week is approved by the state attorney general, "it doesn't mean we'll do it," said Exon's administrative aide, Norman Otto.

Otto said they want to make sure there is sufficient community support before signing.

He said the agreement, which allows states to choose 95 per cent of the individuals and lets the federal government place the remaining five per cent, "might mean we might have people we could not place."

He said, "We do not want to settle refugees that would end up improperly placed. We don't want them to end up on welfare."

Under congressional authority, each refugee may receive $500, but problems have developed in the distribution of that money to volunteer groups.

Under the contract, the state would handle the money and would act as a liaison between the federal government and refugees. Otto said he hopes they will make a decision by the end of the week.

College bookstores and newspaper travel columns are musts for travel-minded senior citizens, many of whom will be contemplating fall and winter travel when fares are lower.
Anyone can use the tips offered in some of the paperback "Student Travel Guidebooks," which are to be found in a college bookstore.
They give hints about economical food and lodgings, special fares and off-season room rates, and they have many miscellaneous hints that make traveling simpler and safer.
The newspaper travel columns likewise abound with hints on off-beat and inexpensive places to go and stay, as well as very up-to-the minute information about special fares and rates.
One piece of information for seniors and others who will be flying anywhere after Sept. 21 is this; the airlines, starting on that date will require that every piece of checked baggage be identified with the owner's name on the outside.

The airlines will provide free I.D. labels if you do not have your own tag on each piece of luggage.
This new luggage-identification requirement should eliminate the confusion and mix-up of luggage at terminal carousels. It will also make it easier for airlines to trace lost or misdirected pieces of baggage.

Another senior freebee that I want to bring to the attention of my readers may be available where you live, and if it is, now is the time to find out.
Give your local public school district office a call. Find out what their policy is on free admission for senior citizens to high school and junior high athletic contests and other special events.

Many school districts issue free passes to various school activities to all persons over a certain age, usually 65.
If your school district does not have this policy of free passes, perhaps you can suggest it to them or even carry the suggestion to the school board and urge affirmative action on this request.
It is a good way for the school district to create goodwill between itself and its senior citizens, and it is a fine way for interested senior citizens to see football games, track meets, swim meets, baseball games, etc., throughout the year.

It's not even inconceivable that an older man or woman might find an opportunity for volunteer work with one of the teams or drama or music groups whose events they have attended.
Many oldsters have talents that they could contribute to school students, and this is another way to bridge the generation gap and at the same time open up new avenues of activity for older citizens.

A little conversation makes life a lot easier...

Effective Communication among family or friends can work wonders. It's not only relaxing, it can also provide a feeling of closeness, a sense of belonging. Does small talk leave you with such a feeling or do you find yourself avoiding it?

Do you find yourself withdrawing from conversation because it's difficult to both hear and understand? This may be a symptom of a hearing problem, and since a hearing loss may be painless, you may not even be aware of the reason for your actions.

Ex-RAF Pilot Gets 9 Years For Sales Try

Mold, Wales (UPI) — A court Tuesday sentenced Alastair Steadman, 31, a former Royal Air Force bomber pilot, to nine years imprisonment for trying to sell British nuclear war secrets to the Soviet Embassy in London. The jury returned "guilty" verdicts on four charges after a seven-day trial.

The prosecution charged that Steadman visited the Soviet Embassy and tried to sell secrets of Britain's nuclear V-bomber force to the Russians. Steadman denied the charges.

The prosecution said Steadman had memorized top secret information about war plans. He told police he was ready to sell any information to the Soviets "if the price was right."

Mail Lost? Don't Despair—Complain

If the birthday card your mother mailed three months ago still hasn't arrived, complain. And put it in writing.

Disgruntled postal customers can now fill out a consumer service card, which identifies a problem and ensures a response, said Lincoln Postmaster L. G. Moore. The postage-free card is available from letter carriers and all local post offices, he added.

The original card should be mailed to Postal Service headquarters in Washington, D.C., for cataloging and analysis. A carbon copy should be mailed to Moore or to a station superintendent.

Duane Olson, customer services director, said complaint cards will be computerized in Washington, D.C. to help spot problem areas and trends.

Complaints not resolved within 30 days will be brought to Postmaster Moore's attention by headquarters personnel.

Complaining customers may also receive a call from the postmaster general's staff to see if their complaints were resolved satisfactorily.

"We haven't ignored complaints in the past," Moore said, estimating that between 50 and 75 complaints are received every month by Lincoln postal representatives and of those "maybe 50%" are resolved.

Moore said the number of complaints has increased since the reorganization of the Postal Service in 1971, when machines were installed to sort and direct mail.

Before, six or eight people may have handled a single letter, providing opportunities to correct a mistake, he said. But now if a letter is missorted on first handling, it will likely arrive at the wrong destination before the mistake is caught.

Moore said most gripes are for delayed mail, misdelivery and change-of-address delays.

"We are sort of a complaining nation," he remarked. "I'm sure the Postal Service has been on the receiving end of its share."

Denver Police Still Checking Didier Death

Denver (AP) — Denver police say their investigation of the shooting death of an Aurora man is continuing.

Joseph D. Didier, formerly of Sidney, Neb., was found dead in the front seat of a car parked in a lot in downtown Denver Sept. 17.

Police said Didier was shot in the chest and had apparently been dead for one or two days when he was found. Police said a spent shell was found at the scene but no weapon was found.

Slots Pay Off

San Juan, P.R. (UPI)—Puerto Rico's new slot machines in the hotel casinos earned a gross of $2,398,000 during their first six months, and a net of $1,642,150, the Government Tourism Development Co. reported.

State Bar Gets Many Complaints

"Complaints about lawyers...continue to be received at a volume that is far too great," Nebraska Chief Justice Paul White told delegates at the Nebraska State Bar Association's (NSBA) annual meeting Wednesday in Lincoln.

White said the bar should do more than police the practice of law, more than punish wrongdoers. "We must prevent."

"There is no question that all of us are held responsible by the public for the failings of a few," the chief justice said.

Robert Blair, the state bar's counsel for discipline, said several disbarments and suspensions have occurred from numerous investigations during the past 18 months.

Since January of 1974, a total of 265 complaints against Nebraska lawyers have been filed with his office, Blair said. Of those, 101 have been taken care of.

Blair told delegates the State Supreme Court this month approved a $25 assessment from each NSBA member to finance disciplinary operations.

In other business, the NSBA House of Delegates, the bar's governing body, passed a resolution calling for a vote on whether or not continuing legal education should be required for attorneys.

Ballots will be sent to all active members, judges and law college faculty in the state.

The plan would take effect Jan. 1, 1977. All active members, judges and law college faculty would be required to take six hours of continuing legal education courses in 1977; 12 hours in 1978 and 15 hours in subsequent years.

Omahan To Head NSBA

Omaha attorney John E. North Wednesday was chosen chairman-elect of the Nebraska State Bar Association (NSBA) House of Delegates, the bar's governing body.

Outgoing chairman is Richard A. Knudsen of Lincoln, who will turn the chairmanship over Friday to Fremont attorney George E. Svoboda, chairman-elect the past two years.

North, 50, has been practicing law in Nebraska for 27 years. He is with the firm of McGrath, North, O'Malley, Kratz, Dwyer, O'Leary and Martin, P.C. of Omaha.

He received his LLM with distinction from Duke University in 1941 and his LLB from Creighton University in 1948.

He is a member of the Nebraska Bar Commission, which administers the state bar exam, and is a fellow in the American College of Trial Lawyers.

Since January of 1974, a total of 265 complaints against Nebraska lawyers have been filed with his office, Blair said. Of those, 101 have been taken care of.

Blair told delegates the State Supreme Court this month approved a $25 assessment from each NSBA member to finance disciplinary operations.

In other business, the NSBA House of Delegates, the bar's governing body, passed a resolution calling for a vote on whether or not continuing legal education should be required for attorneys.

Ballots will be sent to all active members, judges and law college faculty in the state.

The plan would take effect Jan. 1, 1977. All active members, judges and law college faculty would be required to take six hours of continuing legal education courses in 1977; 12 hours in 1978 and 15 hours in subsequent years.

Omahan To Head NSBA

Omaha attorney John E. North Wednesday was chosen chairman-elect of the Nebraska State Bar Association (NSBA) House of Delegates, the bar's governing body.

Outgoing chairman is Richard A. Knudsen of Lincoln, who will turn the chairmanship over Friday to Fremont attorney George E. Svoboda, chairman-elect the past two years.

North, 50, has been practicing law in Nebraska for 27 years. He is with the firm of McGrath, North, O'Malley, Kratz, Dwyer, O'Leary and Martin, P.C. of Omaha.

He received his LLM with distinction from Duke University in 1941 and his LLB from Creighton University in 1948.

He is a member of the Nebraska Bar Commission, which administers the state bar exam, and is a fellow in the American College of Trial Lawyers.

Upgrading Of Service To Begin Oct. 11

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service announced Wednesday that its plan to upgrade first class letter mail service to a level equal to or better than airmail will go into effect Oct. 11.

The plan originally was scheduled to go into effect Aug. 1 but was delayed indefinitely in July because the Postal Service did not know what the new rates for first class and airmail would be.

That roadblock was removed on Sept. 19 when the Postal Service filed for higher rates. Those new rates, which will go into effect after Christmas, call for increasing the cost of first class postage stamps from the current 10 cents to 13 cents.

The new plan involves changes in operating and dispatch procedures that will result in 95 per cent of all first-class mail being programmed for next day or second-day delivery, the Postal Service says.

Although airmail stamps no longer will be needed for first class letters, some parcels still will require airmail stamps in order to be shipped by plane, a spokesman said.

'Stud' Scavella Leads Impressive Hurricane Defense

Just Call Him "The Stud"

Miami's Hurricanes, who play Nebraska Saturday in Memorial Stadium, are led defensively by end Steadman Scavella, a 6-2, 230-pound senior who impressed Husker scout Dick Beechner as he watched the 20-17 Oklahoma victory last Friday.

"Miami has some outstanding defensive personnel," Beechner said. "But probably the best was Steadman Scavella. You might call him a stud. He came across the line and slapped the ball out of the air on an option play that put the Sooners in very poor field position at their own one."

Scavella, UM's defensive captain, got his first start against Oklahoma in 1973 as the Hurricanes again scared the daylight out of the Sooners before losing 24-20. That year he was in on 45 tackles and recovered a fumble.

Last season, he accumulated 56 tackles and again recovered a fumble. He also tied for the team lead in quarterback "sacks."

Scavella is agile and quick and always aggressive. His play last year earned him the "most dedicated player of the year" award among the Hurricanes.

For his play last week against OU, he has been named by Sports Illustrated as the top defensive player of the week.

ticket to Memorial Stadium, you might consider flying to Miami. There will be no telecast here.

George Gallet, Miami publicist, said that because of the half-million Cubans living in the metropolitan Miami area, play-by-play of the game will be carried by a Spanish-speaking radio station as well as in English on another station.

The telecast will give Husker fans living in the Miami area a rare chance to see their favorites on the tube this season. It is estimated that more than 2-million people reside in Dade and nearby Broward county.

Miami will arrive just after Noon Friday and plans to workout in Memorial Stadium at 1:45 p.m. The squad will be quartered at the Holiday Inn Northeast.

Carl Selmer, the former Husker assistant who now is Miami head coach, became the first losing coach to be named coach of the week by United Press International. His selection came after his five TD underdog club came within three points of No. 1 Oklahoma.

Fred "Game Ball" Rothenberg, the Associated Press picker, is going with the Huskers Saturday. He wrote: "Miami survived hurricane Oklahoma, losing gamely 20-17, but this is another week and another storm. The rampaging Cornhuskers win in a breeze . . . Nebraska 38, Miami 7."

Herschel Nissenon, also an AP picker, says: "Can the Hurricanes, coached by long-time Nebraska aide Carl Selmer, give the Cornhuskers as tough a battle as they gave Oklahoma? Uh-Uh . . . Nebraska 28-7."

Catching Up On Football

Selmer had to leave son Brian, a placekicker for Miami, off the 48-man travel squad. Brian kicks behind Chris Dennis, who booted a 53-yard field goal against Oklahoma.

Husker quarterback Terry Luck's passing has been effective enough to get him on the list of top signal-callers in this week's NCAA Statistics Service. He has hit 29 of 51 for a .569 average and 302 yards. He has averaged 9.7 completions a game and hit for five TDs.

Quote of the day: Miami quarterback Kary Baker said: "After Oklahoma, we're still 0-2 in the record book, not 9-1 and almost."

Hurricane assistant Steve Endicott said: "All we did by playing Oklahoma the way we did was to get Nebraska's heads screwed back on. I'm sure the picnic atmosphere about the game is no longer prevalent. They know Oklahoma is not capable of being that flat to let a poor team play them to 20-17."

THE LINCOLN STAR

Sports

Nebraska's 37-point scoring average ranks seventh in the nation and the Husker defense against scoring (seven points a game) is tied for eighth best. NU is second in both total defense and rushing defense with averages of 154.3 and 68.0, respectively.

This isn't football, but it answers a question several phone callers had Wednesday to The Star's sports desk: Muhammad Ali's victory in the world championship bout with Joe Frazier was a 14-round technical knockout.

Following the 14th round, Frazier's trainer, Eddie Futch, threw in the towel and the referee halted the fight. Since the bout was held under World Boxing Association regulations, Ali was credited with a 14th round knockout since the bell had not yet rung for the 15th round. Had it rung, it would have gone into the books as a 15th round knockout.

So, if you had the 15th in the office pool, you lose.

August Makes Things Happen

By BOB OWENS

Star Sports Editor

Miami split end Phil August is the type of athlete who seems to make things happen when the football is thrown his way. Unfortunately for him, he made the wrong thing happen a year ago at picture day for the Hurricanes. August was asked by a photographer to "pose" an action shot, a normal request at photo day. When August made his move for the cameraman, he slipped and suffered a knee injury that required surgery and caused him to miss the first half of the 1974 season.

As a freshman two years ago, August caught an 11-yard first down pass to spark Miami's first scoring drive in the upset victory over then No. 1-ranked Texas. He caught another one for 15 yards later in the drive and Miami went on to a 20-15 victory over the Longhorns.

What makes that feat so rare is that it was the season opener for the 6-3, 197-pounder from Belle Rose, La., who is now called "The Louisiana Cyclone."

He went on to snare 15 passes for 314 yards and a pair of touchdowns in his rookie season, including a 71-yard TD against Houston and a 29-yard score against rival Florida.

Forced to sit out the first six games last season, August returned to face Notre Dame and showed he had lost none of his "big-play" making ability. He caught a touchdown pass the first time he got his hands on the ball in a 38-7 loss to the Irish.

Later last season against Florida State, he took another pass and raced 80 yards for a touchdown.

Going into this season, August, who was a tight end until last spring, had caught 21 passes and scored four touchdowns. Including the first two games this fall, August' statistics show 26 receptions for 518 yards for just short of a 20-yards-per-catch average.

August showed he was going to fit in at split end when during the spring game he caught 11 passes.

His backup, Mike Adams, also has game-breaking ability. It was his catch for 72 yards with 7:09 to play against Oklahoma that pulled the Hurricanes within three points of the Sooners.

"August has great speed and good moves," Miami publicist George Gallet said Wednesday. "He has outstanding concentration and glue-like hands."

Nebraska continued its preparations for Saturday's Miami invasion by going through a workout in pads Wednesday afternoon.

Bonness Ready

Center Rik Bonness, who has been bothered by a pulled hamstring muscle, was able to go through the entire workout and coach Tom Osborne expects him to be available for the game.

Percy Eichelberger has been working as backup at both linebacker positions and now is considered the No. 2 Husker backer behind Clete Pillen and James Wightman.

Nebraska ticket manager Jim Pittenger said additional tickets for the Husker invasion of Stillwater, Okla., Oct. 18 to face Oklahoma State, now are available.

They're being sold over the counter at the NU ticket office in the South Stadium. Mail orders at $7.25 plus 50 cents handling can be mailed to the ticket office, Room 117, South Stadium, Lincoln, 68508.

Small Town Life Sparks Former Lincoln Pair

A year ago, Tony Boeve was attending Lincoln High and struggling with his studies. At the same time, George Thomas was going to Lincoln East and experiencing similar scholastic problems.

Today, the two are starters on Adams' football team, the Sunday Journal and Star's No. 1-rated eight-man outfit.

Small town life has given each regenerative powers. They're interested, involved, competing. Grades are more important now. They'll work to get them.

"Athletics may not be a cure-all for everyone," Adams coach Ken Cook says. "But it sure seems to have made a difference for these two."

back up. Of course, we like to think it's because we're able to give them a little more patience and individualized attention."

In addition to the senior pair's scholastic salvation, they're prospering for Adams' undefeated Hornets.

Two-Way Starters

Boeve (6-1, 190) is a starter at halfback and defensive end. He's averaging 80 yards rushing per game. Thomas (6-0, 185) also is starting both ways at guard.

"I don't know if they would have been able to cut it in the bigger schools," Cook acknowledges. "Boeve might have been in there."

Boeve's family used to live in Sterling, Adams' virtual next-door neighbor. They moved to Adams last February and his mother commutes to Lincoln for work.

Thomas moved to Adams last January when his parents bought the meatpacking locker.

"Neither was eligible to compete for us second semester last year because of grades," Cook notes. "But they worked out in track, got their grades back up and were able to start their senior year on the right foot."

Cook admits the two Lincoln imports created some rumors. "People in some other towns thought we were recruiting," he says.

Not Recruited

"Of course, we didn't," he adds. "They came to us. We weren't going to turn them away. They've become real enthusiastic members of the team."

"They both realize it isn't a case where we couldn't win without them," Cook says. "They're making a contribution, but everyone else is, too."

Nevertheless, the Lincoln transfers have been welcome additions. "We're looking for a couple of seven-footers for basketball," jokes Cook. "Think we ought to put an ad in the paper?"

While Adams tunes up for next week's showdown against unbeaten Table Rock with a Friday home game against Nehawka, here's this weekend's matchups involving Lincoln teams.

Lincoln Southeast (2-2) v. Lincoln

High (0-4), Friday night, Seacrest Field — The Knights have solved their problems and are rolling in high gear.

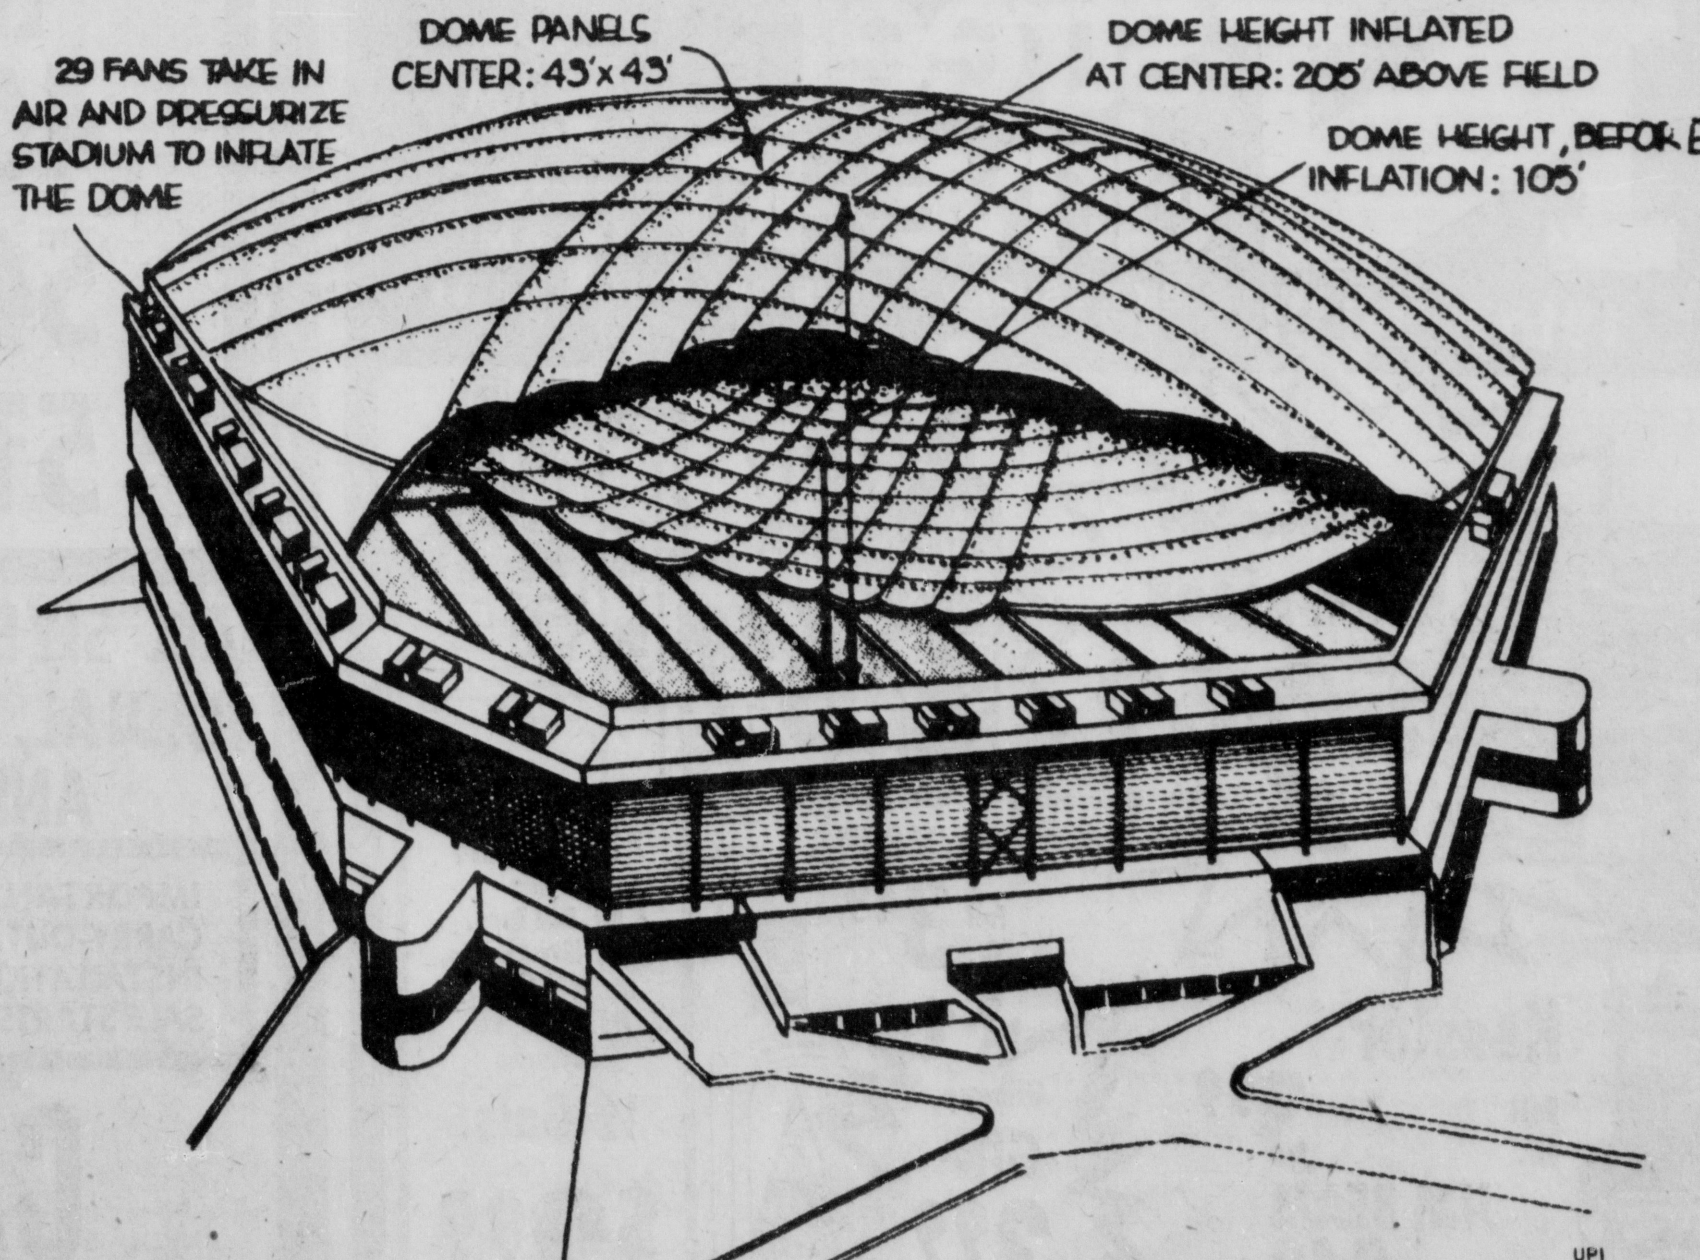

Lincoln Plus X (4-0) at Beatrice (1-2), Friday night — Beatrice is a Class A team, which means more playoff points. No further incentive needed for the 'Bolts.'

Lincoln Northeast (4-0) at Papillion (3-1), Friday night — A 20-19 loss at Norfolk is the only thing keeping the Monarchs from an unbeaten record.

Millard (0-3-1) v. Lincoln East (4-0-1), Saturday night, Seacrest Field — The Spartans can't afford to stumble before next week's showdown against Northeast.

Hebron To Resume Sports Competition

Omaha (AP) — Nebraska public health officials have cleared Hebron High School to return to sports competition. Competition was suspended last week because of an outbreak of what appeared to be viral encephalitis.

Officials recommended suspending games until the State Health Department could check for a source of the disease.

Dr. Paul Stoesz, the department's disease control officer, said Tuesday that Hebron's water and sanitation systems passed inspection and he sees no reason to continue to restrict the sports contests.

It appears the source of the outbreak was a particular event where people consumed food or water which carried a disease-causing virus.

However, he said, that event hasn't been pinpointed.

The outbreak tied directly to the football team and band.

As of Monday, 35 of 49 football team members had been affected and 20 of 66 band members, Dr. Stoesz said. In addition, two adults associated with the football team became ill.

From symptoms, it appears they have had some degree of viral encephalitis. Cases have ranged from mild through moderate, with no one suffering severe complications so far, Dr. Stoesz said.

About 10 persons have been hospitalized at one time or another.

Dr. Stoesz said information provided by Dr. Richard Penry of Hebron indicates the outbreak may have passed its peak.

This isn't football, but it answers a question several phone callers had Wednesday to The Star's sports desk: Muhammad Ali's victory in the world championship bout with Joe Frazier was a 14-round technical knockout.

Following the 14th round, Frazier's trainer, Eddie Futch, threw in the towel and the referee halted the fight. Since the bout was held under World Boxing Association regulations, Ali was credited with a 14th round knockout since the bell had not yet rung for the 15th round. Had it rung, it would have gone into the books as a 15th round knockout.

So, if you had the 15th in the office pool, you lose.

Frazier Apologizes; Champion Ali Parties

MANILA (AP) — "Sugar, I'm sorry I let you down."

With those words, Smokin' Joe Frazier apologized to Denise Metz, his secretary, for his defeat to Muhammad Ali.

"I cried," she said in recounting their first meeting after the Wednesday morning fight.

As Ali partied with the president of this island nation and with a host of celebrities and hangers-on, and as Frazier mingled with his people after one of the sport's greatest fights, one question remained for both men to answer.

Will they fight again?

The best guess seemed to be that Ali will and Frazier won't, but it was Ali who spoke of retirement Wednesday and Frazier who was noncommittal.

Frazier declined an invitation to attend President Ferdinand Marcos' bash because a doctor recommended that he stay at his hotel. Too much movement could aggravate his badly swollen face, said the doctor.

So Joe showed up at his party, exhibiting the class that has always marked this man. He thanked people for attending, hoped they were having a good time and sang a song with a local rock band.

Before the song was finished, Frazier interrupted to say, "If you ain't dancing, I ain't singing."

No one in the Frazier camp was saying what Joe's future ring plans were, but trainer Eddie Futch and Miss Metz indicated he would retire. After his 14th round TKO Wednesday morning, Frazier had said he wanted time to think about his future.

A mixture of gaiety and the sobriety of defeat intermingled in the atmosphere at the Frazier party, but it was all the savoring of victory elsewhere as the starlets and fight crowd joined President Marcos in honoring Ali.

Frazier's wife and his two eldest children also attended the Marcos party. Marvis Frazier, Joe's 14-year-old son, said there that the entire family wanted his father to quit.

Ali, meanwhile, said he was in pain from the brutal battle and the men around him said he was thinking about quitting. Ali has said that before and every time he has recanted; every time it seemed as if the retirement announcement was designed to hype a fight.

In the aftermath of what will go down as one of the greatest heavyweight championships ever, the talk was not of the next fight, although there was some of it.

But mostly the talk was still about Wednesday morning's extravaganza, when Ali found a reservoir of strength to bounce back in the final three rounds and pound Frazier helpless. The scores of head punches reduces Frazier's steps to stumbles, his punches to gestures.

Frazier also called a new conference for 10:30 a.m., Manila time, Thursday while Ali scheduled one for noon.

Some of the Ali camp left town shortly after the fight. Manager Herbert Muhammad returned to Chicago and trainer Angelo Dundee and his wife went to Bangkok.

Estimates of the attendance at the fight at The Philippine Coliseum and the gate were 25,000 people and $1.5 million.

About four hours after the fight ended, rumors circulated that Frazier had been flown by helicopter to the U.S. Naval Hospital at Hoic Bay, about a 40-minute trip from Manila.

Quers about the rumor to Pat Drefius, the Frazier press aide, brought the answer that Joe's "victory" party was on as scheduled. And it was, a mixture of gaiety and the sobriety of defeat.

As of Monday, 35 of 49 football team members had been affected and 30 of 86 band members, Dr. Stoesz said. In addition, two adults associated with the football team became ill.

From symptoms, it appears they have had some degree of viral encephalitis. Cases have ranged from mild through moderate, with no one suffering severe complications so far, Dr. Stoesz said.

About 10 persons have been hospitalized at one time or another.

Dr. Stoesz said information provided by Dr. Richard Penry of Hebron indicates the outbreak may have passed its peak.

"I don't know if they would have been able to cut it in the bigger schools," Cook acknowledges. "Boeve might have been in there."

Boeve's family used to live in Sterling, Adams' virtual next-door neighbor. They moved to Adams last February and his mother commutes to Lincoln for work.

Thomas moved to Adams last January when his parents bought the meatpacking locker.

"Neither was eligible to compete for us second semester last year because of grades," Cook notes. "But they worked out in track, got their grades back up and were able to start their senior year on the right foot."

Cook admits the two Lincoln imports created some rumors. "People in some other towns thought we were recruiting," he says.

Not Recruited

"Of course, we didn't," he adds. "They came to us. We weren't going to turn them away. They've become real enthusiastic members of the team."

"They both realize it isn't a case where we couldn't win without them," Cook says. "They're making a contribution, but everyone else is, too."

Nevertheless, the Lincoln transfers have been welcome additions. "We're looking for a couple of seven-footers for basketball," jokes Cook. "Think we ought to put an ad in the paper?"

While Adams tunes up for next week's showdown against unbeaten Table Rock with a Friday home game against Nehawka, here's this weekend's matchups involving Lincoln teams.

High (0-4), Friday night, Seacrest Field — The Knights have solved their problems and are rolling in high gear.

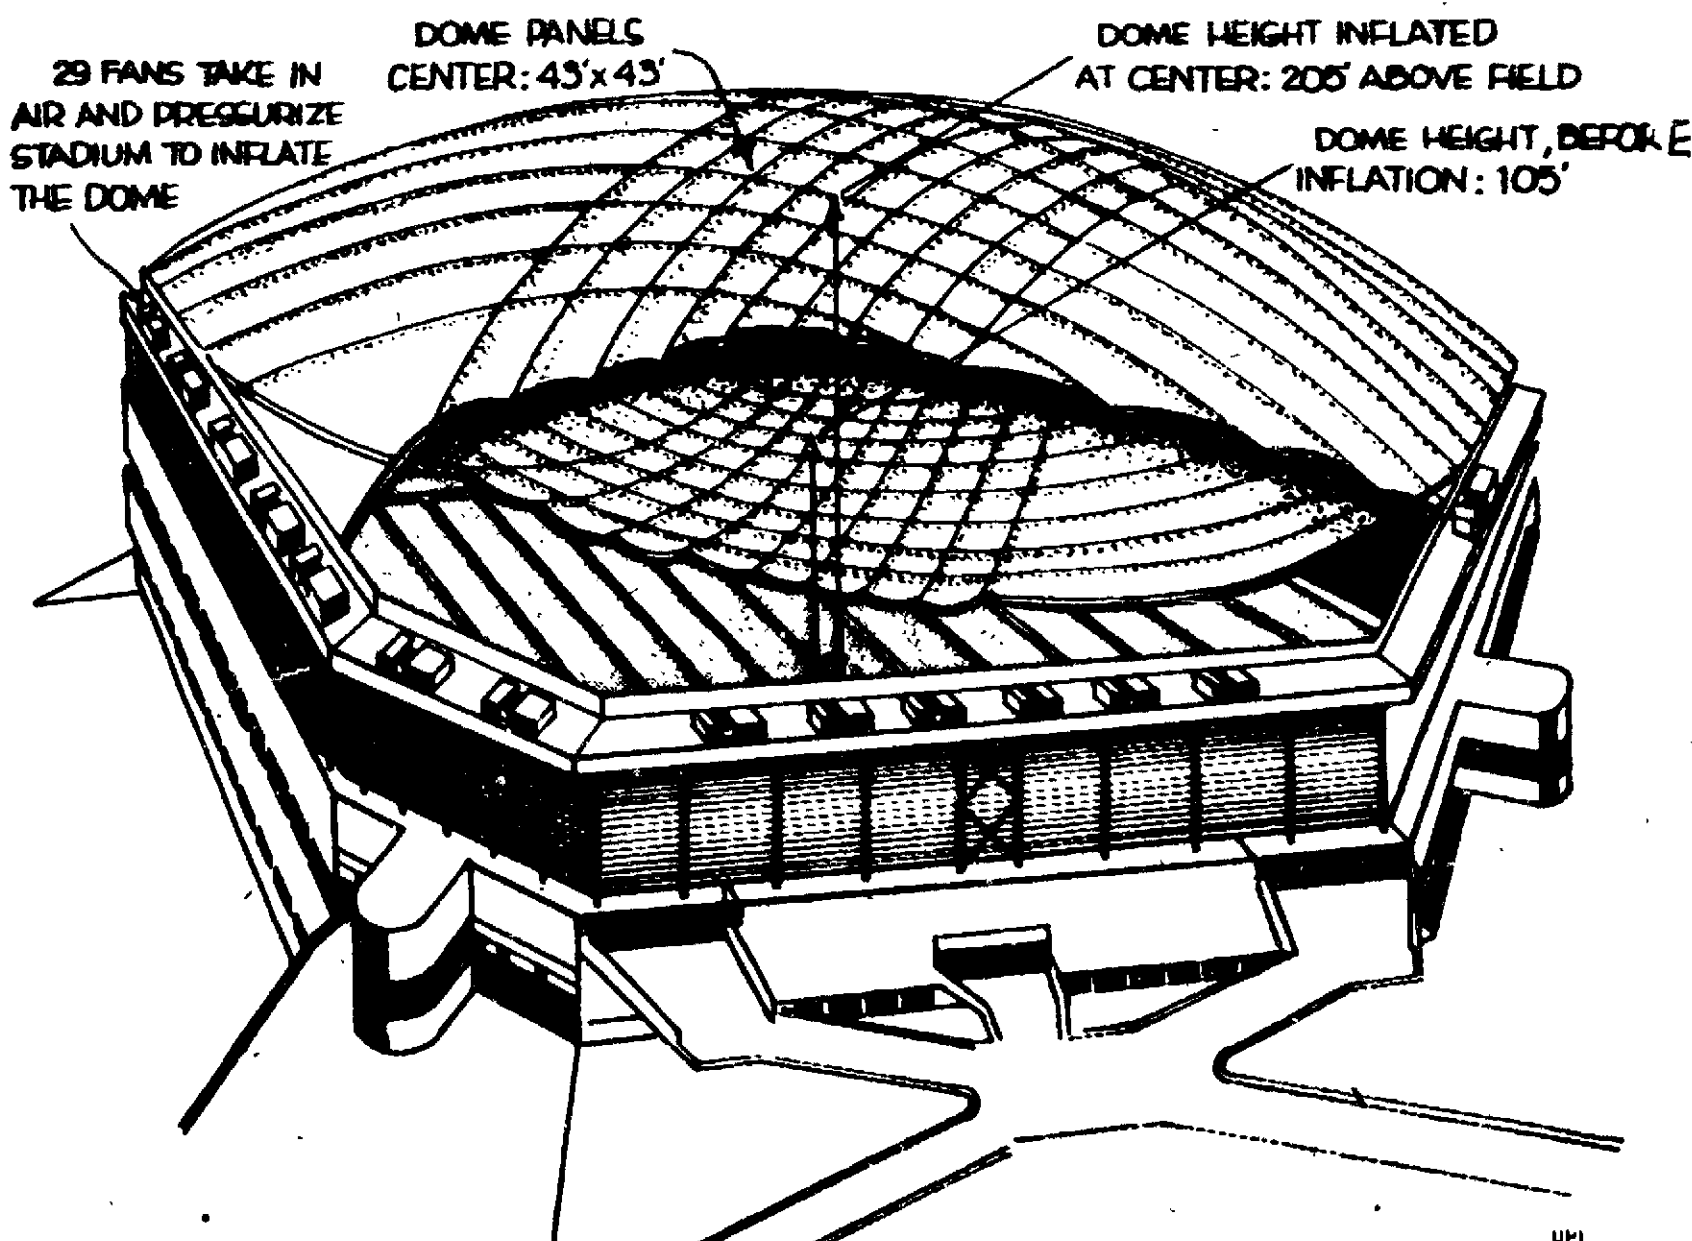

Lincoln Plus X (4-0) at Beatrice (1-2), Friday night — Beatrice is a Class A team, which means more playoff points. No further incentive needed for the 'Bolts.'

Lincoln Northeast (4-0) at Papillion (3-1), Friday night — A 20-19 loss at Norfolk is the only thing keeping the Monarchs from an unbeaten record.

Millard (0-3-1) v. Lincoln East (4-0-1), Saturday night, Seacrest Field — The Spartans can't afford to stumble before next week's showdown against Northeast.

Prep picks, page 19.

The world's largest air-supported roof will be inflated Thursday when 29 fans lift the fabric dome of the $55.7 million Pontiac Stadium. The fabric dome hangs suspended 145 feet above the stadium's playing field when not inflated. Within 60-90 minutes, the internal air pressure generated by the fans will raise the 200-ton, roof 100 feet. The 10-acre dome is constructed of Fiberglas fabric coated with Teflon with the first game in the stadium Monday night between the Detroit Lions and Dallas Cowboys.

A Sports Roundup

Chicago Bears' general manager Jim Finks announced that Bobby Douglass is through with the Bears and is "free to contact other NFL clubs and work out a deal with them," otherwise, he will be placed on waivers. Gary Huff, the third-year quarterback from Florida State, becomes the new Bears' starter.

Burt Smith was ousted as athletic director at Michigan State University Wednesday, less than two weeks before an NCAA hearing on alleged MSU football recruiting violations.

The New Orleans Saints signed wide receiver Andy Hamilton, a former Louisiana State star who holds or shares 10 of the school's receiving records.

BASEBALL

Gene Mauch, who has served as manager of the Montreal Expos since they joined the National League as an expansion club in 1969, has been fired, the club announced.

The New York Yankees announced they will perpetuate the memory of Casey Stengel by adding his name to a section of plaques and monuments beyond the centerfield fence in the new Yankee stadium, which will open next April.

A Roxbury (Mass.) Municipal Court clerk refused to issue a criminal complaint against Baltimore Orioles pitcher Ross Grimsley who hit a spectator with a baseball.

Larry MacPhail, innovator of night major league baseball while general manager of the Cincinnati Reds in the 1930's, died Wednesday at the age of 85.

OTHER SPORTS

The University of Minnesota has been granted a two-month extension for replying to more than 100 alleged recruiting violations in its basketball program.

Dr. William L. Giles, president of Mississippi State University, which has been placed on probation for alleged recruiting violations, resigned as president of the Southeastern Conference.

Storer Broadcasting Co. completed its sale of the Boston Bruins NHL team and the Boston Garden to Sportssystem Corp. of Buffalo, N.Y., it was confirmed.

Husker Defense Second

Mission, Kan. (UPI) — Nebraska's defensive unit is ranked second among major colleges in total team defense this week, according to the NCAA Statistics Service.

The Huskers have allowed two touchdowns and 154.3 yards a game. The leader is Texas A & M, with two touchdowns and 140 yards per game through three contests.

As expected, Oklahoma and Colorado also rank highly in the statistics.

The Sooners are third in rushing offense with 1,085 yards (trailing Texas and Arkansas) while Colorado is fourth with 1,082. OU and Colorado meet this Saturday at Norman.

Colorado leads the nation in total offense with 1,524 yards in three games or an average of 516 a game.

Oklahoma leads the nation in scoring offense with 128 points in three games for an average of

Sunday Bike Ride Planned

The Husker Road Club is sponsoring a bike ride open to anyone starting at 12:30 p.m. Sunday from the east steps of the Capitol.

The bikers can choose between a 12- or 25-mile trip, both meeting in Lincoln's Wilderness Park for a picnic lunch before returning to the Capitol.

The Husker Road Club plans to have bike tours every other Sunday.

CU Tops Big Eight Statistics

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Colorado football players lead four Big Eight Conference statistical departments.

Quarterback Dave Williams is tops in two, passing and total offense. Terry Kunz is the rushing leader, and Mike McCoy heads the list in punt returns.

Williams has connected on 33 of 48 passes for a completion percentage of .688. His passes have gained an even 400 yards, and he has had no interceptions. Behind him are Steve Pisarkiewicz of Missouri, 26 of 52 for 381 yards, and Terry Luck of Nebraska, 29 of 50 for 302 yards.

In total offense, Williams has 584 yards as compared with 432 yards for Pisarkiewicz and 372 for Kunz.

Kunz, the rushing pacesetter, has averaged 124 yards a game in three tests, having rushed 65 times for 372 yards. Oklahoma State's Terry Miller is second, 38 tries for 364 yards and a game average of 121.3, and Nolan Cromwell of Kansas third, 42 for 338 and a 112.7-yard game average.

McCoy has returned five punts for 91 yards or an average of 18.2 yards.

Henry Marshall of Missouri is out front in pass receiving, catching 11 for 200 yards and three touchdowns. Stan Ross of Kansas State, with 10 receptions for 157 yards, is second and Dave Logan of Colorado, with eight for 120 yards, is third.

Kickers Tim Gibbons of Missouri and Tom Mackenzie of Colorado are deadlocked for the scoring lead, each with 29 points. Tony DiRienzo, another kicker, is right behind with 28 points and plays for top-ranked Oklahoma.

Cliff Parsley continues to top the punters, having booted 10 for 462 yards or an average of 46.2 yards. Swift Eric Franklin of Kansas has the best kickoff return average. He has hauled back four kickoffs for 126 yards or a 31.5-yard average.

Four players each has intercepted four passes. John Andrews of Kansas State, Kurt Stacy of Nebraska, Chris Golub of Kansas and Kenny Downing of Missouri.

NWU Spikers Lose 2 Contests

The Nebraska Wesleyan volleyball team lost twice Wednesday night in a triangular meet at the NWU gymnasium.

Creighton University stopped NWU 15-13, 5-15 and 15-9 and Northeast Nebraska Technical Community College defeated the Lincolinites, 15-10 and 15-13.

NE Nebraska tripped Creighton, 13-15, 15-2 and 15-12 in the other contest.

Cyclones' Stanley Redshirted

By Associated Press

Iowa State senior quarterback Wayne Stanley, a starter in nine games last season, will definitely be red-shirted to preserve a year of eligibility, Cyclone coach Earle Bruce said Wednesday.

Sophomore Mike Tryon will take Stanley's spot on the travel squad when Iowa State goes to Utah this weekend, Bruce said.

Bruce said sprinter Clive Sands may be moved up to the second team yet this week.

Sands, who recorded a 9.3-second 100-yard dash in track competition earlier this year, also has been showing marked improvement on the practice field, said Bruce.

Kansas State

Starting offensive tackle Mark Zier suffered a knee injury during Kansas State's 90-minute workout Wednesday and his status for Saturday's home game against Texas A&M was uncertain.

Zier was scheduled to see an orthopedic surgeon Thursday, when a decision will be made on his availability, said coach Ellis Rainsberger.

If Zier is unable to play, his spot will be filled by Chris Haag, a 265-pound junior.

Missouri

Missouri worked out in sweat-pants Wednesday, welcoming back to practice two walking wounded, defensive end Bob McRoberts and star tailback Tony Galbreath.

Coach Al Onofrio said McRoberts was ready to go, and that Galbreath ran on his own.

"There are other guys bruised up" the coach added, "but we don't anticipate anyone being out for Saturday."

Oklahoma

Coach Barry Switzer said offensive right guard Terry Webb is still improving from ankle injury and will probably start against Colorado.

"Webb was better today and he's beginning to look well. This is the best he's been in three weeks," Switzer said.

Oklahoma State

Placekicker Abby Daigle returned to good form said Oklahoma State head coach Jim Stanley.

"Abby kicked more than he has all week," the head mentor said.

"He should be ready to go by Saturday. He looked really good today. I'd say his range is as good as ever."

"William Miller is still ahead of Richard Allen at noseguard," Stanley said. "Miller will start against Texas Tech."

"The quarterback situation is the same. I have confidence in both Jimmy Derrick and Scott Burke."

"Jim Ledford and Robert Ringwall are both even at right guard. Ledford will start but Ringwall will play about as much as Ledford. Both have practiced hard this week."

Stengel Sensed Death Nearing?

Glendale, Calif. (UPI) — Casey Stengel seemed to see the end coming for some time before his death.

In his last public appearance, Stengel, who died of cancer Monday night at age 85, remarked that he had "something wrong inside me" in a classic example of "Stengelese" that the renowned baseball manager made famous.

"I am very delighted now I am still alive and shaking," Stengel opened a speech to a lunch for the Dodgers old timers' club on Aug. 23.

Coaches Eye McTear Speed For Football

Baker, Fla. (AP) — High school running sensation Houston McTear isn't playing football, but that apparently doesn't discourage college football recruiters from seeking his services.

"Who's after Houston?" asked Sonny Hendrix, football coach at Baker High School.

"Well, lemme tell you who's called about him — there was coach Fran Curci (Kentucky) and coach Doug Dickey (Florida) and coach Bear Bryant (Alabama) and oh, I guess about 20 head coaches."

He said 100 to 200 schools have contacted McTear about playing football despite the fact he's only 5-8 and 165 pounds.

McTear's track coach at Baker High, Will Willoughby, said an athletic shoe company recently called to seek an endorsement from McTear, who tied a world record at 9.0 seconds in the 100.

Tarkio Claims Dual Victories

Peru — Tarkio, Mo., College claimed two wins Wednesday night in a double dual women's volleyball meet defeating Doane and host Peru State.

Tarkio downed Peru State 15-12, 3-15, 15-4, then beat Doane 15-10, 15-11. Peru State came back to edge Doane 10-15, 15-7, 16-14.

Jenny Resinger led Tarkio scoring for the night totaling 12 points in both contests. Julie Hartman paced Peru State with 21 points and Shari Sobotka had 16 for Doane.

CU Tops Big Eight Statistics

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Colorado football players lead four Big Eight Conference statistical departments.

Quarterback Dave Williams is tops in two, passing and total offense. Terry Kunz is the rushing leader, and Mike McCoy heads the list in punt returns.

Williams has connected on 33 of 48 passes for a completion percentage of .688. His passes have gained an even 400 yards, and he has had no interceptions. Behind him are Steve Pisarkiewicz of Missouri, 26 of 52 for 381 yards, and Terry Luck of Nebraska, 29 of 50 for 302 yards.

In total offense, Williams has 584 yards as compared with 432 yards for Pisarkiewicz and 372 for Kunz.

Kunz, the rushing pacesetter, has averaged 124 yards a game in three tests, having rushed 65 times for 372 yards. Oklahoma State's Terry Miller is second, 38 tries for 364 yards and a game average of 121.3, and Nolan Cromwell of Kansas third, 42 for 338 and a 112.7-yard game average.

McCoy has returned five punts for 91 yards or an average of 18.2 yards.

Henry Marshall of Missouri is out front in pass receiving, catching 11 for 200 yards and three touchdowns. Stan Ross of Kansas State, with 10 receptions for 157 yards, is second and Dave Logan of Colorado, with eight for 120 yards, is third.

Kickers Tom Gibbons of Missouri and Tim Mackenzie of Colorado are deadlocked for the scoring lead, each with 29 points. Tony DiRienzo, another kicker, is right behind with 28 points and plays for top-ranked Oklahoma.

Cliff Parsley continues to top the punters, having booted 10 for 462 yards or an average of 46.2 yards. Swift Eric Franklin of Kansas has the best kickoff return average. He has hauled back four kickoffs for 126 yards or a 31.5-yard average.

Four players each has intercepted four passes, John Andrews of Kansas State, Kurt Stacy of Nebraska, Chris Golub of Kansas and Kenny Downing of Missouri.

NWU Spikers Lose 2 Contests

The Nebraska Wesleyan volleyball team lost twice Wednesday night in a triangular meet at the NWU gymnasium.

Creighton University stopped NWU 15-13, 5-15 and 15-9 and Northeast Nebraska Technical Community College defeated the Lincolnties, 15-10 and 15-13.

NE Nebraska tripped Creighton, 13-15, 15-2 and 15-12 in the other contest.

Cyclones' Stanley Redshirted

By Associated Press

Iowa State senior quarterback Wayne Stanley, a starter in nine games last season, will definitely be red-shirted to preserve a year of eligibility, Cyclone coach Earle Bruce said Wednesday.

Sophomore Mike Tryon will take Stanley's spot on the travel squad when Iowa State goes to Utah this weekend, Bruce said.

Bruce said sprinter Clive Sands may be moved up to the second team yet this week.

Sands, who recorded a 9.3-second 100-yard dash in track competition earlier this year, also has been showing marked improvement on the practice field, said Bruce.

Kansas State

Starting offensive tackle Mark Zier suffered a knee injury during Kansas State's 90-minute workout Wednesday and his status for Saturday's home game against Texas A&M was uncertain.

Zier was scheduled to see an orthopedic surgeon Thursday, when a decision will be made on his availability, said coach Ellis Rainsberger.

If Zier is unable to play, his spot will be filled by Haag, a 265-pound junior.

Missouri

Missouri worked out in sweat-pants Wednesday, welcoming back to practice two walking wounded, defensive end Bob McRoberts and star tailback Tony Galbreath.

Coach Al Onofrio said McRoberts was ready to go, and that Galbreath ran on his own. "There are other guys bruised up" the coach added, "but we don't anticipate anyone being out for Saturday."

Oklahoma

Coach Barry Switzer said offensive right guard Terry Webb is still improving from ankle injury and will probably start against Colorado.

"Webb was better today and he's beginning to look well. This is the best he's been in three weeks," Switzer said.

Oklahoma State

Placekicker Abby Daigle returned to good form said Oklahoma State head coach Jim Stanley.

"Abby kicked more than he has all week," the head mentor said.

"He should be ready to go by Saturday. He looked really good today. I'd say his range is as good

HANDI-FOOTBALL RATINGS

HOW TO USE THE RATINGS

ILLUSTRATION: Air Force versus Yale

If the Air Force were to meet Yale on a neutral field, Air Force's Handi-Rating of 21 would hold a 12-point advantage over Yale's 33 rating.

If the game were played AT AIR FORCE, allow Air Force 3 points for playing at home. AIR FORCE would become a 15-point favorite.
If the game were played AT YALE, allow Yale 3 points for playing at home. This would make AIR FORCE a 9-point favorite.

Dove Season Ends

The first dove hunting season Nebraskans have enjoyed in over 20 years came to an end Tuesday with a "smooth" rating from Nebraska Game and Parks Commission chief of wildlife Ken Johnson.

"We didn't have the number of hunters out I thought we'd have or even hoped we'd have," Johnson said. "But as far as I can tell, we didn't have any serious problems with the season. I think it went very smooth."

The dove, an emotion-stirring bird, provided the purist with excellent hunting challenge, plus superb table fare. The good-eating game bird is No. 1 in the United States, largely due to its rapid flight and sporting quality.

"The hunters out this year didn't do all the bad things they were reported to be doing when we opened the dove season," Johnson said. "I think that's the big thing about this past season. It ran smoothly and without incident. At least nothing was reported to me."

The dove has added another dimension to Nebraska's hunting picture. Declining habitat for pheasant and quail has cut deeply into the upland game numbers in recent years but the dove has done extremely well despite habitat loss.

"The dove is an extremely adaptable bird," Johnson said. "It seems to be doing very well despite the demands on our land. I think that's one of the big advantages of dove hunting in that it permits hunters to get out in the fall when our other bird numbers are declining. We've had good numbers of dove in the state all during the 30-day season."

Just a few days after the dove season has ended, Nebraskan's goose and eastern duck season is set to open. Saturday is the big day waterfowlers in the area have been waiting for.

Shot Questions

Some questions have been coming in on the topic of lead or steel shot for waterfowl this year in Nebraska. Steel shot is the coming thing and is required in the Atlantic Flyway this season.

Steel shot is not required in the Central Flyway this year, however. Next year it will be but hunters are free to use lead shot in 1975 as in past seasons.

The state of Minnesota, in cooperation with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, is running a steel shot test on the Tamarac National Wildlife Refuge in that state. The program began last year in an effort to determine the suitability of steel shot as a substitute shell component.

Also in line with waterfowling, the Lancaster County Chapter of Ducks Unlimited exceeded its goal for 1975, according to dinner chairman Art Dobson. The local chapter will be sending over $5,000 to the national chapter for waterfowl improvements this year.

Lancaster County funds came from donations of prizes for raffle and auction and from the $10 annual DU membership fee paid by the 200 guests in attendance at the September banquet.

National DU announced it will be spending some $300,000 to improve wetland habitat in the Canadian Maritimes provinces this year with more projects continuing in other Canadian provinces as in the past.

Over DU's 39-year history, some $42 million has been spent developing over 2 million acres of Canadian wetlands ranging from 10 acre plots to one over 500,000 acres.

Ivan Bullock Scholarships Semifinalist

Ivan Bullock, a senior at Northeast High School, is the only Lincolnite among more than 1,400 semifinalists in the 12th annual National Achievement Scholarship Program for Outstanding Negro students.

The semifinalists were announced by the National Merit Scholarship Corp. which administers the program.

The son of the Rev. and Mrs. Clifton Bullock, 5835 Wilshire Blvd., Ivan hopes to go into marine biology or oceanography when he enters college next year.

An honor roll student, Ivan, 17, lettered in track last year and is student manager of the school basketball team.

He's an avid outdoorsman who loves to hunt and fish. He spent this past summer working for the parks and recreation department in the youth conservation corps.

Ivan applauds the scholarship program because it assures that more black students will get financial aid to go on to college.

Six other Nebraskans, all from Omaha, were also named semifinalists. To advance in the competition, the semifinalists must qualify as finalists by meeting additional requirements.

Lahners Plans To File New Charges

New first-degree murder and robbery charges will probably be filed Thursday against Weslie Peery, said County Attorney Ron Lahners.

Rotarians Name Nancy Vergrith To Club Honor

The latest "Paul Harris Fellow" named by Lincoln Rotary Club No. 14 is the club's retiring secretary, Nancy Vergrith.

Club members have donated $1,000 to Rotary International's Paul Harris Foundation to confer the honor on Mrs. Vergrith, who has been secretary to the local group for seven years.

The Paul Harris Foundation, named after Rotary's founder, is responsible for a number of charitable and educational projects, particularly scholarships for international students.

Peery, 51, had already been charged in the June 6 shooting death of Marianne Mitzner in a local coin shop.

After a preliminary hearing in July, Peery was bound over for trial in Lancaster County District Court.

However, last week, Judge Samuel Van Pelt ruled that there was not enough substantial evidence presented during the preliminary hearing to link Peery to the incident, and he gave Lahners 15 days to present new information in the case.

Van Pelt said Peery would be released and the charges against him dropped if Lahners failed to come up with new information. After the new charges are filed Peery will face a second preliminary hearing.

DeCamp Wants Lottery Money Used Statewide

By The Associated Press
Neligh Sen. John DeCamp says he will introduce legislation next year to insure that proceeds from lotteries are used for statewide benefits.

DeCamp said Omaha's Big Green lottery is "the only legalized numbers racket in the United States."

The lottery is sponsored by a nonprofit group set up for the "civic betterment" of downtown Omaha.

DeCamp said the Mafia could operate a similar lottery for the expressed purpose of building a hospital.

Iowa Youth Dies From Encephalitis

Des Moines (UPI) — An 8-year-old Warren County boy has died of encephalitis at a Des Moines hospital, doctors reported.

Randy Wade Couch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Couch of Churchillville, had been ill for about five days, doctors said. He died at Mercy Hospital Tuesday.

Dr. M.E. Alberts of Des Moines said doctors were uncertain about the type of encephalitis and had not determined the cause.

The death was the second from encephalitis reported in Iowa recently. Lila J. Messerly, 57, of Finchford died of the disease, also known as sleeping sickness, on Sept. 22.

Southern Baptists Give $1.2 Million

Richmond, Va. (UPI)—Southern Baptists gave more than $1.2 million for world relief during the first eight months of 1975, according to the Southern Baptist Convention's foreign mission board. At its September meeting, the board also approved appointment of a missionary to Spain and allocated some $99,000 in response to flood damage in Brazil and $85,000 for refugee work in Angola, Thailand, Portugal and Ft. Chaffee, Ark., site of one of the Vietnamese refugee camps in the United States.

Lahners Plans To File New Charges

New first-degree murder and robbery charges will probably be filed Thursday against Wealie Peery, said County Attorney Ron Lahners.

Rotarians Name Nancy Vergrith To Club Honor

The latest "Paul Harris Fellow" named by Lincoln Rotary Club No. 14 is the club's retiring secretary, Nancy Vergrith.

Club members have donated $1,000 to Rotary International's Paul Harris Foundation to confer the honor on Mrs. Vergrith, who has been secretary to the local group for seven years.

The Paul Harris Foundation, named after Rotary's founder, is responsible for a number of charitable and educational projects, particularly scholarships for international students.

Peery, 51, had already been charged in the June 8 shooting death of Marianne Mitzner in a local coin shop.

After a preliminary hearing in July, Peery was bound over for trial in Lancaster County District Court.

However, last week, Judge Samuel Van Pelt ruled that there was not enough substantial evidence presented during the preliminary hearing to link Peery to the incident, and he gave Lahners 15 days to present new information in the case.

Van Pelt said Peery would be released and the charges against him dropped if Lahners failed to come up with new information. After the new charges are filed Peery will face a second preliminary hearing.

DeCamp Wants Lottery Money Used Statewide

By The Associated Press
Neligh Sen. John DeCamp says he will introduce legislation next year to insure that proceeds from lotteries are used for statewide benefits.

DeCamp said Omaha's Big Green lottery is "the only legalized numbers racket in the United States."

The lottery is sponsored by a nonprofit group set up for the "civic betterment" of downtown Omaha.

DeCamp said the Mafia could operate a similar lottery for the expressed purpose of building a hospital.

Iowa Youth Dies From Encephalitis

Des Moines (UPI) — An 8-year-old Warren County boy has died of encephalitis at a Des Moines hospital, doctors reported.

Randy Wade Couch, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Couch of Churchville, had been ill for about five days, doctors said. He died at Mercy Hospital Tuesday.

Dr. M.E. Alberts of Des Moines said doctors were uncertain about the type of encephalitis and had not determined the cause.

The death was the second from encephalitis reported in Iowa recently. Lila J. Messerly, 57, of Finchford died of the disease, also known as sleeping sickness, on Sept. 22.

Southern Baptists Give $1.2 Million

Richmond, Va. (UPI) — Southern Baptists gave more than $1.2 million for world relief during the first eight months of 1975, according to the Southern Baptist Convention's foreign mission board. At its September meeting, the board also approved appointment of a missionary to Spain and allocated some $99,000 in response to flood damage in Brazil and $85,000 for refugee work in Angola, Thailand, Portugal and Ft. Chaffee, Ark., site of one of the Vietnamese refugee camps in the United States.

Too Much New Money
Is Root Of Inflation

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York — The government likes you to think that inflation is something of a puzzle. Somehow, prices keep going up, despite the brave efforts of policy makers to hold things steady. In this view, we are all — workers, businessmen, and government officials — battered by inscrutable economic forces. Everyone is a victim; no one is responsible.

This view is baloney, but it serves a handy political purpose. It hides from the people the fact that the government is creating inflation, largely in response to the popular will.

Not that anyone thinks the government is entirely innocent. Inflation is often blamed on "deficit spending," which in turn is blamed on Congress (even though the President is doing his share). But deficit spending does not necessarily lead to runaway prices.

The root of the problem is whether the administration pays its bills with money already in circulation (which is not inflationary), or whether it pays its bills with new money created for the purpose. Inflation comes from creating too much new money — which is done through the Federal Reserve Board (with the acquiescence of the President).

The economic sin of "printing money" has nothing to do with the printing of dollar bills, which tourists in Washington line up to watch at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. Those dollars are manufactured principally to replace worn-out bills.

When money is "printed" to pay for government spending, it's done with a stroke of a pen on a ledger book. The Federal Reserve buys government securities from dealers, paying not in dollars but by a bookkeeping entry that enlarges the dealer's bank account. This gives the bank more money to lend. When the borrower spends that money, it goes into someone else's bank account, giving a second bank more money to lend, and so on. Thus, vast amounts of new spending power are created.

Alternatively, the Federal Reserve can add to the supply of money by lowering the percentage of deposits that banks keep back as reserves. This frees up more money for loans.

Here's how an increase in the money supply turns into inflation, how you're involved, and how (if you'd let it) inflation could be stopped in its tracks. The explanation comes from Professor George Benston of the Graduate School of Management, University of Rochester.

To begin with, adding new money to the system is not bad in itself. As the economy grows, we produce more goods and services; for commerce to run smoothly, we need more dollars to reflect the value of those goods. If new money about matched the worth of the new goods and services produced, prices would be approximately stable.

But now, then, is the government to raise money for vast new enterprises like wars and social programs? One way is to increase spending at the same rate that the economy grows (and tax revenues increase) — but that's too slow. Another way is to raise taxes — but that's too unpopular. A third way is to create new money. Because it's so easy, that's what governments do.

At first, the new money works wonders. There's more cash available for loans, for building factories, for adding jobs, for raising wages and buying goods, as well as for wars and social programs. Prices go up, though not a lot.

But it's like being a little bit pregnant. A little inflation has a tendency to grow. Unless the Federal Reserve keeps pumping in more and more money, the economy will decline. Yet after a certain point, all the money really does is add to prices and wages.

Stop Adding Too Much To stop inflation, you have to stop adding too much to the money supply. The Federal Reserve could do this any time it wants. But politics make that easier said than done.

For example, the Fed pumped up the money supply in time to help Richard Nixon get re-elected (and blamed the subsequent inflation on wage-price controls). It may soon add money to protect the nation's banks from the consequences of a bond default in New York City.

It is also sensitive to public outcries about unemployment and high interest rates. We're all money junkies, and we want our fix.

Absent political pressure, the goal of the Federal Reserve is to slow inflation without making such an abrupt cut in the money supply that the economy collapses. They want to print enough new money to keep things from getting really bad, yet not so much that inflation takes off again.

Over a period of time, this policy could bring the economy back to normal. The big question is whether businessmen, labor, politicians and the rest of the people are smart enough to let the process work.

Market Hits Lowest Level
Since April

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market sagged to its lowest closing level in nearly six months Wednesday in a third straight day of selling prompted by interest rate and inflation worries.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 9.72 to 784.16, its lowest close since April 10, when it finished at 781.29.

The popular indicator of market trends has tumbled 34.4 points since the start of the week.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost .94 to 82.93, and the New York Stock Exchange composite index was down .53 at 43.96.

Losers outstripped gainers 1,020 to 331 among the 1,778 issues traded on the Big Board. NYSE volume picked up in selling toward the close to reach 14.07 million shares, compared with 12.52 million on Tuesday.

Late in the morning the market made a weak attempt at a technical rally with the Dow in the low 790s—a point from which it had rallied twice in the past six weeks.

But the upswing failed to draw any significant support, and the Dow reached a plus-3 reading only briefly before beginning to fall again. Once it broke below 790, it was evident that technically inclined investors joined in the selling.

Brokers said the market's principal problem continued to be fears that a big federal budget deficit, and the heavy government borrowing needed to finance it, would fan inflation and increase upward pressure on interest rates.

After the close, the Treasury said it would auction $2.5 billion in 38-month notes next Tuesday, and added it would announce details of a $3 billion note offering later.

Also looming over the market was the report due from the government Thursday on its wholesale price index for September.

American Telephone & Telegraph, the day's most active issue, gained 1/4 to 46—the price set for a 12 million-share offering by the company.

International Minerals & Chemicals was also active, falling 4 1/2 to 40. The company said its earnings per share for the current fiscal year might be down 5 to 10 percent because of a larger number of shares outstanding.

Bausch & Lomb, which said losses from translation of currencies would cut its quarterly earnings by 39 cents a share, slid 3 1/2 to 28 1/2.

Steels, coppers and chemical issues continued to lose ground amid expectations that attempts in such basic-materials industries to hold prices in the face of weak demand might give way to price wars.

Among the big-name glamour issues, IBM was down 4 1/2 to 183 1/2; Walt Disney Productions dropped 1 1/2 to 42 1/2, and Philip Morris was off 1 1/2 to 45 1/2.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell .89 to 82.25.

Gold-Silver

New York (UPI) — Foreign and domestic gold prices Wednesday: London—morning fixing 147.75 to 148.00; afternoon fixing 147.50 to 147.75.

Paris (free market) 153.72 to 154.00; Frankfurt 146.39 to 147.00; Zurich 144.00 to 144.50.

New York—Handy and Harman, noon 147.75 to 148.00; Engelhard, bid price for refining settling and unfabricated gold 146.00 to 146.25; silver 147.00 to 147.25; fabricated gold 147.00 to 147.25 per Troy ounce.

New York (UPI) — Handy and Harman Wednesday quoted silver at $4.25 per fine ounce up 2 cents.

Engelhard quoted a silver base price of $4.25 up 2 cents and a price for fabricated silver of $4.38 up 2 cents.

Recycling Waning

New York (UPI) — The recycling boom is waning because of unfavorable economic conditions, according to the National Association of Recycling Industries, which says there has been a 50 percent drop in use of recycled materials, including paper, aluminum and copper.

Iranians Buy New Oil Drill

Fort Worth, Tex. (UPI) — Western Co. of North America has signed a contract with National Iranian Gas Co. for use of Western's new deep-water jack-up drilling rig.

H. E. Chiles, company president, said the contract calls for the gas company to use the rig to drill for two years in the Persian gulf. The rig is capable of operating in water depths to 250 feet. The company has similar rigs operating in the North Sea and the Gulf of Mexico.

Zarb Compares Nuclear Plants, TV Sets

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Omaha — Federal energy administrator Frank Zarb Wednesday said "cost efficiency and safety problems encountered in nuclear power plants do not justify a slowdown in their development."

"We are in the process of an evolving technology," Zarb said in an interview with The Star.

"The first television sets didn't operate all the time either," he said.

Disposal of nuclear wastes is "the one major technological area which needs to be completed," he said, "but I am convinced it will be. I'm confident that the nuclear regulatory commission has sufficient control over disposal methods, and that the waste can be handled safely."

'Should Not Slow Up'

On the whole, Zarb said, he sees "no evidence that we should slow up" in the development of nuclear energy. It offers "the most power at the least cost" for consumers, he said.

Zarb's comments, made during a private interview at the Omaha White House Conference, were solicited in the wake of the Lincoln City Council's decision Monday night not to participate in the financing or ownership of the new nuclear generation unit planned by Omaha Public Power District.

On other matters of area interest, Zarb pledged that "as long as I am in office, we will always give farmers the top priority for what they require" in the energy or energy-derivative field.

That includes access to sufficient fertilizer at reasonable cost, he said.

The Ford administration has attempted to provide the latter, he said, through proposed decontrol of natural gas, from which fertilizer nitrogen is made.

Approval of the proposal would "free the flow" of natural gas from producer states, he said.

No Position On Pipeline

As for the proposed coal slurry pipeline which would cross Nebraska on its way from the Wyoming coal fields to an electric generation complex in Arkansas, Zarb said the administration has taken no position.

"We do, however, believe we need to find better ways to transport" western low sulfur coal, he said. "We should consider all methods of transportation."

On broader issues, Zarb said America "could at some point be jeopardizing its freedom" if it does not become energy independent in the near future. Administration proposals aim for such independence by 1985.

"If there was ever a public policy issue which should be raised above politics, this is it," he declared.

But Congressional and 1976 presidential election year politics have "obviously irritated" the problem, resulting in a policy impasse, he said.

40% Dependent

"We are 40 per cent dependent on foreigners for oil," Zarb noted. "That could increase to 50 per cent. If we had another embargo under those conditions, it would make the last one look like a picnic."

In that event, Zarb said, snapping his fingers, "one million Americans would be out of work just like that."

Americans have had "a grand Roman feast" with energy products, using them "more wastefully than any nation in the world," Zarb said.

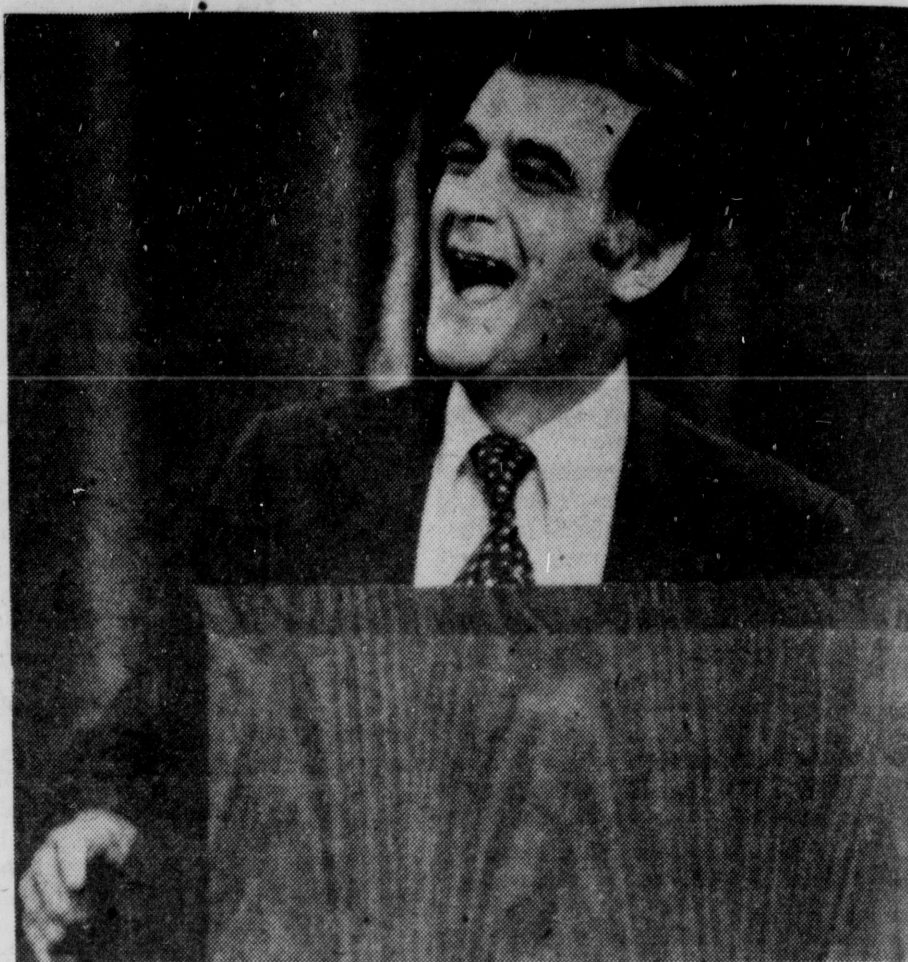

This splurge amounted to a policy of "eating yourself to death," he said. "We were operating in a fantasy land."

And the result, he said, is that "we are losing control over our economy."

President Ford, he said, has compromised three times in an effort to win Congressional approval of an energy program. Ford's agreement to a bill extending domestic oil price controls until Nov. 15 is the latest effort, Zarb said.

Now it is up to Congress to approve a phase-out of controls or provide full decontrol with protective features, Zarb said.

"There is no easy way out. They are all tough decisions," he declared.

Agriculture

Butz Says Grain Sale Agreement So Very Close

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Omaha — Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz said Wednesday he would like to have announced at the White House Conference on Domestic and Economic Affairs an end to the embargo on grain shipments to Russia and Poland but couldn't.

"We are close, so very close, to an agreement, but I just can't talk about it other than to say the Agriculture Department is involved in the discussions and is playing a role in the decision," he said.

Butz made the comments in a private interview held during the conference.

At the conference itself, he was unofficial king for the day.

Standing Ovation

He drew a standing ovation Tuesday evening at a pre-conference dinner and once again at the beginning of the conference sessions on Wednesday.

Butz sent an aide out to buy a loaf of bread he used for a demonstration on how much a farmer received from a loaf of bread for his wheat.

"We will use these two slices and the heel to show the farmer's share of the price of a loaf of bread, about 6¢ from the 49¢ they paid for this loaf," he said.

The secretary had problems balancing his two piles of bread on the shaky podium. The stack of 21 slices that represented the non-farm share of the price of a loaf of bread fell to the floor as photographers rushed to photograph the graphic demonstration.

Eugene Glock, president of the Nebraska Soybean Association, tossed a quarter to the secretary to help him finance his next bread purchase for another demonstration.

"I want everyone here to know that while we have had our differences with him, we feel the present secretary of agriculture is the best one this nation has had in many years because he does speak out for agriculture," Glock said.

The audience applauded for a full three minutes.

Butz added that the cost of moving the bread from the bakery to the supermarket was often greater than the price the farmer was paid for the wheat in the loaf. "Often it is the truck driver's wife who complains the most about the price," he added.

Butz told Glock that soybeans would definitely be a part of future Russian purchases from the U.S. "They are increasing their livestock numbers beyond their ability to grow crops to feed them. They will be buying both soybeans and meal to improve the quality of their livestock feed," he predicted.

During the interview Butz admitted he is sometimes frustrated in his job but added that Russell Train, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, has a worse job.

"I know farmers feel they haven't any power but it isn't as bad as they seem to think. We do have some input into export decisions. I made no secret that I opposed the ban on sales to Poland. It came about because they had sharply increased their purchases because Russia stopped delivery of grain to Poland but I did support the embargo on further shipments to Russia," he said.

'Needed Better Deal'

"Let's keep in mind that we did sell them a lot of grain. It had gotten to the point where we felt we needed a better deal and I think we will get it. We can work out a long term agreement that will provide a market farmers can depend on every year, not just once in a while," he said.

Butz expressed concern about fuel supplies for irrigators who use natural gas. "I think farmers will have enough gasoline and diesel fuel but natural gas and propane will undoubtedly be a problem. I am hopeful that we can find a way to move propane to those who are cut off from natural gas for irrigation because it will be easier to move propane across state lines," he said.

Butz said the administration was seeking authority to allocate propane to farmers for an extended period of time.

"I think we can do something about the problem of packer bonding to guarantee payment to farmers selling livestock that will be better than the mixture of state laws we have now, but I am not sure exactly what. We have some people working on it. A straight bond would be pretty expensive and in the end the cost of whatever we do will come out of the farmer's hide one way or the other. A federal program would be cheaper to run than a lot of conflicting state programs," he said.

Questions Answered

During the question and answer session following his speech Butz:

—warned that "We must accept beef imports to enable the United States to ask for free markets in other nations."

—said the grain inspection system will be improved by better federal supervision of grain inspection companies.

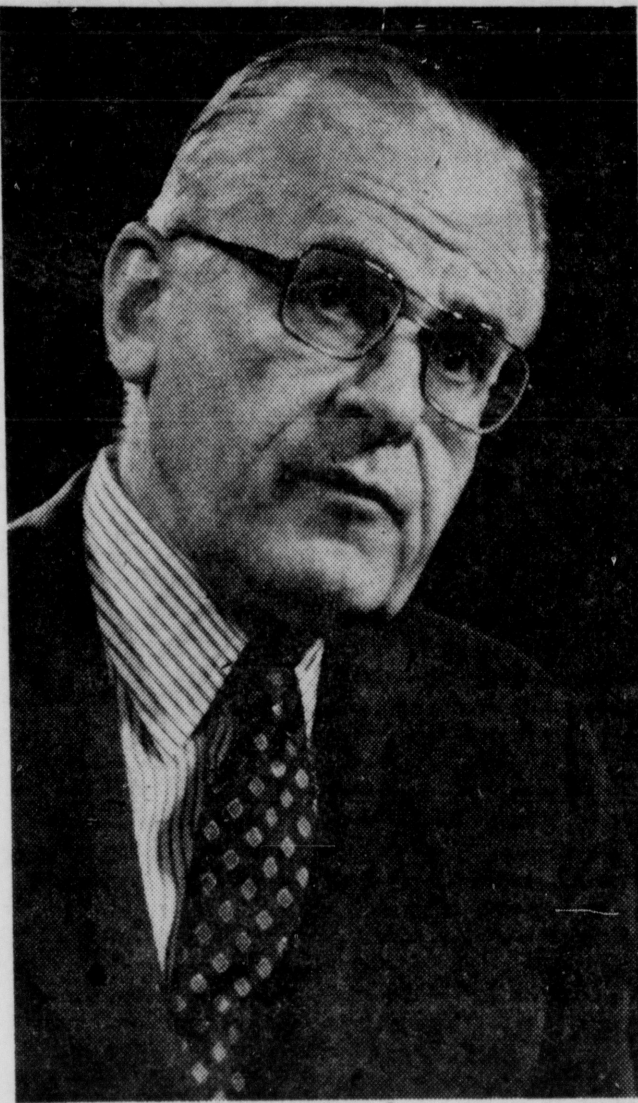

—said he personally would have preferred to establish a state-federal inspection system but budget problems made this impossible.

—said the United States doesn't need a consumer protection agency.

—said the United States is ten years behind in manning the nation's farms with younger farmers.

—said he was unofficially in favor of having veto power over EPA decisions on agricultural chemicals but officially knew it was an unworkable solution because a regulatory agency can't be overridden by another federal agency.

Health, Education, Welfare

Mathews Says Government Programs 'May Not Be Controllable'

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Omaha (Though he's been in office only 40 days, U.S. Health, Education and Welfare Secretary David Mathews Wednesday said there is "considerable evidence" that government programs "are not controllable."

The 39-year-old former University of Alabama president said, "we don't seem to have that built-in discipline to stop or change directions" in many open-ended programs.

In an exclusive interview with The Lincoln Star, Mathews likened the problem to lack of good sense such as "one who would drink so much water that he drowns."

"We're still operating a lot of programs for which the original purpose was met," he said.

Size of HEW Stressed

The "difficult problem" in running an organization as large as HEW is overcoming remoteness from, and insensitivity to, the people, he said. HEW, with 129,000 employees responsible for more than 350 programs, spends about one-third of the total federal budget.

"One of the reasons there is very little confidence in large government," Mathews said, is the average citizen feels he has "no effect" on a "faceless" federal bureaucracy.

"That's why it's a perfect target for hostility," he said. Mathews says HEW should talk less and listen more. And that's what he did at the White House Conference on Economic and Domestic Affairs here Wednesday.

Asked about effectiveness of federal seed money to start local and costly programs which may be discontinued when the grants expire, Mathews said such programs must address "points of most critical need. Often, such programs might not be started otherwise."

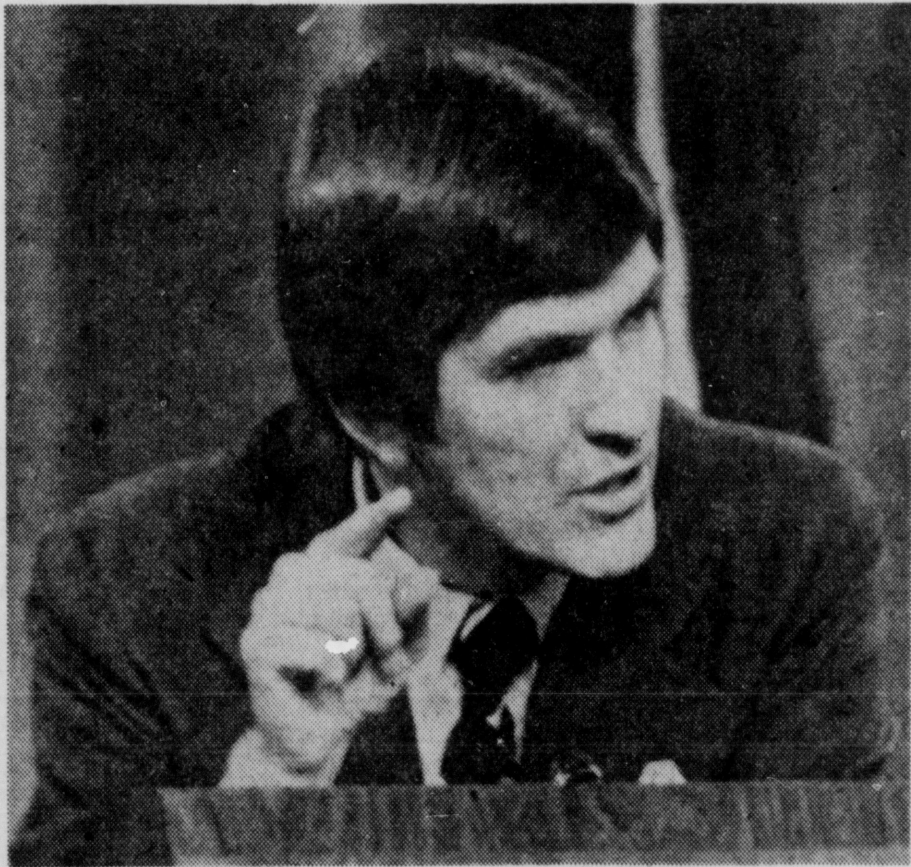

Warns Of Controls

But schools, if they accept federal money, would be "foolish to think" controls and regulations won't accompany them. And Nebraskans are "not willing" to accept federalization of their schools, he said.

On busing to desegregate, Mathews said there's a "growing feeling" nationally for "better ways to do this" to avoid violence and divisiveness. Alternatives, he told the 1,000 Nebraskans at the conference, include improving the quality of all schools, offering specialized schooling building by building, or putting all institutions in a core "educational park," to which all students would be bused.

HEW has an "inescapable obligation" to resolve the issue, he said. He offered, "no panacea" but declared "no justification" for telling one child where he must go to school and directing another differently.

In evaluating busing, he told The Star, "obviously, we're trying to use the school alone" when the problem also embraces "where people live" and an "economic class clash." He said busing may lead to "resegregation."

MATHEWS... warned audience with humor.

Asked if he favors two congressional bills that would award cabinet status to education, Mathews said he doesn't feel "territorial" about keeping education in

HEW. But department policies are "all related," and comprehensive programs in each of the three agencies cannot be divorced easily.

"Most of our problems," Mathews said, result because "we can't get all the parts together."

Attention Asked

Declining test scores of students nationally, he said, indicate a possible need for "more attention to basics."

The 11th HEW secretary, a Phi Beta Kappa at Alabama, warmed the audience with easy humor while stressing serious needs.

Welfare reform, he said, is an "idea whose time is coming very soon." Meanwhile, "it's like a greased pig contest. There's no place to grab it," he said.

Controlling welfare means analyzing complex distribution and improving it for qualified recipients as well as unbundling taxpayers, he said.

Mathews said welfare contributes "to the breakup of families" since fatherless homes can get more income. He called it "intolerable" when welfare "competes too successfully with work."

Opposes 'Homogenizing'

Asked about federal aid to private and parochial schools, Mathews said only that he opposes homogenizing education, but he took no stance on the issue, controversial in Nebraska and elsewhere.

Mathews said he anticipates "no major redesign" of federal student aid programs, except perhaps to broaden eligibility.

Numerous officials and reporters repeatedly asked Mathews throughout the day how federal government regulations can assure improvement of education. And

Mathews repeatedly stressed education "is not totally the federal government's responsibility."

"There's nothing closer to local government than education," he said. Thus "more properly," he asked, "what's the wisest use of the federal government" to help Nebraska education in a "constructive partnership?"

Asked about federal coordination of related programs such as in mental retardation, Mathews said the proliferation coming from Congress is "so categorical, so inflexible," that sometimes "we have trouble doing the common sense thing that allows effective local operation."

Support Declared

A repeated audience concern was for vocational education. Mathews declared strong support for improving programs but noted the "economy demands" closer alignment to the "world of work."

He mused that eventually, the line separating the college degree and the "sub baccalaureate" degree may disappear, as schools "get rid of a lot of lock-step" in education and broaden it into a "career ladder."

Meanwhile, some federal programs may suffer, Mathews indicated. He drew applause when he said there are "tough political decisions we have to make in this country. We can't keep saying: take it out of someone else's program."

Mathews also declared, "unless we get some control on federal spending, we're going to endanger everything."

Feds Won't Enforce Helmet Requirement

Omaha — The federal government has no plans to implement a provision in the law that would cut off federal highway funds to a state that doesn't have a motorcycle helmet law.

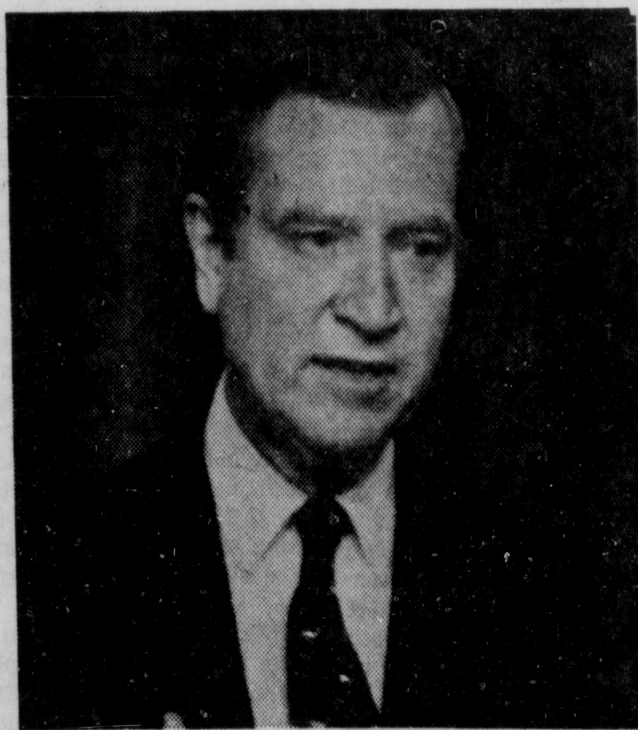

William T. Coleman Jr., secretary of transportation, told people attending the White House Conference on Domestic and Economic Affairs that the law "didn't make sense."

"The proposal to cut off funds for states that don't have a motorcycle helmet law was never a part of administration policy. It was put into the law by the democratic-controlled congress," Coleman said.

"I don't think the law makes much sense and I am most reluctant to enforce it. I haven't implemented that portion of the law and I won't cut off funds unless I should be sued. I won't allow the Department of Transportation to be sued for non compliance of the law. I hope it doesn't come to that point during my term in office," he said.

Coleman said the provisions to take funds from states share of federal highway funds was a direct result of states turning to the federal government for things they would be better off doing themselves.

TRAIN... good job on air, water.

Train: Soil Saving Work Needed

Russell Train, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, indicated Wednesday that while the nation is making good progress cleaning up its water and air it is doing a poor job of conserving the quality of its soil.

"We don't have any money and Earl (Butz — secretary of agriculture) doesn't have nearly enough to do the job that is needed. Sediment from farms is the major pollutant in our streams today," he said.

Train told those attending the White House Conference on Domestic and Economic Affairs that he "isn't anti-agriculture or anti-chemical."

"We have thousands of chemicals registered but have banned only three so far. These three are important ones but that is hardly an irresponsible record," he said.

Train said he was often caught between opposing points of view. "When I allowed the use of DDT on the tussock moth that was killing our forests I was accused of selling out the environmentalists and when I failed to approve the use of DDT on cotton this year I was accused of selling out the farmers," he noted.

Train said a balanced program of evaluation of the cost and benefit of any chemical was needed.

"I have allowed the use of the M-44 device to control coyotes. I don't think it is an answer in every case but it can help some livestock producers. I got criticized for it by the environmentalists but I recognize farmers have a real problem with predators," he said.

Train said he had no interest in taking on the task of land use planning. "If the congress should give my agency that task we would of course take it on but I have plenty of troubles already without adding any new ones," he said.

Suggests Studies

Train suggested that his department and the Department of Agriculture ought to do some studies on how sewage sludge might be used as fertilizer.

"I recognize this is a huge materials handling problem and there is a psychological problem as well, but this really is a valuable resource we are wasting that could benefit agriculture," he said.

Train said he wasn't opposed to the use of chemical fertilizers but noted the rising cost of such fertilizers made the use of natural fertilizers more attractive financially.

Butz Says Grain Sale Agreement So Very Close

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Omaha — Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz said Wednesday he would like to have announced at the White House Conference on Domestic and Economic Affairs an end to the embargo on grain shipments to Russia and Poland but couldn't.

"We are close, so very close, to an agreement, but I just can't talk about it other than to say the Agriculture Department is involved in the discussions and is playing a role in the decision," he said.

Butz made the comments in a private interview held during the conference.

At the conference itself, he was unofficial king for the day.

Standing Ovation

He drew a standing ovation Tuesday evening at a pre-conference dinner and once again at the beginning of the conference sessions on Wednesday.

Butz sent an aide out to buy a loaf of bread he used for a demonstration on how much a farmer received from a loaf of bread for his wheat.

"We will use these two slices and the heel to show the farmer's share of the price of a loaf of bread, about 6¢ from the 49¢ they paid for this loaf," he said.

The secretary had problems balancing his two piles of bread on the shaky podium. The stack of 21 slices that represented the non-farm share of the price of a loaf of bread fell to the floor as photographers rushed to photograph the graphic demonstration.

Eugene Glock, president of the Nebraska Soybean Association tossed a quarter to the secretary to help him finance his next bread purchase for another demonstration.

"I want everyone here to know that while we have had our differences with him, we feel the present secretary of agriculture is the best one this nation has had in many years because he does speak out for agriculture," Glock said.

The audience applauded for a full three minutes.

Butz added that the cost of moving the bread from the bakery to the supermarket was often greater than the price the farmer was paid for the wheat in the loaf. "Often it is the truck driver's wife who complains the most about the price," he added.

Butz told Glock that soybeans would definitely be a part of future Russian purchases from the U.S. "They are increasing their livestock numbers beyond their ability to grow crops to feed them. They will be buying both soybeans and meal to improve the quality of their livestock feed," he predicted.

During the interview Butz admitted he is sometimes frustrated in his job but added that Russell Train, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, has a worse job.

"I know farmers feel they haven't any power but it isn't as bad as they seem to think. We do have some input into export decisions. I made no secret that I opposed the ban on sales to Poland. It came about because they had sharply increased their purchases because Russia stopped delivery of grain to Poland but I did support the embargo on further shipments to Russia," he said.

'Needed Better Deal'

"Let's keep in mind that we did sell them a lot of grain. It had gotten to the point where we felt we needed a better deal and I think we will get it. We can work out a long term agreement that will provide a market farmers can depend on every year, not just once in a while," he said.

Butz expressed concern about fuel supplies for irrigators who use natural gas. "I think farmers will have enough gasoline and diesel fuel but natural gas and propane will undoubtedly be a problem. I am hopeful that we can find a way to move propane to those who are cut off from natural gas for irrigation because it will be easier to move propane across state lines," he said.

Butz said the administration was seeking authority to allocate propane to farmers for an extended period of time.

"I think we can do something about the problem of packer bonding to guarantee payment to farmers selling livestock that will be better than the mixture of state laws we have now, but I am not sure exactly what. We have some people working on it. A straight bond would be pretty expensive and in the end the cost of whatever we do will come out of the farmer's hide one way or the other. A federal program would be cheaper to run than a lot of conflicting state programs," he said.

Questions Answered

During the question and answer session following his speech Butz:

—warned that "We must accept beef imports to enable the United States to ask for free markets in other nations."

—said the grain inspection system will be improved by better federal supervision of grain inspection companies.

—said he personally would have preferred to establish a state-federal inspection system but budget problems made this impossible.

—said the United States doesn't need a consumer protection agency.

—said farmers are the best environmentalists in the nation.

—said the United States is ten years behind in manning the nation's farms with younger farmers.

—said he was unofficially in favor of having veto power over EPA decisions on agricultural chemicals but officially knew it was an unworkable solution because a regulatory agency can't be overridden by another federal agency.

BUTZ... thoughtful about answer.

Mathews Says Government Programs 'May Not Be Controllable'

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Omaha (Though he's been in office only 40 days, U.S. Health, Education and Welfare Secretary David Mathews Wednesday said there is "considerable evidence" that government programs "are not controllable."

The 39-year-old former University of Alabama president said, "we don't seem to have that built-in discipline to stop or change directions" in many open-ended programs.

In an exclusive interview with The Lincoln Star, Mathews likened the problem to lack of good sense such as "one who would drink so much water that he drowns."

"We're still operating a lot of programs for which the original purpose was met," he said.

Size of HEW Stressed

The "difficult problem" in running an organization as large as HEW is overcoming remoteness from, and insensitivity to, the people, he said. HEW, with 129,000 employees responsible for more than 350 programs, spends about one-third of the total federal budget.

"One of the reasons there is very little confidence in large government," Mathews said, is the average citizen feels he has "no effect" on a "faceless" federal bureaucracy.

"That's why it's a perfect target for hostility," he said. Mathews says HEW should talk less and listen more. And that's what he did at the White House Conference on Economic and Domestic Affairs here Wednesday.

Asked about effectiveness of federal seed money to start local and costly programs which may be discontinued when the grants expire, Mathews said such programs must address "points of most critical need. Often, such programs might not be started otherwise."

Warns Of Controls

But schools, if they accept federal money, would be "foolish to think" controls and regulations won't accompany them. And Nebraskans are "not willing" to accept federalization of their schools, he said.

On busing to desegregate, Mathews said there's a "growing feeling" nationally for "better ways to do this" to avoid violence and divisiveness. Alternatives, he told the 1,000 Nebraskans at the conference, include improving the quality of all schools, offering specialized schooling by building, or putting all institutions in a core "educational park," to which all students would be bused.

HEW has an "inescapable obligation" to resolve the issue, he said. He offered, "no panacea" but declared "no justification" for telling one child where he must go to school and directing another differently.

In evaluating busing, he told The Star, "obviously, we're trying to use the school alone" when the problem also embraces "where people live" and an "economic class clash." He said busing may lead to "resegregation."

MATHEWS... warmed audience with humor.

Asked if he favors two congressional bills that would award cabinet status to education, Mathews said he doesn't feel "territorial" about keeping education in

HEW. But department policies are "all related," and comprehensive programs in each of the three agencies cannot be divorced easily.

"Most of our problems," Mathews said, result because "we can't get all the parts together."

Attention Asked

Declining test scores of students nationally, he said, indicate a possible need for "more attention to basics."

The 11th HEW secretary, a Phi Beta Kappa at Alabama, warmed the audience with easy humor while stressing serious needs.

Welfare reform, he said, is an "idea whose time is coming very soon." Meanwhile, "it's like a greased pig contest. There's no place to grab it," he said.

Controlling welfare means analyzing complex distribution and improving it for qualified recipients as well as unbundling taxpayers, he said.

Mathews said welfare contributes "to the breakup of families" since fatherless homes can get more income. He called it "intolerable" when welfare "competes too successfully with work."

Opposes 'Homogenizing'

Asked about federal aid to private and parochial schools, Mathews said only that he opposes homogenizing education, but he took no stance on the issue, controversial in Nebraska and elsewhere.

Mathews said he anticipates "no major redesign" of federal student aid programs, except perhaps to broaden eligibility.

Numerous officials and reporters repeatedly asked Mathews throughout the day how federal government regulations can assure improvement of education. And

Mathews repeatedly stressed education "is not totally the federal government's responsibility."

"There's nothing closer to local government than education," he said. Thus "more properly," he asked, "what's the wisest use of the federal government" to help Nebraska education in a "constructive partnership?"

Asked about federal coordination of related programs such as in mental retardation, Mathews said the proliferation coming from Congress is "so categorical, so inflexible," that sometimes "we have trouble doing the common sense thing that allows effective local operation."

Support Declared

A repeated audience concern was for vocational education. Mathews declared strong support for improving programs but noted the "economy demands" closer alignment to the "world of work."

He mused that eventually, the line separating the college degree and the "sub baccalaureate" degree may disappear, as schools "get rid of a lot of lock-step" in education and broaden it into a "career ladder."

Meanwhile, some federal programs may suffer, Mathews indicated. He drew applause when he said there are "tough political decisions we have to make in this country. We can't keep saying: take it out of someone else's program."

Mathews also declared, "unless we get some control on federal spending, we're going to endanger everything."

Feds Won't Enforce Helmet Requirement

Omaha — The federal government has no plans to implement a provision in the law that would cut off federal highway funds to a state that doesn't have a motorcycle helmet law.

William T. Coleman Jr., secretary of transportation, told people attending the White House Conference on Domestic and Economic Affairs that the law "didn't make sense."

"The proposal to cut off funds for states that don't have a motorcycle helmet law was never a part of administration policy. It was put into the law by the democratic-controlled congress," Coleman said.

"I don't think the law makes much sense and I am most reluctant to enforce it. I haven't implemented that portion of the law and I won't cut off funds unless I should be sued. I won't allow the Department of Transportation to be sued for non compliance of the law. I hope it doesn't come to that point during my term in office," he said.

Coleman said the provisions to take funds from states share of federal highway funds was a direct result of states turning to the federal government for things they would be better off doing themselves.

TRAIN... good job on air, water.

Train: Soil Saving Work Needed

Russell Train, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, indicated Wednesday that while the nation is making good progress cleaning up its water and air it is doing a poor job of conserving the quality of its soil.

"We don't have any money and Earl (Butz — secretary of agriculture) doesn't have nearly enough to do the job that is needed. Sediment from farms is the major pollutant in our streams today," he said.

Train told those attending the White House Conference on Domestic and Economic Affairs that he "isn't anti-agriculture or anti-chemical."

"We have thousands of chemicals registered but have banned only three so far. These three are important ones but that is hardly an irresponsible record," he said.

Train said he was often caught between opposing points of view. "When I allowed the use of DDT on the tussock moth that was killing our forests I was accused of selling out the environmentalists and when I failed to approve the use of DDT on cotton this year I was accused of selling out the farmers," he noted.

Train said a balanced program of evaluation of the cost and benefit of any chemical was needed.

"I have allowed the use of the M-44 device to control coyotes. I don't think it is an answer in every case but it can help some livestock producers. I got criticized for it by the environmentalists but I recognize farmers have a real problem with predators," he said.

Train said he had no interest in taking on the task of land use planning. "If the congress should give my agency that task we would of course take it on but I have plenty of troubles already without adding any new ones," he said.

Suggests Studies

Train suggested that his department and the Department of Agriculture ought to do some studies on how sewage sludge might be used as fertilizer.

"I recognize this is a huge materials handling problem and there is a psychological problem as well, but this really is a valuable resource we are wasting that could benefit agriculture," he said.

Train said he wasn't opposed to the use of chemical fertilizers but noted the rising cost of such fertilizers made the use of natural fertilizers more attractive financially.

President Promises To Be More Careful

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Omaha — President Ford Wednesday promised to use "greater discretion and prudence" in protecting his safety during travels throughout the country.

Ford acknowledged to newsmen that "my wife thinks I should be a little more careful and cautious as I travel," and he intends to do so.

But the President said two recent attempts on his life have not caused him to reconsider his candidacy for a full four-year term in 1976 or his intention to continue meeting with Americans outside of the White House.

"No Circumstances"

"I can think of no circumstances that would preclude me from seeking election in 1976," Ford told a panel of six local newsmen in a televised interview.

As for the assassination attempts, Ford simply said: "We will not let unusual circumstances deter us."

Prior to the President's meeting with newsmen (five television reporters and one Omaha newspaper reporter), he walked along the edge of a welcoming crowd at Offutt Air Force Base in his first hand-shaking venture since a shot was fired at him in San Francisco nine days ago.

Crowds watching his arrival at the Hilton Hotel in downtown Omaha were kept across the street and received only a quick wave.

Building Ringed

Security agents and policemen manned every corner, corridor and stairway in the hotel. Other officers ringed the building and stood watch on rooftops, knitting together a protective web.

For Ford, it was his first trip to the city of his birth since his elevation to the presidency last year.

Ticket Trade?

With a grin, he said he had noticed a local newspaper advertisement offering to trade eight tickets to the White House conference ($20 apiece) for standing room tickets to Saturday's Nebraska-Miami football game in Lincoln.

Actually, he said, he'd like to make that deal himself.

Ford offered special words of praise for University of Nebraska President D.B. Varner and for Clayton Yeutter, of Lincoln, the administration's agricultural trade negotiator.

Varner, who came to Nebraska from Michigan, Ford's home state, is an "old friend," the President said.

Later, when Varner arose to question the President, Ford referred to him as "a part-time Michigander."

"Mr. President," Varner replied. "I'm a full-time Nebraskan now."

"A past Michigander," Ford acknowledged.

'Outstanding Individual'

Yeutter, the President told newsmen, is "an outstanding individual and one of our top people in foreign trade negotiations."

When another questioner at the conference told Ford, a former all-American football player at Michigan, that Nebraskans think they have one of the nation's top football teams this year, the President replied: "We thought we had one at Michigan too."

Michigan has been tied in its last two games.

"Wouldn't all of you like to have Michigan beat Missouri on Saturday?" the President wondered. "No," a number of conference participants disagreed.

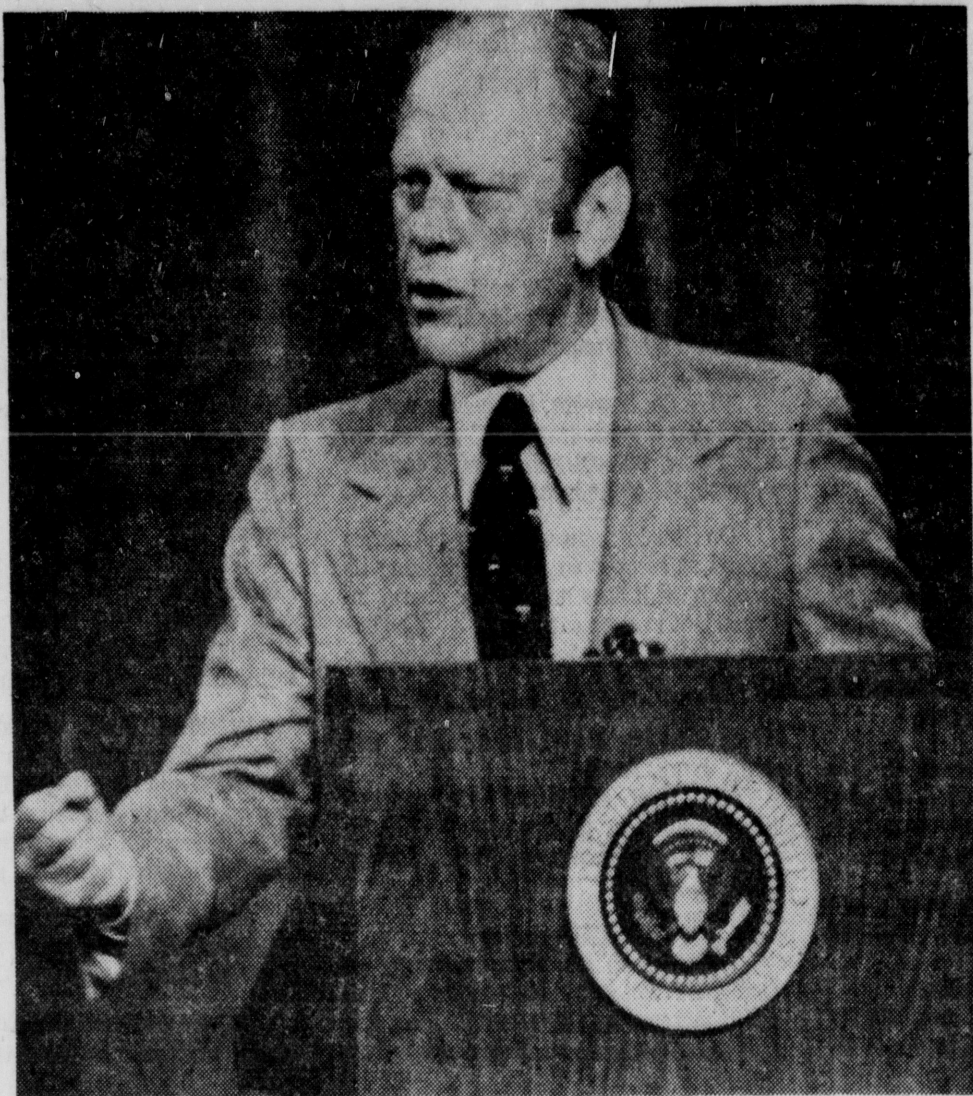

Ford fielded 33 questions during his appearances before newsmen and the conference audience, ranging from agriculture to welfare.

Message For Wife

One woman gave him a message to take home to his wife, Betty. Women's groups send her their "appreciation" for her active support of the equal rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution, the President was told.

The conference was sponsored by 17 Nebraska and Iowa organizations, largely business, farm, education and labor groups. Each designated one representative to ask the President a question.

Local newsmen posed 16 questions during the half-hour televised interview.

PRESIDENT FORD SPEAKS... during his visit to Omaha.

Security Alert, Tight For Ford

Omaha (AP) — "It's all over," said a retreating reporter to a policeman watching the President of the United States speed away from the Hilton Hotel in downtown Omaha late Wednesday afternoon.

"Thank heavens," said the relieved cop.

That seemed to sum it up security-wise.

It may have been business as usual for the Washington crowd, but for Omaha the security which surrounded President Ford's arrival and departure nearly defied description.

Police sealed off an approximate two block area of Capitol Avenue for more than 1½ hours before Ford's arrival.

A helicopter circled noisily overhead as Ford arrived and departed.

An Omaha man, 23, was committed to Douglas County Hospital Wednesday morning at the request of the Secret Service.

Reports show the man, who has a long history of mental illness, allegedly told officers he came to warn President Ford that he would be shot during his Omaha stay.

U.S. Atty. Daniel Wherry said another man was arrested Wednesday afternoon in the office of the Douglas County election commissioner. He allegedly said it would be a good day to "get" 14 politicians.

Police also checked a report that shots were being fired from a truck near 16th and Dodge Streets. Officers were unable to locate any vehicle or witnesses.

Union Pacific employees said they witnessed an incident in which a man walking near the hotel tossed an object under a car. A UP employee then looked under the car and reported to police that there was a knife under the car. An officer retrieved the knife.

The only incident reported inside the hotel was a rather small and harmless one, and it occurred before Ford arrived.

A Goldfinch found its way into the ballroom where the conference was being held, and darted about during the morning session.

At one point it slammed into a large mirror, apparently injuring itself.

Officials called on the Omaha Humane Society to capture and eject the "tiny visitor, but with the aid of a conference participant, the bird found its way down a hallway and out an open door just as the animal ambulance arrived.

Ford's Visit Leaves MIA Daughter 'Disappointed'

Bellevue (UPI) — President Ford departed Offutt Air Force Base late Wednesday leaving behind a disappointed, but not disheartened, Bellevue teenager who believes her pilot-father is alive in southeast Asia.

Sherrill Standerwick, 16, was to meet personally with the President to discuss administration efforts to locate American servicemen officially listed as missing.

Sherrill's father, Air Force Col. Robert Standerwick, was reported missing after a mission over Laos Feb. 3, 1971.

The meeting with the President, through an apparent mixup, failed to come off. Shortly before Air Force One took off, Sherrill was allowed to shake hands with Ford, but that was all.

Before the President arrived at the air base, she said, "I want my dad to come home, and I want to find out what he (Ford) intends to do about it."

Letter Sent To Ford

The scheduled meeting, arranged through the National League of Families, an MIA organization, was primarily the result of a letter the Bellevue High School junior wrote to Ford a year ago in August.

In the letter, Ford said he was seeking a "full accounting of all those listed as missing."

During a regional news conference earlier Wednesday, Ford was asked about the pending meeting with Sherrill.

Every Effort Made

"I can assure you that the Defense Department, the State Department and myself have made every possible effort that we can to get the North Vietnamese to permit us to move in and check on the sites or the locations," Ford said, "where we understand there is some possibility a crash might have occurred, or a person might have escaped."

"But," Ford added, "the North Vietnamese have totally violated the January 1973 accords by failing to permit us to carry out these investigations."

The President said he could "assure," Sherrill, "as I am saying here, that we have made and will continue to make a maximum effort in this regard."

Ford Shakes Hands

At Offutt, Ford paused for 15 minutes to shake hands and talk with a sparse crowd, and later Sherrill said, "I'm not even sure he knew who I was."

Agents Defend Decision To Release Sara Moore

WASHINGTON (AP) — The two Secret Service agents who interviewed Sara Jane Moore the night before she fired a shot at President Ford said Wednesday their decision to release her without surveillance was proper and they would do it again under the same circumstances.

"With the facts I had at the time I do not think I was wrong and I would make the same decision with these facts," agent Gary Yauger told a Senate subcommittee. His assistant, Martin Haskell, was at his side.

Yauger also revealed that Mrs. Moore was within 15 feet of him when she fired a pistol at Ford left the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco on Monday, Sept. 22. Moreover, he said, he probably had passed within close sight of her minutes before the incident.

A veteran San Francisco police inspector, Jack O'Shea, testified earlier in the day that he had warned three federal agencies, including the Secret Service, that Mrs. Moore "could be another Squeaky Fromme." Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme had pointed a pistol at Ford in an earlier alleged assassination attempt.

But Police Lt. James A. Ryan, who directed his department's role in protecting Ford on the San Francisco trip, said he had no quarrel with the decision of Yauger and Haskell to release Mrs. Moore after their interview with her Sunday night, Sept. 21.

Said Ryan: "I would have probably, no, erase that, absolutely made the same judgment."

The testimony by the officers wound up two days of hearings on the Secret Service by a Treasury subcommittee headed by Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M.

The hearings, which also included testimony from former presidential candidates and top federal law enforcement officials, produced something of a flap — for a time — between the Secret Service and the police regarding one conversation about Mrs. Moore.

On Tuesday, a ranking Secret Service official said O'Shea had told Yauger something to the effect that Mrs. Moore was "no problem" in a telephone conversation during the two agents' interview with her.

O'Shea asked Wednesday if those words had, in fact, been his, replied "I don't believe so." He said Yauger had inquired in a call to his home if there was anything else — on top of the information he provided earlier — that he wanted to tell them about the woman. "I said, 'No,'" he testified. "As far as I am concerned, I had given them all the facts."

When Yauger was asked about the exchange, he offered this version: "I said something to the effect of 'Do we need anything else, do we have a problem?' and he (O'Shea) replied 'No.'"

But Yauger admitted that "I don't know what the thought I meant by saying 'Do we have a problem.'"

Haskell, 34, and Yauger, 36, traced their contacts about Mrs. Moore from the time they heard about her via O'Shea at 7 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 20, until the shooting the following Monday afternoon.

They had taken Mrs. Moore to their office for an interview late Sunday night after O'Shea had ordered her arrest earlier in the day for possession of a .44-caliber pistol. Earlier on that same Sunday, she had participated in a police undercover operation aimed at gathering evidence from a munitions dealer who sold her the gun.

Yauger told the committee he had conducted more than 500 interviews with persons suspected of being a threat to persons under Secret Service guard. After he and Haskell questioned her for about an hour, they decided she "was not a danger to the President, to the public or to herself" and should neither be locked up nor followed, he said.

O'Shea said he warned the Secret Service, the FBI and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms about Mrs. Moore after she had called him on Saturday and said she planned to travel — armed — to a Stanford University protest rally connected with Ford's visit to that campus Sunday. She said herself that she might want to be arrested, O'Shea said.

But she never made it to Stanford, apparently because of her arrest by police Sunday.

Yauger and Haskell said they decided to release her again Sunday night despite her radical connections, that she had carried a gun, and that she had indicated an interest in the Stanford rally.

"At no time during the interview did she show any sign of mental instability," Yauger said.

He said the interview was designed to bring out mental problems, dislike for the government or authority or a propensity for violence. On each count, he said, Mrs. Moore appeared not to be dangerous.

"We knew she had no police record, no history of violent acts, and that she was involved in several organizations that led me to believe she was a nonviolent type," said Yauger.

"The weapon thing didn't alarm me. I've run into people carrying weapons all over the United States. She came up with a logical reason why she was carrying that weapon."

Mamie's Home To Be Restored

Washington (UPI) — The Iowa American Revolution Bicentennial Commission has received an $8,000 grant for restoration of the Mamie Doud Eisenhower birthplace in Boone, Iowa; the office of Rep. Thomas Harkin, D-Iowa, announced.

PUBLIC NOTICES

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT EFFECT ON THE ENVIRONMENT

This finding relates to the four projects: street surfacing, alley grading, sidewalk installation, and tree planting. These projects are all located in the Clinton area, bounded by 27th Street on the west, Holdrege Street on the south, 33rd Street on the east, and Leighton Street on the north.

The City of Lincoln has found that these projects have no significant effect on the environment.

Facts and reasons for this decision are in the Environmental Assessment and finding of no significant effect.

The City of Lincoln has made an Environmental Review Record, available for examination in the Community Development Office, City-County Building, 555 South 10 Street, Lincoln, Nebraska.

No further environmental review of these projects is proposed to be conducted and the City of Lincoln intends to request HUD to release funds for the projects.

Any comments may be submitted to the City of Lincoln, Community Development Office and including October 6, 1975. The applicant is the City of Lincoln, Nebraska; Mayor, Mrs. Helen Boosells; 30869, 151, Sept. 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 29, 30, Oct. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7.

President Promises To Be More Careful

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Omaha — President Ford Wednesday promised to use "greater discretion and prudence" in protecting his safety during travels throughout the country.

Ford acknowledged to newsmen that "my wife thinks I should be a little more careful and cautious as I travel," and he intends to do so.

But the President said two recent attempts on his life have not caused him to reconsider his candidacy for a full four-year term in 1976 or his intention to continue meeting with Americans outside of the White House.

"No Circumstances" "I can think of no circumstances that would preclude me from seeking election in 1976," Ford told a panel of six local newsmen in a televised interview.

As for the assassination attempts, Ford simply said: "We will not let unusual circumstances deter us."

Prior to the President's meeting with newsmen (five television reporters and one Omaha newspaper reporter), he walked along the edge of a welcoming crowd at Offutt Air Force Base in his first hand-shaking venture since a shot was fired at him in San Francisco nine days ago.

Crowds watching his arrival at the Hilton Hotel in downtown Omaha were kept across the street and received only a quick wave.

Building Ringed Security agents and policemen manned every corner, corridor and stairway in the hotel. Other officers ringed the building and stood watch on rooftops, knitting together a protective web.

For Ford, it was his first trip to the city of his birth since his elevation to the presidency last year.

The President mixed humor, warm praise for two Nebraskans and a little football talk in his interview session and during his appearance before a thousand persons attending a White House Conference on Domestic and Economic Affairs.

Ticket Trade? With a grin, he said he had noticed a local newspaper advertisement offering to trade eight tickets to the White House conference ($20 apiece) for standing room tickets to Saturday's Nebraska-Miami football game in Lincoln.

Actually, he said, he'd like to make that deal himself.

Ford offered special words of praise for University of Nebraska President D.B. Varner and for Clayton Yeutter, of Lincoln, the administration's agricultural trade negotiator.

Varner, who came to Nebraska from Michigan, Ford's home state, is an "old friend," the President said.

Later, when Varner arose to question the President, Ford referred to him as "a part-time Michigan."

"Mr. President," Varner replied. "I'm a full-time Nebraskan now."

"A past Michigan," Ford acknowledged.

"Outstanding Individual" Yeutter, the President told newsmen, is "an outstanding individual and one of our top people in foreign trade negotiations."

When another questioner at the conference told Ford, a former all-American football player at Michigan, that Nebraskans think they have one of the nation's top football teams this year, the President replied: "We thought we had one at Michigan too."

Michigan has been tied in its last two games.

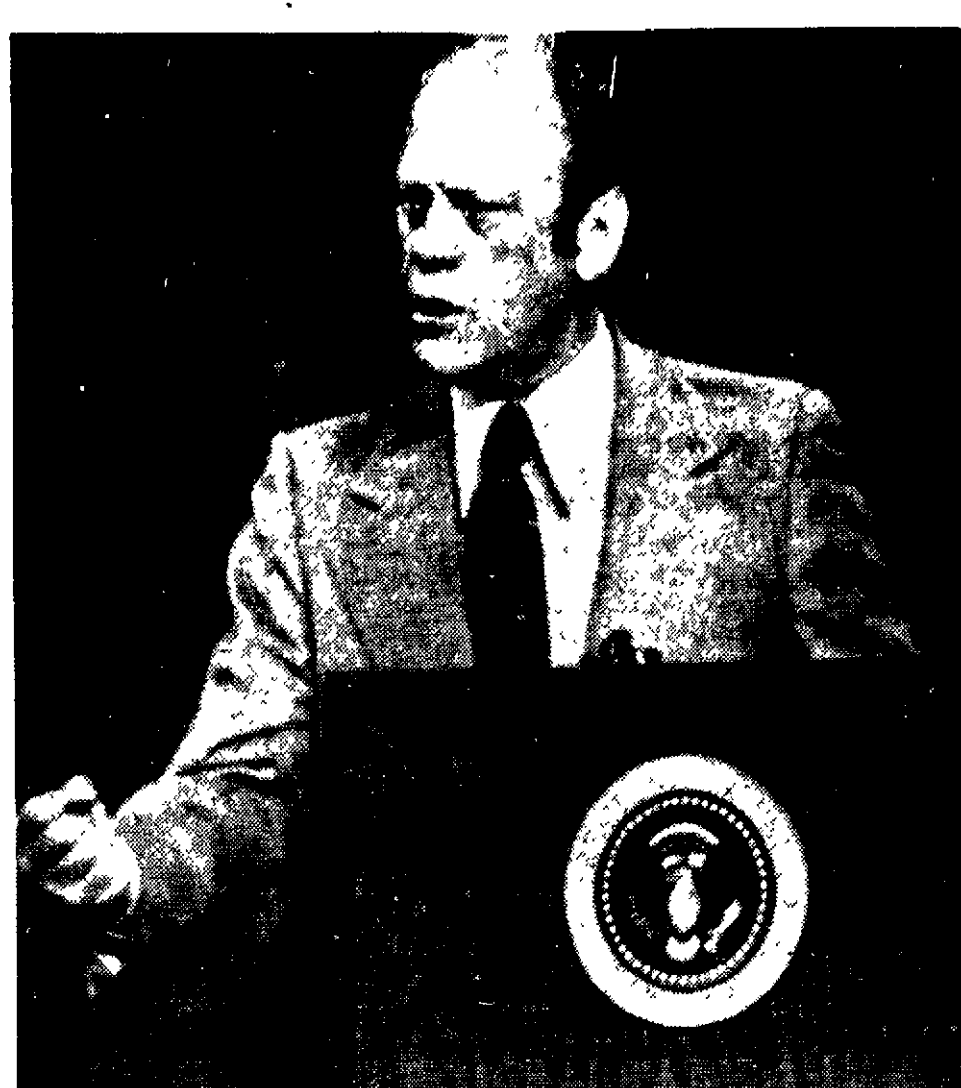

"Wouldn't all of you like to have Michigan beat Missouri on Saturday?" the President wondered. "No," a number of conference participants disagreed.

Ford fielded 33 questions during his appearances before newsmen and the conference audience, ranging from agriculture to welfare.

Message For Wife One woman gave him a message to take home to his wife, Betty. Women's groups send her their "appreciation" for her active support of the equal rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution, the President was told.

The conference was sponsored by 17 Nebraska and Iowa organizations, largely business, farm, education and labor groups. Each designated one representative to ask the President a question.

Local newsmen posed 16 questions during the half-hour televised interview.

PRESIDENT FORD SPEAKS . . . during his visit to Omaha.

Security Alert, Tight For Ford

Omaha (AP) — "It's all over," said a retreating reporter to a policeman watching the President of the United States speed away from the Hilton Hotel in downtown Omaha late Wednesday afternoon.

"Thank heavens," said the relieved cop.

That seemed to sum it up security-wise. It may have been business as usual for the Washington crowd, but for Omaha the security which surrounded President Ford's arrival and departure nearly defied description.

Police sealed off an approximate two block area of Capitol Avenue for more than 1½ hours before Ford's arrival.

Dozens of uniformed police officers lined Capitol Avenue and Secret Service agents circulated among them and the welcoming crowd.

A helicopter circled noisily overhead as Ford arrived and departed.

Police and federal authorities investigated at least four incidents in connection with the visiting President's presence.

An Omaha man, 23, was committed to Douglas County Hospital Wednesday morning at the request of the Secret Service.

Reports show the man, who has a long history of mental illness, allegedly told officers he came to warn President Ford that he would be shot during his Omaha stay.

U.S. Atty. Daniel Wherry said another man was arrested Wednesday afternoon in the office of the Douglas County election commissioner. He allegedly said it would be a good day to "get" 14 politicians.

Police also checked a report that shots were being fired from a truck near 16th and Dodge Streets. Officers were unable to locate any vehicle or witnesses.

Union Pacific employees said they witnessed an incident in which a man walking near the hotel tossed an object under a car. A UP employee then looked under the car and reported to police that there was a knife under the car. An officer retrieved the knife.

The only incident reported inside the hotel was a rather small and harmless one, and it occurred before Ford arrived.

A Goldfinch found its way into the ballroom where the conference was being held, and darted about during the morning session.

At one point it slammed into a large mirror, apparently injuring itself.

Officials called on the Omaha Humane Society to capture and eject the tiny visitor, but with the aid of a conference participant, the bird found its way down a hallway and out an open door just as the animal ambulance arrived.

Ford's Visit Leaves MIA Daughter 'Disappointed'

Bellevue (UPI) — President Ford departed Offutt Air Force Base late Wednesday leaving behind a disappointed, but not disheartened, Bellevue teenager who believes her pilot-father is alive in southeast Asia.

Sherrill Standerwick, 16, was to meet personally with the President to discuss administration efforts to locate American servicemen officially listed as missing.

Sherrill's father, Air Force Col. Robert Standerwick, was reported missing after a mission over Laos Feb. 3, 1971.

The meeting with the President, through an apparent mixup, failed to come off. Shortly before Air Force One took off, Sherrill was allowed to shake hands with Ford, but that was all.

Before the President arrived at the air base, she said, "I want my dad to come home, and I want to find out what he (Ford) intends to do about it."

Letter Sent To Ford The scheduled meeting, arranged through the National League of Families, an MIA organization, was primarily the result of a letter the Bellevue High School junior wrote to Ford a year ago in August.

In the letter, Ford said he was seeking a "full accounting of all those listed as missing."

During a regional news conference earlier Wednesday, Ford was asked about the pending meeting with Sherrill.

Every Effort Made "I can assure you that the Defense Department, the State Department and myself have made every possible effort that we can to get the North Vietnamese to permit us to move in and check on the sites or the locations," Ford said, "where we understand there is some possibility a crash might have occurred, or a person might have escaped."

"But," Ford added, "the North Vietnamese have totally violated the January 1973 accords by failing to permit us to carry out these investigations."

The President said he could "assure," Sherrill, "as I am saying here, that we have made and will continue to make a maximum effort in this regard."

Ford Shakes Hands At Offutt, Ford paused for 15 minutes to shake hands and talk with a sparse crowd, and later Sherrill said, "I'm not even sure he knew who I was."

Agents Defend Decision To Release Sara Moore

WASHINGTON (AP) — The two Secret Service agents who interviewed Sara Jane Moore the night before she fired a shot at President Ford said Wednesday their decision to release her without surveillance was proper and they would do it again under the same circumstances.

"With the facts I had at the time I do not think I was wrong and I would make the same decision with these facts," agent Gary Yauger told a Senate subcommittee. His assistant, Martin Haskell, was at his side.

Yauger also revealed that Mrs. Moore was within 15 feet of him when she fired a pistol at Ford left the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco on Monday, Sept. 22. Moreover, he said, he probably had passed within close sight of her minutes before the incident.

A veteran San Francisco police inspector, Jack O'Shea, testified earlier in the day that he had warned three federal agencies, including the Secret Service, that Mrs. Moore "could be another Squeaky Fromme." Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme had pointed a pistol at Ford in an earlier alleged assassination attempt.

But Police Lt. James A. Ryan, who directed his department's role in protecting Ford on the San Francisco trip, said he had no quarrel with the decision of Yauger and Haskell to release Mrs. Moore after their interview with her Sunday night, Sept. 21.

Said Ryan: "I would have probably, no, erase that, absolutely made the same judgment."

The testimony by the officers wound up two days of hearings on the Secret Service by a Treasury subcommittee headed by Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M.

The hearings, which also included testimony from former presidential candidates and top federal law enforcement officials, produced something of a flap — for a time — between the Secret Service and the police regarding one conversation about Mrs. Moore.

On Tuesday, a ranking Secret Service official said O'Shea had told Yauger something to the effect that Mrs. Moore was "no problem" in a telephone conversation during the two agents' interview with her.

O'Shea asked Wednesday if those words had, in fact, been his, replied "I don't believe so." He said Yauger had inquired in a call to his home if there was anything else — on top of the information he provided earlier — that he wanted to tell them about the woman. "I said, 'No,'" he testified. "As far as I am concerned, I had given them all the facts."

When Yauger was asked about the exchange, he offered this version: "I said something to the effect of 'Do we need anything else, do we have a problem?'" and he (O'Shea) replied 'No.'"

But Yauger admitted that "I don't know what the thought I meant by saying 'Do we have a problem.'"

Haskell, 34, and Yauger, 36, traced their contacts about Mrs. Moore from the time they heard about her via O'Shea at 7 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 20, until the shooting the following Monday afternoon.

They had taken Mrs. Moore to their office for an interview late Sunday night after O'Shea had ordered her arrest earlier in the day for possession of a .44-caliber pistol. Earlier on that same Sunday, she had participated in a police undercover operation aimed at gathering evidence from a munitions dealer who sold her the gun.

She was released on the gun charge, a misdemeanor,

although the weapon was confiscated by police.

Yauger told the committee he had conducted more than 500 interviews with persons suspected of being a threat to persons under Secret Service guard. After he and Haskell questioned her for about an hour, they decided she "was not a danger to the President, to the public or to herself" and should neither be locked up nor followed, he said.

O'Shea said he warned the Secret Service, the FBI and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms about Mrs. Moore after she had called him on Saturday and said she planned to travel — armed — to a Stanford University protest rally connected with Ford's visit to that campus Sunday. She said herself that she might want to be arrested, O'Shea said.

But she never made it to Stanford, apparently because of her arrest by police Sunday.

Yauger and Haskell said they decided to release her again Sunday night despite her radical connections, that she had carried a gun, and that she had indicated an interest in the Stanford rally.

"At no time during the interview did she show any sign of mental instability," Yauger said.

He said the interview was designed to bring out mental problems, dislike for the government or authority or a propensity for violence. On each count, he said, Mrs. Moore appeared not to be dangerous.

"We knew she had no police record, no history of violent acts, and that she was involved in several organizations that led me to believe she was a nonviolent type," said Yauger.

"The weapon thing didn't alarm me. I've run into people carrying weapons all over the United States. She came up with a logical reason why she was carrying that weapon."

Mamie's Home To Be Restored

Washington (UPI) — The Iowa American Revolution Bicentennial Commission has received an $8,000 grant for restoration of the Mamie Doud Eisenhower birthplace in Boone, Iowa, the office of Rep. Thomas Harkin, D-Iowa, announced.

Seelig, architect for the 1777 Street Siding Tunnel Renovation 1975, City Campus, Lincoln, Nebraska will be received by the Board of Regents of the University of Nebraska at 10:00 a.m. on Oct. 2, 1975, and then will be opened and read publicly. DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST
By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast for Thursday

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Become familiar with basic material. Work, health, organization command spotlight. Superficial attitudes, efforts fail by wayside. Key is to be thorough. Health, diet resolutions should not be ignored. You'll be working hard but you'll also be rewarded.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Favorable lunar aspect coincides now with change and romance. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Your individual touch is appreciated. Member of opposite sex pays meaningful compliment. You will receive answer to request — and it will be favorable. Display, distribution improves.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You deal with situations that are important to your comfort, security, emotional balance. You do best by being direct rather than evasive. Leo, Aquarius persons could be in picture. You are on the way to greater self-confidence as transaction is closed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You have choice of two roads — one rises high, skipping minor stops; the other is a "local" and is filled with petty grievances, bumps and traffic. The selection is your own, although family members — and others — will claim to know what is best for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent on what you own, how to protect values, what to do about debts and collections. Diversify. Socialize. Meet people. See and be seen. Highlight flexibility. Expand mental-emotional horizons. Gemini could keep you busy! Virgo isn't far behind, either.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Lunar cycle is such that you get facts and know how to utilize them. Leo can help and so can Aquarius. Accent is on individuality, originality, bright ideas, new chance in new direction. Take the lead!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Enlightenment is featured. You learn, gain confidence of one who belongs to powerful "lobby." Be ready for change of scene. Realize that "special person" cares very much — and is sensitive. Gemini, Libra and Virgo persons are likely to be in picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on friendship, romantic interlude, desires and how to fulfill them. Adjustment in family area is indicated. You receive surprise gift. You also get appraisal — you learn about costs, expenses.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Perfect techniques. Have notes available for special interview. One who has authority to make decisions wants to decide about you. See picture as it exists, not merely as you wish it might be. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Moon aspect highlights travel, study, long-range projects. You get results through advertising, publishing. Stick to principles, organize priorities. One you feared is in your corner, working to benefit you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Finish what you start. Have no loose ends. Money, partnership, tax shelters are likely to be part of picture. Aries, Libra and Scorpio figure prominently. Partner, mate wants to "take money."

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis is on how the world looks to you, responds to you and what you are going to do about it. If single, there is talk of marriage. Married or single, a cooperative effort is indicated that brings desired results. You get rare "second chance."

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are musical, moody and have digestive problems. October will be one of your most significant months of this year. Cancer Capricorn persons play important roles in your life. You are "getting over" a setback. You'll be stronger, richer in 1976.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
